All Kinds Weaponry Being Used

By ELTON C. FAY

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States has drawn on almost every type of arms in its arsenal of conventional weapons to cope with the mounting ferocity of Communist attack in Viet Nam.

This proliferation of weaponry ranges from carbines for foot soldiers to the recently-used B-52 strategic bombers.

The 1954 Geneva Accords, which the U.S. promised to adhere to although not a signatory, specified that no types of weapons not in use by North or South Viet Nam forces at the time of the agreement should be introduced. It permitted only replacement with the same or similar-type weapons.

The state department, basing its action on reports of members of the international control commission of Canada, India and Poland, holds that the introduction of new weapons in South Vietnamese defence was justified by what it termed flagrant North Vietnamese violations in the weapons provided the Viet Cong.

When the first Americans assigned units to South Viet Nam, their own equipment was rudimentary—sidearms, rifles, light automatic weapons.

NORTH WELL EQUIPPED

By early this year, units of the regular army of North Vie. Nam, with modern arms, were showing up in South Viet Nam.

The weapons used by the U.S. and South Viet Nam have include more than 30 types of fixed-wing or rotary aircraft.

Small arms toted by the army and marine ground fighters now are in wide variety—carbines, lightweight rifles and .30-calibre machine-guns; 60-millimeter and 80-millimeter mortars; 57-millimeter and 106-millimeter anti-tank weapons; recoilless rifles. Along with them are recently-improved designs of mines, grenades and grenade-launchers.

The artillery used in what started out to be a bushwacking kind of war has become impressive—weighty and 155-millimeter and 105-millimeter howitzers; hawk anti-aircraft weapons (although no enemy air strikes in South Viet Nam have appeared so far); medium tanks; self-propelled anti-tank guns.

Indians' Claim

Whatever the merits of the Iroquois Confederacy's claim to separate nationhood, its spokesmen were entitled to a more courteous reception than they were accorded by Citizenship Minister Nicholson last week.

Mr. Nicholson told Indian leaders that he did not have authority to confirm that the tribes constitute a separate nation and are entitled huge land parcels and contingent mineral rights. The Indians said their rights to nationhood and lands were confirmed by George the Third in 1763.

When the delegates' delegation pressed for confirmation of separate-nation status for Indians, Mr. Nicholson said he would walk out if they continued to press their point.

When one Indian commented, "We are not getting anywhere," Mr. Nicholson replied: "I didn't invite you here, this meeting is at your request."

The minister's remark was hardly guaranteed to improve relations with the Indians of this country, particularly with the Iroquois Confederacy. On the other hand the Indians themselves do not encourage closer links; theirs is a separatist attitude akin to the Quebeckers.

"We have our own nation and the white man has no right to make laws for the red man," said chief Louis Hall of the Caughnawaga reserve near Montreal.

The closest the Indians have come to satisfaction of their demands is the setting up by the government of an Indian claims commission to iron out difficulties stemming from old treaty rights.

If Chief Hall is to be taken at his word though, the Indians will not put much trust in such a body. Meanwhile it would be interesting to know just what was contained in the George the Third proclamation of 1763. It appears no one has troubled to test its validity; if this were done the Indians might have surer grounds for their claim.

Arctic Development

Northern Affairs Minister Laing returned from the Soviet Union recently with glowing reports about development in the Soviet north. He said Russia was going all-out to develop its rich mineral and timber resources in Siberia, and he further north they went the richer the resources became.

Among the things that impressed Mr. Laing were Norilsk, a mining community of 100,000 built on permafrost more than 100 miles above the Arctic Circle, and Yakutsk in northeastern Siberia where despite temperatures of more than 90 below zero a city of 65,000 has been established.

At Norilsk, buildings up to eight storeys high were supported on steel and concrete pilings as much as 24 feet into the permafrost. These and other achievements of Soviet Arctic development are certainly impressive. Much has been heard of the activity there (an official of the Soviet Embassy in Ottawa addressed Belleville Kiwanians on the theme some weeks ago and referred to the forthcoming visit of the Canadians), but this was the first time westerners had seen it at first hand.

Mr. Laing said nothing about the possibility of similar development in the Canadian Arctic but it is clear that any such development is years ahead. Muskeg and permafrost are the major stumbling blocks in the Canadian north as they are in Russia. The Russians, however, have made astonishing progress because they have a flair for this sort of thing. Canada would find it difficult to muster the necessary work force to embark on such vast undertakings. One day something may be done, though, and if it is the lessons learned by the Canadian visitors to the Soviet Arctic will prove valuable.

He stayed at the controls for half an hour until he got his plane back. He died so well. He knew he was dying and he wouldn't give up. He wrote a letter to his wife. He joked. He shouldn't have lived even to land that plane. He talked about being operated on the next morning, but there was nothing that could be done for him. He lived 20 hours. He died just before daybreak and was alert until 15 minutes before the end. He never got to see the sun come up. I never saw a braver man.—Lieut. Diluted Scotch With Gin Back in His College Days

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

A thousand years ago, or so it seems, when I was in college the boys in one fraternity house accumulated enough money to buy a bottle of bootleg Scotch whiskey. This was back in the big Depression Days. They didn't have enough cash left for some sods, but they found a tip to the doctor who removed the mole. I doubt if you have much reason to worry, but the old rule of better safe than sorry is a good one.

Note to Mrs. N. T.: Your problem frankly, is psychological, and the sooner you accept this fact, the sooner you will start to live a normal, happy life. A hysterectomy does not "deminize" a woman to the extent you think.

Today in History

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

June 28, 1965 . . .

Prime Minister Mackenzie King resigned 39 years ago today—in 1925—when, after eight shaky months of minority government, Lord Byng, the governor-general, refused to call a fresh general election. The Constitutional Crisis, as it was called, turned on whether Lord Byng was obligated to accept his prime minister's advice and dissolve Parliament. Instead, Arthur Meighen formed his second Conservative ministry, but its first measure was defeated. In the subsequent election a Liberal government was returned which held power until 1930.

1712—Jean-Jacques Rousseau, French moralist, was born.

1836 — First Canadian transcontinental train left Montreal for Port Moody, B.C.

First World War

Fifty years ago today—in 1915—1st Canadian Division went into the line again at Messines; Austro - German forces captured Halics, Galicia; action continued on the Italian and Gallipoli fronts.

Second World War

Twenty-five years ago today — in 1940 — General Balbo, the Italian governor of Libya, was killed in an aircraft accident; HMCS Fraser sank after a collision in French waters, with 66 dead; 39 died in a German air raid on the Channel Islands, which were being partly evacuated.

Weary Public

Vancouver Sun

The public is wearied of this farce of non-confidence votes, as well it might be. It is getting wiser. The wild denunciations of Liberal tax policy, of its pension policy, were duly noted and found to be empty verbiage. The opposition has no intention of defeating the government and will move heaven and earth to avoid its fall—at whatever injury to Tory, socialist or Social Credit principle involved. This the public is now fully aware of. Politicians who hope to make election ammunition out of their hollow war cries in the Commons had better take note.

Dear Dr Molner: I had a mole (cancerous) removed from my face four months ago. It has healed up but the scar has a hard place in the middle and it is sore to touch. Will this soreness eventually leave or does it mean the cancer is still there? I am 71. — Mrs. I. B.

Removal of skin cancer by surgery is usually successful if it is done before the cancer has spread — and this usually is the case. Some soreness can be expected in the scar, but for your peace of mind, as well as a means of playing safe, rep o r t this to the doctor who removed the mole. I doubt if you have much reason to worry, but the old rule of better safe than sorry is a good one.

Strictly Personal

Must Give Equal Rights To Criminal

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

I hope that my recent piece on the so-called "lie detector" tests will have some effect upon the people who formerly said "If you have nothing to hide, why not submit to a lie-detector test?" There are many good reasons one should not submit to it.

Another common area of public misunderstanding is the matter of "taking the Fifth." When a witness pleads the Fifth Amendment, and refuses to answer questions on the grounds that such answers might be self-incriminating, the average person says, "If he has nothing to hide, why does he take the Fifth?"

Again, there may be many good reasons for refusing to answer questions, even if one has nothing to hide. Indeed, if we go on the assumption that those who refuse to answer are concealing some illegality, then the Fifth Amendment might as well be junked, and the Bill of Rights has been seriously jeopardized.

I have a dear friend who refused to sign an anti-Communist affidavit which was deemed necessary by the State Department before issuing him a passport to travel into the Iron Curtain. This man has been a consistent and eloquent opponent of Communism in all its forms for the last 30 years. Should we ask, "If he is not a Communist, why shouldn't he sign the disclaimer?"

He refused to sign it because he was fighting a battle for all of us — the battle of individual liberties against encroachment. And the very people who are always complaining about encroachment when it is a matter of their business interests are strangely silent when it comes to civil liberties, which are certainly just as basic.

This man persisted in his refusal, at great expense and personal inconvenience — finally winning his case in court against the might of the whole U.S. Government. It was a glorious victory, but one hardly noted by the majority of people, who are interested only in those "rights" that bring them some material gain.

People also do not know that a witness who takes the Fifth cannot decide he will answer some questions and not answer others. This would be improper and illegal; therefore, such a witness refuses to answer anything except his name and address. He might be willing to answer most questions put to him, but he cannot do so and still invoke the protection of the Fifth.

We also fail to comprehend that a law is useless if it does not afford equal rights to the criminal, to the disreputable, to the unpopular. We recognize it would be unfair to have one law for the rich and another for the poor; it is equally unfair to have one for the majority and another for the minority. It is a small price to pay for this great blessing that it sometimes be abused.

South Africa Settles Down

Alan Paton In Commonweal

At Sharpeville in the Transvaal, on March 21, 1960, 69 Africans were shot dead after a demonstration, which while frightening to the white police because of it sheer size, was unarmed.

As a result of this Africans marched in great numbers into Cape Town and Durban. A nation-wide emergency was declared in which a number of my friends and associates were imprisoned, and months later released without charge, trial, or verdict.

The anger of the outside world, including the West, was intense. Money poured out of the country. Factories tumbled.

It seemed that great changes were imminent. It seemed as though the Nationalist Government under Dr. Verwoerd would have at last to make concessions and to relax its inflexible policies of apartheid, the color bar, and racial separation with their attendant cruelties.

In 1965 my report is quite different.

There has been no second Sharpeville. I am certain that the police have received the strictest instruction to guard against panic in most situations.

The anger of the countries of the West has cooled, many of them having been rebuffed in Africa. The anger of the other African countries is seen to be less dangerous, because of their military and economic weakness, and because of their own divisiveness.

Money was poured back into the country. The markets have recovered, and we have been passing through a period of unprecedented economic prosperity.

It seems as though Dr. Verwoerd will not need to make any concessions, but will on the contrary be able to proceed unchecked with his racial programs, and to act more and more drastically against his political opponents, who, whatever their policies may be, are either deemed to be Communists, or are deemed to be furthering, willingly or unwittingly, the aims of communism.

White South Africa cares little about Russia or China, any country of the East or Africa thinks of her policies and practices of apartheid. She cares only for the good opinion of the countries of the West.

When, however, she is criticized by one of them, she is offended and points to the moral decadence of the West, declaring that Christianity and decency find their last stronghold in the Deep South of Africa.

It is doubtful whether there is a country in the world so convinced as is white South Africa of its rightness of the beauty of its (white) girls, of the happiness of its citizens (except those of course, who are unjustifiably dissatisfied, largely because they are exploited by agitators), of the harmony of its race relations. And indeed one who questions these convictions is not a searcher after truth, but an Communist, an agitator, a hater of the good, a creator of chaos for some unspeakable end.

It is the boast of white South Africans that in a restless continent, their own country is a haven of prosperity, peace, and order.

Up to a certain point this boast is justified. Visitors who have been influenced by scare stories, and exaggerated anti-apartheid propaganda are genuinely surprised when they find that black people are not shot and thrashed in the streets, that the racially mixed crowds in the cities move about their business with a minimum of friction, that Africans laugh and talk with great vivacity, that in every city great new buildings are being erected, that the road system for a country of this size and population is quite remarkable, that the air services are splendid, that South Africa is a modern, vigorous, highly industrialized society.

In 1960 I might have described it as a volcano, or as a pot whose lid was being pressed down on forces which would ultimately be unconquerable.

Today it does not appear to be so. Today the forces seem to be controllable. Our visitors pretend that more and more nonwhite people are accepting the policy of separate development, and that apart from the disturbances of agitators, satisfaction reigns.

My own view is otherwise.

This outward appearance of peace is due to the tremendous powers at the disposal of the Government to silence its opponents, to banish them to remote places, to confine them to restricted areas, to deny them to schools, colleges, factories, courts of law, and other places, to forbid them to attend meetings, to order them to stay at home for any daily period up to 24 hours, all this without charge, trial, or verdict.

Need to Emphasize Quality

Corner Brook (Nfld.) Western Star

The dog-in-the-manger attitude of the province of Quebec in relation to Newfoundland's desire to export electricity across Quebec territory is highlighted by the recollection that the Quebec North Shore and Labrador Railway, by which the iron ore production of Quebec Labrador finds its way to market, traverses a considerable portion of Newfoundland territory. Even so, it took considerable expense and argument before the board of transport commissioners to have the QNS&L declared a common carrier for the haulage of ore from Newfoundland Labrador to the port of Seven Islands.

Newfoundland could have played the same game Quebec is playing now, but did not because it was easily realized there was a question here of mutual advantage.

which also would have to go through Quebec? Is Labrador to be isolated forever? It appears to be Quebec's hope by blocking the power lines, and possibly the highway, to shut the door on Labrador development to force a change in the Newfoundland-Labrador boundary . . . or by rendering development nigh impossible, to take over Labrador altogether.

There may be a way out in respect to the Trans Canada Highway, just as for power export, in that a causeway across the Strait of Belle Isle would constitute an "anglo-Saxon" highway access similar to the proposed North-South cable route. But the expense factor in each could make them prohibitive.

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

June 23th, 1945

Although the fighting in Europe is over, members of the various services from Belleville now overseas will continue to receive cigarettes from the Canadian National War Veterans' regardless of where they are serving or until they come back to Canada.

This is the promise which is going out to servicemen on the C.N.R. cigarette fund drive, together with congratulations for a job well done and well-wishes for an early return home.

With every shipment of cigarettes to the boys overseas goes a letter from the C.N.R. veterans tendering deepest respects and asking that they keep in touch with their organization, that smokes might be continued to be sent.

Nearly two million cigarettes, or a total of 1,825,000 have been sent overseas by the C.N.R. Veterans at a cost of $6,418. Total for 1945 is 265,000 costing $883, while during May 46,500 smokes were forwarded at a cost of $155.

Mr. Brignall was a member of the Methodist firm of Brignall and Thompson.†

Mrs. Mary Arthurs of Toronto spent the week-end here with Mrs. Margaret Young of Bettes Street.

Cheese reached its peak price so far this season at the meeting of the Belleville Cheese Board when Hirk Sprague bid 20 1-16 cents; the bulk of the cheese offered, however, was sold at 20 cents per pound, and W. H. Morton took the balance at 19⅞ cents. White cheese to the amount of 1,000 pound, and 425 boxes of colored cheese were boarded, making a total of 3,600 boxes boarded.

In the recent examination at the Toronto Conservatory of Music, Miss Helen Bird, daughter of Shannonville, a pupil of Miss Bernice E. MacDonald, passed the elementary grade with honors.

W. Flint Jones, a former highly respected resident of Belleville, and at present living in Toronto, died today in the general hospital in that city. For many years Mr. Jones conducted a drygoods store in this city and for a time he was editor of the Daily Ontario.

Mr. Sandy Grant, M.P.P., for East Hastings, was a visitor in town today.

From our file copy at this time in 1865: "Her Majesty Queen Victoria was crowned 37 years ago today, namely, June 28th, 1838. However she has reigned since 1837. Long may she continue to reign over us."

Lord Thomson Had Something Under Kilt

TORONTO (CP)—A gaily-dressed crowd of several thousand surged around Queen Mother Elizabeth while she stood chatting with the men of the Toronto Scottish Regiment Sunday afternoon on the green front campus of the University of Toronto.

Caught up in the crush and momentarily pushed to the sidelines was Canadian-born Lord Thomson of Fleet in the hodden-grey kilt and glengarry bonnet of the regiment of which he is honorary colonel.

He was beaming as he watched the Queen Mother's gracious progress among the ranks.

Then a small boy darted from the crowd and planted himself before the 75-year-old baron.

"Say, do you have anything on under that kilt?" he asked.

"You're darn right I do," replied Lord Thomson. "I never take any chances."

By protocol, soldiers go bare beneath their kilts in Canada and Great Britain.

"He'd be breaking the rules in our regimental mess," one of the Toronto Scottish remarked later. "But he's in the House of Lords so I guess it's all right."

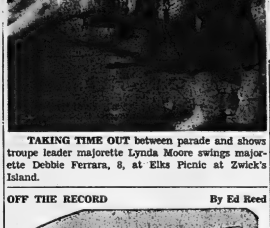
Erhard's Party Wins Saarland

SAARBRUECKEN (Reuters) A close battle in West Germany's general elections in September was foreshadowed today after a narrow victory for the ruling Christian Democrats in a Saarland state election Sunday.

Chancellor Ludwig Erhard's party won the five-party state elections by only two per cent over the Social Democrats, chief opposition forces at both federal and state level.

Erhard, in an election speech last week, said he would regard the result in the coal-mining and steel-making state as a vote of confidence in himself.

The Christian Democrats won 254,113 votes to the Social Democrats' 241,934.



This represented 42.7 per cent of the almost 600,000 votes for the ruling party and 40.7 per cent for the main opposition party.

The Christian Democrats were expected to continue governing Saarland with the coalition support of the third largest party, the Free Democrats, which received 49,524 votes in the balloting.

Elks Delight Youngsters at Annual Picnic

Elks hoofed it around Zwick's Island for hours this weekend drawing crowds of enthusiastic youngsters.

The moppets came to disport themselves for yet another year at the city's Elks Lodge annual picnic.

A parade through downtown Belleville Saturday to the Island park opened the two - day event.

The picnic itself was an active mixture of stage and horse shows, pony and hay rides, bands and majorettes.

Sunday the Elks joined with the Salvation Army for an open-air church service.

Proceeds from the event are used in the Elks' local community service.

12 Lucky Canadians Will Divide $1,200,000 Sweeps

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Twelve lucky Canadians will divide a total of $1,120,000 because they held tickets on the winning horses in Saturday's Irish Derby at The Curragh, Dublin.

Three men and three women will each receive $160,000 for holding tickets on winning Meadow Court, the favorite. Two men had tickets on second - place Convamore, worth $60,000 each, and three men and a woman will get $20,000 for having drawn tickets on Wedding Present, the third-place horse.

Mrs. Hugh McArthur of Toronto, one of the winners, felt so rich she was answering the phone with "finance company?" when reporters called to interview her about her third-place ticket.

Lucien Lafontaine of Gatineau Point, Que., fled his home with his wife and refused any comment on his win of $150,000 for a ticket on Meadow Court.

TURNED DOWN OFFER

Another first - place winner, Marjorie Horton of Hamilton, had the satisfaction of knowing she had turned down an offer Friday to buy half her ticket for $5,000. And she'd already won twice last week at bingo—$75.

Logging driver John Francis of Ladysmith, B.C., said his three children got him out of bed to watch his horse, Wedding Present, come home third and win him $30,000. He said:

"If I had my way I'd still be sleeping."

Immediate plans for using the money ranged from a vacation in California to sending the kids through college. Mrs. McArthur had a practical thought:

"Now I can get the rugs cleaned!" she said.

James Smith of Winnipeg said of the $60,000 he will receive for a ticket on second-place Convamore:

"This will take me off skid row."

Mr. Smith had been unemployed for four years following an industrial accident and has been living on a $114-a-month veteran's allowance.

More than $200,000 will be distributed to 184 Canadians who held tickets on other horses which either did not start the race or did not finish in the money. Each ticket-holder will get about $1,100, depending upon the size of the total pool.

Dorothy Lalonde of Port Credit, Ont., kept her drawn ticket on Meadow Court a secret from her husband until Saturday morning shortly before the race.

She said she used the nom de plume "Gardner" because she bought her ticket just after purchasing an $18 truckload of loam for a new backyard garden for Mr. Lalonde.

WILL QUIT JOB

Collin Smith of Vancouver said he and his wife Carole were finding their good fortune in holding a ticket on Meadow Court "hard to realize", but said he plans to quit his job and use some of the money to see that his daughter and son go to university.

Joe Bob, of the Sugar Cane Indian reserve near Williams Lake in the Cariboo, plans to use some of his $150,000 to build a new home for his mother, Mrs. Josephine Bob, with whom he lives.

He works for the St. Joseph's Mission School and said he will probably donate some of the money to the school.

History of UN One of Crisis After Crisis

Crises have beset the United Nations since its birth 20 years ago this month. In the following first of five articles, Max Harrelson, chief UN correspondent of the Associated Press, tells of some of the crises that shook the organization.

By MAX HARRELSON

UNITED NATIONS (AP)—Inside the rose - hued chamber there with a sunken hush as the Soviet diplomat stuffed his papers into his briefcase and stalked out the door.

The diplomat was Andrei Gromyko, then 37 years old. The date was March 17, 1946. The place was the temporary meeting-room of the UN Security Council at Hunter College, New York City.

By his dramatic walkout Gromyko had brought the infant United Nations—now observing its 20th birthday—face to face with its first major crisis.

Coming as it did at the council's second meeting in the United States, the walkout naturally caused consternation. The Russians already had cast their first veto in London a month earlier, and it was clear that the United Nations was off to a rocky start.

Writing later in his memoirs, former secretary - general Trygve Lie described Gromyko's action as a "sensation." Many wondered at the time whether this was the end of the United Nations.

WARNING CHILLS

But Gromyko led his delegation back to the council afternoon sessions. Lie and others correctly tagged the incident for what it really was: A chill forewarning of the cold war to come.

Except for the fact that the walkout was a "first," it was of no major consequence. It was overshadowed by many other boycotts and other defiant gestures which had far more effect upon the organization.

The first walkout was simply a protest against a council refusal to delay debate on a Soviet-Iranian dispute. In 1950 the Russians carried out a five-month boycott of all UN bodies in protest against the organization's refusal to seat Communist China.

And in more recent years the Soviet bloc has used the United Nations into its present financial crisis by refusing to pay assessments for UN peacekeeping operations.

Not all the organization's problems, however, originated with the Russians. One of the major crises in the early years was precipitated by the General Assembly's approval of the Palestine partition plan.

ARABS WALK OUT

This time the Soviet Union and the United States stood together. It was the six Arab delegations which walked out after the vote was taken on Nov. 29, 1947, at Flushing Meadows.

Many a crisis, including an Israeli-Arab war, grew out of this historic decision. Since then the Security Council has held 219 meetings on Middle East disputes—to say nothing of the hundreds of General Assembly meetings on Palestine refugees and other Israeli-Arab problems.

There were many other big days that stand out: The entry of the United Nations into the Korean War; the 1956 vote to establish the first UN peacekeeping force to deal with the Suez crisis; the creation of a UN Congo force; the day Nikita Khrushchev shocked the assembly by pounding his shoe on the table; the day Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjold died in an African plane crash, plunging the organization into a state of shock.

SOME AMUSE

The United Nations also has had its share of colorful personalities and amusing incidents.

Fidel Castro, dressed in his fa m o u s olive - drab army fatigues, delivered an address lasting 4½ hours. Indian delegate V. K. Krishna Menon fainted at the Security Council table. A black cat walked across the stage while Anthony Eden was addressing the assembly in Paris. The Shah of Iran started reading the wrong speech in the assembly. Amid laughter, he calmly put it back in his pocket, took out the one intended for the occasion and remarked: "Wrong speech."

No one can forget the showmanship of the wily Soviet diplomat, Andrei Vishinsky, and his use of proverbs to vanquish his foes in debate.

Tomorrow: The veto.

Queen Mother

horse brought the West its first win in the Queen's Plate premier event of Canadian thoroughbred racing. She presented the $5 Queen's guinea—worth about $150—to owner Paul Oliver.

Much of her visit was devoted to the kilted Scottish, to whom she has been colonel-in-chief since 1937 and to whom she presented their old colors in 1953 when she visited here as the Queen with King George VI.

On Thursday night, she attended a dinner in honor of the regiment and — in an off-the-cuff interjection in a set speech — told the guests she had fallen in love with Canada since the young royal couple of 1939 took Canadian hearts by storm.

She presented colors to the Toronto Scottish at an outdoor ceremony Friday night, and Sunday afternoon she attended a service at Knox Presbyterian Church—the regimental church —at which the old standards were placed solemnly in the custody of the church.

MEETS REGIMENT

Apart from the service, she had two get - togethers with members of her regiment. She attended with the officers at its armories and met the officers' wives, and later in the day inspected the unit at a march-past with Toronto - born Lord Strathcona of Fleet, its honorary colonel.

Informality bit a new high when the Queen Mother took the salute as the regiment broke ranks and civilians scurried around among the troops while she walked among them. Eventually, the soldiers formed a ring and she circled about inside it, chatting with many of the kilties.

During Sunday, too, she paid an unscheduled call at city hall, a new $38,000,000 structure of unorthodox twin - tower design that has been generating firm opinions pro and con since it was conceived almost a year ago.

The Queen Mother apparently did not take one side or the other. Mayor Philip Givens later said she pronounced it "breathtaking" but added it must have produced controversy. The mayor said her 1 is certainly had and that the controversy was still going on.

LIKES ART SHOW

However, the Queen Mother described as a "magnificent idea" the use of a broad promenade at the foot of the twin towers for outdoor art exhibits, a couple of which were on when she dropped in. She chatted with sculptor Mrs. Rae Plaunt Kinnear and painter Jock Macdonald.

Everything went without a hitch throughout the visit — almost. The Queen Mother was waiting with an assemblage in Knox Church for the old colors to arrive and to be turned over when some bars of rock-and-roll music seeped out of the church's amplifier system.

A spectator with a transistor radio outside the church had stepped too close to the microphone turned on for the sound of the police band playing in the church door with his claymore.

Metropolitan Toronto police averted a mishap earlier at St. James Anglican Cathedral, where Her Majesty attended morning service. A tube in the public address system caught fire shortly before Very Rev. W. J. Gilling was to begin his sermon but the police replaced it quickly.

WEATHER IS KIND

All through the trip, the sun shone brightly — southern Ontario is in a dry and hot spell— and it gave the Queen Mother a free hand with bright finery. Sunday she turned up in a pale lime yellow gauze for church, and at plane time she had a splashy outfit of printed silk on shades of pale, pale emerald, turquoise blue and lemon, topped with a white and yellow toque.

She stuck closely to this city through most of the trip, taking only one 60-mile jaunt to Port Hope to have lunch with the retired Mr. Massey, who became a close friend during his wartime stay in London as Canadian high commissioner.

On that trip, too, she dropped in on the National Stud Farm at Oshawa operated by her host for the trip, millionaire sportsman E. P. Taylor. She inspected some of the country's top horseflesh, including Northern Dancer, winner of the Kentucky Derby and Preakness last year.

When it came time to leave Sunday night, she told Lieutenant - Governor Earl Rowe, last to talk with her before she entered the plane, that she had thoroughly enjoyed the trip and felt better than when she arrived.

Mr. Rowe said later he invited her to come back soon and, in turn, was invited to call on her soon.

Is There Hazard in Use Of Birth Control Pills?

By FRANK CAREY
AP SCIENCE WRITER

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. government is planning its first close look at a question of vital interest to millions of women:

Is there any long-term hazard, such as the possibility of cancer, in the prolonged use of oral birth control pills?

And Dr. James A. Shannon, director of the National Institutes of Health, who disclosed plans for the study, says that until the question is settled one way or the other, women may be taking a chance by using the pills.

But Shannon is not recommending that use of the pills be curbed in the meantime.

And medical experts of the Food and Drug Administration s.y this:

During the four years since the pill first went on the market in the United States, nothing has happened—in the nature of proven, serious adverse physical reactions—to warrant withdrawal of these drugs off the market.

Up to here virtually all clinical research into effects of the pill has been done by private doctors with the support of drug companies that developed the contraceptive or of voluntary organizations are concerned with family limitation. But some top-flight researchers and biologists have been involved in the explorations.

PREVENT OVULATION

Meanwhile, at least 6,000,000 women throughout the world, nearly 4,000,000 of them in the United States, are estimated to be using the drugs.

The pills work by preventing ovulation—the release of eggs from the ovaries—and millions there can be no conception. They do this by setting up a kind of state of baleful pregnancy.

Here are some highlights of experience to date:

1. Eight different preparations—all based on the same principle—have now been approved by the FDA for marketing.

2. The drugs are rated as virtually 100-per-cent effective in preventing conception.

3. Various studies indicate clearly that if a woman pills-taker decides she wants to have a child—and stops taking he pills—she can become pregnant and have children. All such reported births have apparently been normal. There is evidence that fertility is increased for women discontinuing the pills.

4. The pill is big business. Since the first preparation was approved for prescription in 1960, U.S. sales of oral contraceptives have increased by better than 50 per cent each year to an estimated $400,000 level in 1964. During 1964, an estimated 120,000 American women started the parade of pill-takers each month.

5. All the companies grant that a certain percentage of pill-taking women (up to 25 per cent according to most of the firms) experience some adverse side-effects. The studies say these are not serious effects, and usually become lessened after a few months.

6. From time to time, concern has been expressed by some doctors that the drugs might cause much more serious short-term effects — such as cerebral strokes and thrombophlebitis—blood-clotting in the veins of the legs—which can sometimes result in a fatal embolism in the brain or lungs.

NO EVIDENCE

But the Food and Drug Administration, among others, say there is as yet no evidence to support such fears, although the agency grants that neither is there definite proof to the contrary.

Controversy over the pill has also flared in Britain where the Family Planning Association has announced plans to examine the records of 40,000 British women taking the oral contraceptive to see if it can throw any new light on the thrombophlebitis question. All physicians in Britain have been urged to report cases of strokes occurring among women taking the pills.

Dr. Shannon, the NIH chief, was testifying before a House of Representatives appropriations subcommittee when the committee chairman, representative John E. Fogarty (Dem., R.I.), raised the question whether "people really are taking a chance as regards long-term hazards of oral contraceptives."

"I believe so," replied Shannon. "There are a great many studies on experimental animals that indicate that they (the drugs) probably can be taken without hazard, but there has not been adequate human exploration to be certain. These long-term studies will have to be conducted over a number of years."

Shannon said the subject has been of particular concern to the National Cancer Institute, that an advisory group of the institute has advised "undertaking long-term studies of a substantial number of patients to keep watch on the consequences of present birth-control methods."

STUDY REPORTS

Previously, in testimony before the same subcommittee, Dr. Joseph T. Sadusk, Jr., medical director of the FDA, said a number of reports have appeared in medical literature "showing that cancer may be produced in a species-susceptible types of animals that are especially bred and given certain of these (birth control) hormones."

Inter-American Peace Body Being Advocated by Brazil

By LIONEL WALSH

RIO DE JANEIRO (Reuters) — Brazil, spurred by the crisis in the Dominican Republic, is taking the initiative in formulating a new concept of interdependence among countries of the Western Hemisphere.

It is advocating the formation of a permanent inter-American peace force to intervene when there is a real threat of a Communist takeover by subversive means in any American state.

An opportunity for debating such a force will come at the special inter-American conference of foreign ministers opening here Aug. 6.

Political commentators here are talking of a 20th century Monroe Doctrine directed against indirect aggression in the Americas through internal subversion by Communist powers.

Trial balloons have been floated in recent weeks by both President Humberto Castello Branco and Foreign Minister Vasco Leitao Da Cunha, stating Brazilian responsibility in preserving peace may be turned here the "ideological frontiers" of the Western world.

ESTABLISH MACHINERY

Leitao Da Cunha, in a recent speech at Teresina, capital of the northeastern state of Piaui, said Brazil believes the American states must somehow establish machinery that will work quickly and effectively for an inter-American method of collective security, without the need for intervention by the United States, as happened in the Dominican Republic, or United Nations action.

Afro-Asian diplomats in Rio privately expressed concern when the foreign ministers, in a recent interview with the evening newspaper O Globo, said the UN Security Council should not have intervened in the Dominican crisis, unless the Organization of American States concluded that the regional organization was incapable of resolving the problem.

They considered this view damaging to the authority of United Nations and saw it as setting a dangerous precedent.

Some diplomats were particularly disturbed at the foreign minister's quoted statement that "to find the Santo Domingo question before the United Nations means to hand its solution to the African and Asiatic countries who are very interested in entering our continent without the slightest claim to do so."

This OAS commission now in Santo Domingo and composed of the representatives of the United States, Brazil and El Salvador, could point the way to how a political directorate for such a force would operate, according to present Brazilian thinking.

U.S. Policies In Two Areas Are Criticized

PORT ELGIN, Ont. (CP) U.S. policies in two troubled areas of American political concern—Viet Nam and the Dominican Republic—were criticized by delegates attending the quarterly sessions of the Canadian United Auto Workers Union council here.

The weekend meetings held on Lake Huron were attended by some 130 delegates from across Canada, representing the UAW's 80,000 Canadian members.

In a statement issued in Windsor Sunday night, the council said it had urged a negotiated settlement in the conflict in Viet Nam and condemned the U.S. for "gunboat diplomacy" in the Dominican Republic.

The council unanimously agreed to oppose the U.S.-Canada "free trade plan" for automobiles and auto parts unless adequate compensation is paid to workers thrown out of work by the plan.

George Burt, Canadian director of the UAW, said the union "wants at least the benefits our American brothers will get under the plan. Our goal is full compensation for workers laid off because of the plan and price cuts for Canadians which reflect the savings which the industry will gain."

Commenting on reports that the Canadian government was to search Europe and Asia for skilled tradesmen, the council called on federal and provincial governments to "pressure Canadian industry to accept apprenticeship programs and train our own Canadian youth for jobs in Canadian industry."

monton. About $12,000 in mutilated money was recovered.

The aftermath of the robbery shook the Vancouver police department.

SHOOTS SELF

Vancouver policeman Leonard Hogue shot himself after killing his wife and six children in their Coquitlam home near Vancouver. Police announced that he had been investigated behind the scenes in connection with the theft.

Police said other members of the force also had been investigated in connection with the theft and the robbery of a bank in 1962.

Last week Mayor William Rathie of Vancouver announced that the city has hired a lawyer to advise whether charges should be laid as a result of investigation by the police commission.

The bulk of the stolen money was found in a garage in Victoria two weeks ago.

SEEK HOUSE PRIZE

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian Lumbermen's Association announced Saturday nearly 400 architects have registered in its national competition seeking the best design for The Canadian House-of-the-Future. A $10,000 top prize will be presented the designer whose award-winning home will be built at the lumbermen's site at the Montreal world's fair.

Montreal Bus Strike Settled

MONTREAL (CP) — Striking employees of the Provincial Transport Co. voted early today to accept revised terms for a new two-year labor contract, hours after rejecting a previous offer.

The employees, meeting in a hall in east-central Montreal, waited through the wee hours of the morning after the earlier rejection while Jean - Robert Gauthier, a chief union negotiator, made several telephone calls, including at least one to Paul Desmarais, president of the PTC.

A PTC spokesman said the buses will probably start running again late today.

The revised contract in its latest form offers a pay increase of 15 a week as of July 1 at which time wages for bus drivers will go up to $70 from $55 for the basic rate. The rate will go up again on July 1, 1966 to $75.

The previous offer, rejected in a show of hands several hours before, would have provided $65 a week from this July 1 and $75 by July 1, 1967. Negotiators for the Confederation of National Trade Unions had urged the employees to accept this offer.

Some 800 employees, including drivers, ticket-handlers and garage workers, went on strike June 12. All PTC buses have remained idle since that time, forcing some 30,000 commuters in the Montreal area to find other means of travel.

New Kiln Will Double Cement Firm Output

PICTON (Staff) — A new cement kiln with an annual capacity of two and a half million barrels was scheduled to go into operation at the Lake Ontario Portland Cement Co. Ltd. plant at Picton today.

Original plans called for the new unit to go into operation at noon this morning, but delays developed and the kick-off was set back for later in the day.

The new cement kiln is the first phase of a $7,500,000 expansion program at the Picton plant. Construction on a second phase to cost $1,300,000 is expected to get underway almost immediately with a completion date set for next May.

The new kiln will boost the plant's annual capacity to five million barrels.

More than 100 men were employed in the construction of the new Picton kiln which is equipped with an electro-static dust collector making operation of the kiln almost completely dust-free.

Gregory Clark Given Medal For His Humor

ORILLIA (CP) — Two hundred guests tucked away roast beef at the Leacock Memorial Dinner Saturday night and then sat back to see Gregory Clark receive the 1964 Leacock Medal for Humor. But the medal was missing.

Instead, Toronto radio personality Gordon Sinclair, who was to have made the presentation, reached into his pocket and handed Mr. Clark a 25-cent piece as a symbol of the award.

"Do you want this back?" Mr. Clark asked amid laughter.

Mr. Sinclair explained that the medal, designed by Elizabeth Wynn Wood of Orillia, hadn't arrived in time for the dinner. But he couldn't say when it would turn up.

The Toronto broadcaster described Mr. Clark as a veteran writer "who has probably never had an insulting letter in his life."

ASTONISHED BY AWARD

Mr. Clark, 74, who lives in Toronto, said in reply he was astonished to have been picked as winner of the medal and added he didn't regard himself as an expert on the subject of humor.

He paid tribute for much of his early success to having worked with the late Jimmy Frise, cartoonist with The Star Weekly magazine for some 30 years.

He went on to give what he called "The Clark Theory of Laughter," and man's evolutionary process.

"When man discovered laughter he had to stand in an erect posture to laugh," he said. The more he laughed, the more he had to stand upright because a person or animal on all fours could not laugh without physical harm."

The 1963 medal winner, Harry J. Boyle of Toronto, said that he called his inaugural speech as mythical mayor of the mythical town of Mariposa—a post he assumed last year. Mariposa is Leacock's name for Orillia.

The ceremonies were completed when Ralph Curry of Peterborough, Ont., director of the Stephen Leacock home here, proposed the traditional toast to the late Canadian humorist.

Fractures Hip In Crash at Mountain View

PICTON (Staff) — Wilfred MacLeod, Toronto, is in Belleville General Hospital with a fractured hip and multiple abrasions following a two-car accident on No. 14 Highway, at Mountain View Sunday morning.

Mr. MacLeod was thrown out of his car and was flung along the highway for 40 feet before rolling into the ditch.

A passenger in the MacLeod car and Mrs. Ila Clark, driver of the second car involved, escaped injury. The cars, proceeding in opposite direction, collided near the foot of Mt. View hill.

THINK THEY'LL LAST

HAMILTON, Bermuda (CP-AP) — A United States Navy tanker delivered 4,254,286 gallons of drinking water to Bermuda last week and the island government believes it can weather the rest of the summer, despite a prolonged drought. A few scattered showers during the week have helped farmers and householders build up water supplies, and a water distillation plant is in use.

IODE Bases Meet on Area Conservation

MARMORA — A talk on "Conservation in our area" was a feature of the June meeting of Marmora Chapter I.O.D.E. held at the summer home of Mrs. Vaughn Glover on Crowe Lake.

The Regent, Mrs. G. J. McIlwraith, whose husband was first chairman of the Crowe River Conservation Authority when it was established in 1953, handled the topic. She pointed out that, while conservation may take various forms, in this area it means water conservation. The Crowe River Authority is principally interested in dams and water levels. The Weir dam near Crowe Bay, now being repaired and rebuilt, is to keep the carp out of the Crowe River system.

She also mentioned some of the events "of centennial flavor" that are taking place: Miss Grace Warren is contributing historical data from this district to a book being prepared by Mr. Carl Bateman; a public meeting of interest to all is to be held in the Town Hall in the near future; a caravan on wheels illustrating Canadian life in 1867, has chosen Marmora as one of its 50 mile stops across Ontario on a trip in 1967 which is to end in Ottawa on July 1st.

Routine reports and business were attended to prior to the summer recess. The next meeting is planned as a pot-luck supper at the home of Mrs. Helen Maynes on September 29th. Members will knit squares for a "chanticleer afghan," as a summer project.

ASSURES OF TIES

GUELPH (CP) — Agriculture Minister W. A. Stewart says he has been assured that the University of Guelph will keep the same strong ties with rural Ontario as it has with the Ontario Agricultural College, the Ontario Veterinary College, and Macdonald Institute. He was addressing the annual meeting of the Ontario Veterinary Association. He said 800,000 chemistry of a new $4,000,000 building on the campus.

I'LL BE BACK!

Here is one of those absolutely superb ideas that is just as simple but every bit as effective as the common safety pin!

Dear SUSANNA: The same small kitchen cracks in painted plaster surfaces seem to always show up again a few months after the room has been decorated . . . and there you are, with a freshly painted room plus a fine wiggly line down the wall or across the ceiling to live with until it is time to re-do the decor.

Not any more. Here is what happened to me. We were having a party Saturday night, and while I was putting the finishing touches on the living room that same old crack that runs from the bottom of the window sill to the top of the baseboard hit me right in the eye.

Acting on impulse I guess, I ran up to my daughter's room and selected a piece of colored chalk about the same shade of pale green as the downstairs' walls. Starting right at the top of the crack I worked the chalk down through it with short firm strokes and finished up by brushing the excess powder off the edges with a soft cloth. You'd simply never know now there had ever been a break in the plaster. Believe me, armed with that box of colored chalk, my whole house is going to get a going over Monday morning! — Mrs. G. Taylor

Ho Talk? No. Chalk Talk! — SUSANNA

TRIAL SEPARATION

Dear Susanna: Often we need to get rid of something such as meringue, and it is sometimes a few days before we have a use for the yokes.

To keep these yokes fresh and moist during that time, place them in a small container and set it in the refrigerator. Drain the water off carefully when you are ready to use the yokes. — Mrs. W. Kelly.

IODE Bases Meet on Area Conservation

MARMORA — A talk on "Conservation in our area" was a feature of the June meeting of Marmora Chapter I.O.D.E. held at the summer home of Mrs. Vaughn Glover on Crowe Lake.

The Regent, Mrs. G. J. McIlridge, whose husband was first chairman of the Crowe River Conservation Authority when it was established in 1958, handled the topic. She pointed out that, while conservation may take various forms, in this area it means water conservation. The Crowe River Authority is principally interested in dams and water levels. The Weir dam near Crowe Bay, now being repaired and rebuilt, is to keep the carp out of the Crown River system.

She also mentioned some of the events "of centennial flavor" that are taking place: Miss Grace Warren is contributing historical data from this district to a book being prepared by Mr. Carl Bateman; a public meeting of interest to all is to be held in the Town Hall in the near future; a caravan on wheels illustrating Canadian life in 1867, has chosen Marmora as one of its 50 stops across Ontario on a trip in 1967 which is to end in Ottawa on July 1st.

Routine reports and business were attended to prior to the summer recess. The next meeting is planned as a pot-luck supper at the home of Mrs. Helen Maynes on September 20th. Members will knit squares for a "chenilleor afghan," as a summer project.

PEOPLE READ PERRY

The 50 books recounting lawyer Perry Mason's activities have sold about 85,000,000 copies.

THINK THEY'LL LAST

HAMILTON, Bermuda (CP-AP) — A United States Navy tanker delivered 4,234,286 gallons of drinking water to Bermuda last week and the island government believes it can weather the rest of the summer, despite a prolonged drought. A few scattered showers during the week have helped householders build up water supplies, and a water distillation plant is in use.

Susanna's Family Fare

I'LL BE BACK!

Here is one of those absolutely superb ideas that is just as simple but every bit as effective as the common safety pin!

Dear Susanna: The same small hairline cracks in painted plaster surfaces seem to always show up again a few months after the room has been decorated — and there you are, with a freshly painted room plus a fine wiggly line down the wall or across the ceiling to live with until it is time to re-do the decor.

Not any more. Here is what happened to me. We were having a party Saturday night, and while I was putting the finishing touches on the living room that same old crack that runs from the bottom of the window sill to the top of the baseboard hit me right in the eye.

Acting on impulse I guess, I ran up to my daughter's room and selected a piece of colored chalk about the same shade of pale green as the downstairs' walls. Starting right at the top of the crack I worked the chalk down through it with short firm strokes and finished up by brushing the excess powder off the edges with a soft cloth. You'd simply never know now there had ever been a break in the plaster. Believe me, armed with that box of colored chalk, my whole house is going to get a going over Monday morning! — Mrs. G. Taylor

Shop Talk? No. Chalk Talk! — SUSANNA

TRIAL SEPARATION

Dear Susanna: Often we need egg substitutes for something such as meringue, and it is sometimes a few days before we have a use for the yolks.

To keep these yokes fresh and moist during that time, place them in a small container and set it in the refrigerator. Drain the water off carefully when you are ready to use the yokes. — Mrs. W. Kelly.

Successful Living

Role of Fairy Prince Demands Great Devotion

DEAR DORIS — I'm 39. I've been keeping company with a woman who is separated from her husband. She and her one child live with a married brother.

She always meets me away from the house and hurries to get home before the brother comes from work at midnight. She's afraid of him. One night when a friend of mine took her out the brother followed him home after and even side-swiped his car.

I think he's some kind of a nut. She says he has a terrible temper and might do something to her little boy if she runs around too much. I said she should get an apartment. I presume her husband supplies her with money.

DORIS CLARK

We have declared our love for each other. Do you think I am too old to cope with a family? I've never met the little boy. — BEFUDDLED.

DEAR BEFUDDLED — Better be sure of your devotion before you attempt the role of fairy prince and rescue your lady love from the villain of the piece.

You have no chance to see her in her own environment; and you have never met the boy. His liking for you and yours for him are going to mean a lot to your marriage. I agree about the apartment.

But what about the little matter of a divorce?

DEAR DORIS — I am making some high grades in high school and should finish Grade 13 this month. I'm terribly anxious to go to university but my father has had very heavy expenses with my sister's illness and doesn't know how he'll ever find any money for my fees.

I'd be glad to look for some part time work but I know this won't be enough. Would I be able to get a loan from the government? Who would I ask? — EIGHTY PER CENT.

DEAR EIGHTY — Canada needs every trained brain she can get. For this reason there are government loans for up to $1,000 in any one year, for a student whose marks mean he can qualify.

You have to be a Canadian citizen or a resident of Canada for one year with plans to remain here. You are expected to start repaying six months after graduation.

Confidential to HEARTBROKEN — If you are exercising until you get dizzy and eating until you "nearly bust," I'd say you are indeed desperate to gain weight.

Slow down a little. If ten exercises make you dizzy, do two. Next day do three. Make it gradual. If eating makes you too full, eat less but oftener. Eat the things that put on weight. Rome wasn't built in a day.

Your very desperation suggests to me that you are a highly tense, impatient person — the very things which discourage the body in trying to take on a curve or two.

To ROOMATIZ — Nothing could be more foolish than to try a so-called magic remedy for rheumatics. Not only will it do no good; it will waste precious time. Before you discover that someone has handed you a lemon, your creaking joints and some of your stiffness may have become permanent. Send a stamped, self-addressed envelope for the leaflet "If You Have Arthritis, Take Prompt Action," which outlines six important points.

DEAR DORIS — I am 14. The only time my parents are not fighting is when they are not together.

My father comes loafing in drunk and this starts another fight. I need money for school but when I ask for it he chews my head off and says he hasn't got any, but the same night he can come home loaded. I know for a fact the liquor isn't free.

He always talks about how awful it is when teen-agers get drunk but he sure doesn't set a good example. My mother doesn't help. She thinks my friends are a bunch of gangsters but they are a bunch of level headed kids.

I can't stay at home any longer or I will go insane. — MANDI.

DEAR MANDI — All too often quarrelling parents ignore the hurt they cause to listening ears. You are thinking more clearly than they are.

There is help for both you and them — if they'll go seek it. I'd suggest you call the Children's Aid Society, 63 Moira Street, Belleville, which counsels on family problems as well as when children are involved, for an appointment. Tell the social worker there just what you told me.

DEAR DORIS — I will be attending a reception for a celebrity. When I go along the receiving line :

(1) Do I remove my gloves to shake hands?
(2) Will someone introduce me?
(3) What do I say?
(4) After the line-up, then what? — CLUELESS.

DEAR CLUELESS :
(1) No.
(2) Probably. If not, you may introduce yourself.
(3) "How do you do?" Whether you say more than that depends on how long the waiting line is or whether the guest of honor directs any special question to you.
(4) Circulate. Have some tea. Approach anyone who looks lonely and approachable, and introduce yourself. Many who attend such functions do not know one another.

(Doris cannot begin to answer all your questions in the column. To make sure of your reply, remember to enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.)

IT'S FASHIONABLE

MONCTON (CP) — A large proportion of youth begin smoking at an early age because it is the fashionable thing to do, Mrs. A. J. Carmel W. I. Tours Country Court House

Mrs. Duane Martin, convener of citizenship, was in charge of the June meeting of the Carmel Women's Institute, which was in the form of visiting citizenship day at the County Court House.

Judge G. F. Smith of Napanee, took oath of allegiance from more than 30 new Canadians. Each new Canadian was presented with a Bible or Testament from the Upper Canada Bible Society and a certificate and maple leaf pin from the St. Julien Chapter of the IODE. Judge Smith in addressing the new Canadians reminded them of their rights and responsibilities as Canadians. Mayor Ellis extended greetings to the new Canadians.

Following the ceremony members toured the county Court House. Mr. Ross Bateman, county treasurer, explained the council chamber, which consists of six deputy reeves, the Warden and the reeve. In the month of January at a caucus which is secret, there are six sessions of council that day. Among the 33 members of county council:

The roads and bridges, secondary roadways, finance, public affairs and health home committees meet there. There are 212 patients at the county home, 15 dependents, all the rest practically support themselves.

The city has 55 patients there, the county has the rest. The hospital committee has agreed to offer assistance jointly with the county. The new hospital is to be completed in three years' time.

Mr. Ross Bailey, sheriff, explained the court which, he said is carried on in a dignified manner. He explained the workings of Supreme Court; a judge comes down from Toronto, they meet four times a year and a different judge each time. As well as citizenship court, they have an adoption court.

Mr. Bill Hurst, registrar of county deeds, showed members through the land registry and explained how the record of each block of land was kept, deeds, mortgages, etc. A most interesting to all members present.

Following the citizenship ceremony, and a most interesting tour of the County Court House the ladies journeyed to Carmel church hall where the baking team of the copper contest served a tasty dinner.

After dinner, Mrs. Jack Clark, vice-president, took charge of the business part of the meeting and for the time it was decided to have a short course on choosing and using of fabrics, this fall; also to have a bake sale in August, at Oak Lake. Mrs. Charles Hubbard and Mrs. Allison and her assistants for preparing the dinner and Mrs. Duane Martin who arranged the visit of citizenship day and the tour of the court house.

TWO-LOAF SUMMER FRUIT CAKE

In the summer of 1958 I gave here a fruit cake and it was ever so popular with you.

Now I have made another light fruit cake — but this time the light fruit cake better was divided. To one half I added red cherries; to the other half sliced green cherries and light raisins. Thus I had two beautiful loaves with lovely fruit suspended in the poundcake-like batter. These keep and freeze well and slice wafer-thin when cold from the refrigerator.

Lamb Meat Loaf; Caper Sauce; Duchess Potatoes; Parsley-Buttered New Whole Carrots; Curly Endive Salad with Chopped Olive Mayonnaise; Toasted Bran Muffins; Nutmeg Custard Sauce; Tea.

TWO-LOAF SUMMER FRUIT CAKE:

1 1/3 cups butter (do not substitute), 1 1/3 cups granulated sugar, 4 large eggs, 3 cups sifted all-purpose flour, ½ teaspoon salt, 1 1/3 cups fruit — sliced red and sliced green cherries and light raisins (divided — see below), 2 teaspoons freshly grated lemon rind.

In your large heater bowl cream the butter until it is fluffy and pale. Add the sugar and continue creaming until it looks whipped — about 5 minutes at high speed in electric beater or 300 strokes by hand. Now add 1 egg at a time, beating between each addition until eggs are incorporated.

Add the salt to the sifted flour and add them to the batter along with the lemon rind. Remove beater and stir until smoothly blended.

Remove half of batter to another bowl. To one-half of batter add 2/3 cup sliced well-drained and dried maraschino cherries and fold them in. To other half of batter add 1/3 cup sliced well-drained and dried green maraschino cherries and 1/3 cup light Sultana raisins and fold them in. Have ready two loaf pans measuring 7 x 5 x 2¾" or 8½ x 4½ x 3" —these should be buttered, then lined with double wax paper, also buttered, which extends above tops of pans to facilitate lifting out. Turn red cherry batter into one loaf pan and, green cherry and raisin batter into the other loaf pan. Put large flat pan in bottom of oven with ¾" boiling water in it. Place cakes in centre of oven and bake at 300 deg. Fahr. about 1½ hours — but test for doneness by touching centre tops with fingertip to be sure they are firm. Tops will be pale gold all over. Let cakes remain in pans 5 minutes then loosen sides carefully with a thin-bladed knife and lift cakes from pans and cool on cake racks. Do not remove paper. When cool, store in refrigerator to firm up cakes, for at least 24 hours before slicing, wrapped in double wax paper or plastic bags. Or freeze, carefully wrapped. Slices excellently.

ST. MARK'S ANGLICAN W.A.

BONARLAW — The June meeting of St. Mark's Anglican W.A., Bonarlaw, was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Burkitt with 11 members and two visitors present.

Mr. Stewart took part in the devotion exercises, and also gave a short talk on the Phillips' translation of the New Testament, which he believes the young people will find easier to understand and so become more interested.

The treasurer gave a rather lengthy account of the flances. The members are justly proud of having purchased in the new tables, table linen, dishes and spoons for these tables.

A report of the proceeds from a wedding was also given. The Dorcas secretary reported that the Arctic bale had been sent. She also asked for co-operation in some changes she wished to make in the plans for the bazaar. It was moved that all outstanding bills be paid. The extra-cent-a-day collection was gathered. Arrangements were made for the serving of refreshments. Mr. Stewart closed this portion of the meeting.

A short program of two readings by Mrs. J. Priest and Mrs. H. Jones followed.

Mrs. Barlow thanked all who had co-operated and helped with all the recent undertakings.

The hostess serfed lunch and a social half hour was spent.

This is the last meeting until September. The August meeting is in the form of a picnic.

Ann Landers

Taxi Driver Does Not Like Racing Stork to Hospital

DEAR ANN LANDERS — In your column you told a woman who is expecting her first child that she should not beg her husband to go to the hospital with her if he does not want to. You said he would probably faint and get in the way, and it would be better to leave him at home. Then you said, "Call a taxi."

Please, Ann, don't give advice like that. I am a taxi driver and no fare gives us drivers heart failure like a woman alone who is on the way to the hospital to have a baby.

I've been driving a cab for 20 years. I've had three women like that and each one took ten years off my life. The first one begged me to let her sit in front. When she got a pain she grabbed hold of my arm — or the steering wheel. We almost hit a pedestrian.

I drove the second lady two years later. She sat in back. Every three minutes she beat me on the head with her purse and said, "Can't you go faster?" Finally a squad car spotted me speeding, which was a Godsend. They gave us the siren all the way to the hospital and we made it just in time.

I wasn't so lucky with the third lady. She had her baby right in my cab, five blocks from the hospital. I was a nervous wreck for three days. But she named the baby after me so it wasn't all bad.

From now on, Ann, tell your pregnant ladies to call an ambulance if their husbands won't take them to the hospital because ambulance have attendants who are set up for that stuff. — MAC.

ANN LANDERS

DEAR MAC — Thanks. I will.

DEAR ANN LANDERS — Don't you feel that a woman of 40 who has been making a living for her children for 15 years is entitled to a few minutes of privacy with a very special gentleman?

I've been going with a fine man for two years. My sons (17 and 16 years of age) will not leave us alone together even for one minute. When Mr. Wonderful comes over (usually about 9:30 p.m. because we both work late) my sons begin to press their pants or wash their hair. Sometimes they haul out their guitars and begin to practice. Or they will do research for term papers which make it necessary to parade in and out of the library until 2:00 a.m. — if Mr. Wonderful stays that late. When they have exhausted all other excuses they drag out pots and pans and cook.

My younger children go to bed at 8:00 and they are no problem, but the older ones refuse to turn in until my guest has left. Please tell me what to do. — LITTLE BROTHERS ARE WATCHING

DEAR WATCHED — Don't ask your sons — order them to get their pants pressing, hair washing, research and cooking finished by 9:30. Tell them when you entertain you don't want them hanging around any more than they want you hanging around when they have guests.

Your sons are competing with Mr. Wonderful and winning. If they become too obnoxious Mr. Wonderful might just drop you — and I wouldn't blame him.

Confidential to RED EYES AND WET PILLOW — Sorry, Lollypop. If there aren't enough chairs in your house, ask your mother to buy some floor cushions. A 15-year-old girl should not be sitting on her boy friend's lap — even if they are going steady.

Madoc Art Centre Opens Season Over Weekend

MADOC (Special) — With emphasis on an intimate folksiness, the Madoc Art Centre marked its 1965 season with a two-day festival during the weekend.

While visitors strolled among art exhibits, a succession of folk singers, dancers, instrumentalists—and puppets—entertained from a stage at the Centre's small and natural amphitheatre.

For the Centre's directors, Roy Cadwell and his wife, Priscilla, the event keynoted another season of instruction for students of the arts on open-air location five miles east of here on Highway 7.

Before it closes, October 15, the Centre will have dispensed instruction in the art realms from water and oil painting to ballet.

Companion courses range from the spiritually intellectual—Hatha Yoga—to the commercially secular—investments, retail management.

Saturday's festival events drew an appreciative, if light stream of visitors.

The entertainment ranged from folksingers, La Rena and Gordon Clark and 13-year-old Debbie Edwards of Trenton—to group entertainment—the Wagon Wheels Square Dancers from Toronto.

The crowd also heard a lecture from Irene Jones, Belle Air, Florida, recently returned from U.S. Peace Corps missions in South America.

Highlight of the show was staged on the Black River, coursing through Centre property, where youthful aquanauts from Kirk Kove Ski Show stage a canoe-tipping contest.

Dorion Report Ready to Be Presented

OTTAWA (CP) — The report of the Dorion inquiry into allegations of attempted bribery and coercion by federal ministerial aides is expected to be handed to the government today.

It may be made public today or Tuesday.

Chief Justice Frederic Dorion of the Quebec Superior Court conducted a lengthy public investigation last winter into the allegations of influence-peddling that sought the release on bail of accused dope trafficker Lucien Rivard after he was picked up for extradition to the U.S.

Rivard broke jail in Montreal March 2, while the inquiry was going on.

REPORTS BRIBE OFFER

Pierre Lamontagne, young Montreal lawyer representing the U.S. justice department in the Rivard case, told the inquiry that he was offered $20,000 by Raymond Denis, then executive assistant to the immigration minister, if he would agree to bail. He said he turned down the offer but didn't report it to the RCMP until three weeks later. Denis denied making the offer.

In the interval, Lamontagne testified, he had calls about he Rivard case from Guy Lord and Andre Letendre, aides to Justice Minister Favreau, and from Guy Rouleau, then parliamentary secretary to Prime Minister Pearson.

That was the core of the case although other issues arose, including a reported offer of funds for the Liberal party if Rivard was turned loose and the manner in which Mr. Favreau handled the resultant report of the RCMP investigators.

pealed for "time and trust" from the people.

She told reporters that if the Dutch government had not approved her wedding to Claus she would not have gone through with it.

The queen claimed that "Claus, as well as his family, were absolutely opposed to the Nazi regime."

She said it was a great joy to make the announcement, adding that "from a human point of view, we feel it is an excellent choice."

The young couple, the queen said, want "to dedicate their lives to a society which is growing more and more positively toward a European and a world alliance."

Prime Minister Josef Cals voiced congratulations and said the Queen showed deep understanding of the mixed feelings expressed by the Dutch people.

He said he is sure the princess' fiance will win the hearts of the Dutch. He added, addressing von Amsberg: "It will, of course, take some time but I may say already that you are heartily welcome in our midst."

The couple will be introduced Tuesday to the government and to parliament.

Before the wedding the queen will make von Amsberg a "prince of The Netherlands." In this capacity he will receive an annual income of 300,000 guilders ($83,300).

Newspapers received hundreds of protest letters. Some political writers claimed the public confidence in the palace had been shaken.

The government approved von Amsberg's antecedents and background. An investigation was completed Friday in Italy where he had served as a youth of 18 with a German panzer division during the final stages of the Second World War.

Installation Of Sewer Not Sanctioned

DESERONTO—At the council meeting this week the Public Utilities Commission presented an estimated figure of $1,800 for a six-inch water main to be installed on Stanley Avenue. The last two consumers on this street have only a three-quarter inch main to their house and this allows very little water pressure. This main would run up to Mr. R. Dawson's property, where he also needs water for irrigation purposes. Mr. Dawson offered to dig the trenches at no cost to the town, however the council will not sanction the installation at this time as they have previous commitments in the west end of town which would accommodate a larger number of consumers.

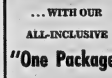
The town is in call for tenders to be submitted to remove the building connected with the rink, over the past few years it has become an eye-sore to the community. The fence which encircles the grounds will be left to enable the making of a rink if and when weather permits.

76 new street signs are to be erected. These signs will be made of metal, cut and painted and donated to the town by the Ideal Vender Co.

NOT INCLUDED

Reeve Clayton Brooks stated, that a letter was received at county council from the Deseronto Ratepayers' requesting that the boundary road be repaired as it is a connecting link with Highway 401. Mr. Brooks answered saying that the county council has a program drawn up for road improvements but this boundary road was not included as it did not have enough traffic to warrant it. Councillor Huffman stated he had to travel it twice a day and it was in a horrible condition.

A heated discussion on the problem of dogs running at large brought forth the motion to contact the Napanee dog catcher to find out if he could service Deseronto also. Councillors McVicker and Webster have decided to take matters into their own hands and shoot any offending dogs if the situation is not remedied immediately.



A complaint was received in regard to weeds on private property. It was made known if the owners did not remove the weeds the town would do so and it would be charged to the property owners concerned.

The firemen have been granted $100 to help defray the costs of the parade on July 3, for some years now this parade has been held on this date and people come from far and near to participate in the fun.

During the summer months, council will meet only once a month, this meeting to be held on the first Monday of the month.

Apartheid Rules So Confused Even Afrikaaners Get Annoyed

By DENNIS LEE ROYLE

Johannesburg (AP) — Race comes in all colors here—black, white and colored (meaning mixed blood)—and the rules designed to keep them apart are confusing and annoying even South Africans.

The United States aircraft carrier Independence, a huge new ship carrying 100 planes and a crew of 3,300 men, failed to call here recently. The reason: South Africa would not let her Negro crewmen go ashore here. When the United States cancelled the carrier visit, South African newspaper and public opinion criticized many aspects of race segregation here.

Even supporters of Prime Minister Hendrik Verwoerd's all-white government are condemning parts of the racial policies which forbid all social contact across the color line.

"We have become the world's best busybodies, the world's most fanatical bureaucrats, the world's arch-meddlers and expert trouble-makers," declared the Afrikaans poet and author Yux Krige, during a recent Cape Town protest meeting.

"Where there was clarity, we bring confusion. Where order—chaos. Where there was quiet harmony we bring discord, dissunion, clash and conflict, frustration and suspicion. Worse than all these, we bring hate."

Apartheid crops up in the most unusual places.

PRAY TOGETHER

Africans and whites attending a church function may kneel and pray together, talk, eat, read, attend lectures and dore together on the lawns of the cathedral precincts—but cannot sleep under the same roof.

No black spectators are allowed to watch white golfers competing in national tournaments at the plush Royal Durban Club — yet Indian and colored spectators are allowed to.

But the rule of apartheid is relaxed when it comes to cricket—they can be Africans.

Indian and colored are allowed to watch white soccer matches at Johannesburg's football stadium—but not Africans. Yet a black man selling soft drinks is allowed.

Even flower shows come under the complex segregation laws. In the Cape prefect town of Stellenbosch only colored people were allowed to attend the autumn show — but whites judged the floral displays. Twenty miles away in Paarl, flower lovers of all races were allowed to rub shoulders at a similar show.

Even diehard nationalist supporters have begun to criticize this country's petty apartheid laws.

LAWS 'ESSENTIAL'

Dirk Richards, editor of Verwoerd's newspaper Dagbreek, recently said:

"In a multi - racial community, laws which forbid and limit, for whites as well as non-whites, are essential for orderly living. But precisely for this reason we must never get tired of seeking opportunities and methods which can eliminate unnecessary friction and hardhandedness."

Few white South Africans use the word apartheid—they refer to the segregation of the races as separate development. Seldom do whites and non-whites get together socially or in public. They use separate transport, public facilities, park benches, hotels, bars, shops and recreational facilities.

Minister of Justice Balthazar Vorster — the strongman of South African politics — voiced his government's attitude toward apartheid in a recent speech.

"The government's policy is that members of the different racial groups would eventually be able to exercise their own votes for their own people in their own areas. There will never be a black or colored man sitting in the white Parliament."

Grade Eight Students Enjoy Ottawa Trip

DESERONTO — Fifty grade 8 students left Deseronto Tuesday at 6:30 a.m. for Ottawa by chartered bus. Mr. P. Roach principal and two teachers Mrs. G. Tucker and Mrs. M. Tucker accompanied the students.

The pupils were met at the Parliament Buildings by Mr. R. Temple, M.P. for Hastings South, who spoke to the group before they visited Parliament in session.

Rockcliffe Park was chosen for lunch time where it was learned that Deseronto pupils were not the only group on tour this day, students from Gananoque and Elgin were also present as well as many Girl Guides.

The day was spent visiting the mint, the Ottawa Museum, the Art Gallery, the War Museum and the Peace Tower; they also saw the Ottawa Rougiriders' football team in a practice session.

Before leaving for home the group visited Westgate Plaza where they shopped and enjoyed dinner and arrived home at 9 p.m.

GIRLS SIGN UP

After working with Wally Green, choreographer for Kiss Me Stupid, six of the 14 chorus girls signed up for his dance school in Los Angeles.

'The Keepers of the House' Winner of Pulitzer Prize

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—On a day when Shirley Ann Grau was lauded about novel writing and integration in the South, the cat had five kittens, a repairman came to fix her portable electric typewriter and a fire bomb went off in her Unitarian church.

She also writes between domestic happenings — childhood diseases and school picnics for Ian, 6, and Nora, 3. The birth of William, six months' ago, marketing on Tuesday mornings, trips to a swimming pool for exercise, instructions to the gardener every time he should move the lawn sprinkler.

Now at 35, all her life lived in the South, 10 years married to Tulane University Philosophy teacher, James Fibleman, 10 years a professional writer, using her maiden name, she has won this year's Pulitzer Prize for fiction, for her third novel, The Keepers of the House.

She is amazed, still, at having won. She is delighted, "because it takes me away from being a feminine scribbler." The implication is that women dabble and men work. That is a hard label to escape from, like the southern label. The prize ought to indicate that I'm serious about writing."

MARRIES NEGRO

In The Keepers of the House a wealthy, long-time widower secretly marries his Negro housekeeper. She sends their three children north to pass for white. Later, when the marriage is revealed, his granddaughter from his first marriage is abruptly divorced by her southern politician husband.

"It is unfortunate that every novel laid in the South is labelled a southern novel," Miss Grau said. "Everyone assumes that my novel is about segregation, which is part of it, but emphatically not about segregation in the sense the James Baldwin plays are. It is segregation as one of the many forms of evil."

Miss Gran's novel received criticism, from several viewpoints, because of her attempts at realistic characterization. "I infuriated some of my friends by trying to give a fair picture of the southern white. He's pretty libelled these days—with a white sheet and shotgun, running around the roads. A lot of my friends say there is no such thing as a good southern white. This is ridiculous; there is be a very fine human being.

"My book has assigned some Negroes very much. They say the Negro woman Margaret, is too bewitched by the white man. But I was raised, by and large, by that kind of woman. I've seen their houses and their swept dirt yards. I've known some who knocked themselves out to get their children north. I've seen the tremendously strong attraction between black and white, the violent feelings they have for each other, love as well as hate."

CALLED TRAITOR

And some white southerners call her a traitor to the South for her sympathetic portrayal of Negroes. There were many abusive late - night telephone calls inspired by her writing, she says, but they ceased abruptly at the time of the Kennedy assassination.

Miss Grau started writing for a student quarterly at Newcomb College in New Orleans.

Now she writes occasional short stories and spends two years on a novel, the first year making notes on scraps of paper and deciding on outline and approach. She spends the second year at the typewriter and holding "noisy conversations" with characters, who by that time have become real.

MANY FAIL TEST

In a driving test televised by CBS, more than 42 per cent of a cross-section of licensed drivers in four large cities of the United States failed the test by scoring 50 or less points out of a possible total of 80.

Readings were given by Mrs. Mary Patrick, Miss Linda Fisher and Mr. E. Fisher. Several games were played, the winners of which were Mrs. P. Spurrell, Mr. Willard Whitman and Mr. Paul Spurrell. Rev. Spring and Mrs. Keith Holm sang a duet.

The Rev. Spring spoke to the two young couples, telling of their faithfulness to the work of God. The Congo, After Years Of Chaos, Conflict, Moves Into Era of Reconstruction

The Congo marks the fifth anniversary of its independence from Belgium June 30. Following is the first of a series on the African country's problems and hopes and hopes for the future written by Arnold Amber, Reuters Leopoldville correspondent.

By ARNOLD AMBER

LEOPOLDVILLE (Reuters)—The Congo, burdened by five years of chaos and conflict, is moving today into an era of reconstruction.

As Congolese army forces, led by white mercenaries, stamp out the last pockets of the more than one-year-old rebellion in the northeast, political and military leaders with the help of international technical experts are trying to restore a solid administration and build up national unity.

This is essential for the young African country, which celebrates its fifth anniversary of independence from Belgium this Wednesday.

One United Nations official sums up the situation this way: "Now, as hard information is being compiled on the vast number of administrators, teachers, politicians and thousands of other Congolese killed by the rebels in the northeast region, it is apparent the job of recovery will be a most difficult one."

Congolese universities produced only a handful of graduates at independence in 1960 and there were only a few qualified administrators to run the government and industry.

Apart from inefficiency in administration, there was corruption on national, provincial and local levels.

Also there was no sense of national unity when independence came. Fighting between tribes among the Congo's 15,000,000 people took a heavy toll of lives in the first years of independence.

The most difficult problem, diplomats and UN officials point out, was lack of any political heritage or experience.

Until 1957, all political activity was barred by the Belgians, but independence saw an extreme form of the democratic process: About 100 small tribal and regional parties had been formed.

When post - independence army mutinies shook the country, there was a need for strong and united political leadership.

Instead the Congo became a three - way struggle between president Joseph Kasavubu, premier Patrice Lumumba and Moise Tshombe of Katanga province and Albert Kalongi of, South Kasai province. Lumumba and Tshombe tried to secede.

The imprisonment of Lumumba, his slaying under mysterious circumstances in February, 1961, and the general chaos which prevailed created deep scars, diplomats recall.

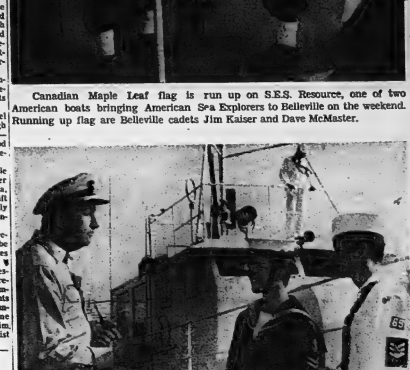
They say it was a combination of lack of unity before and after independence, personal ambition, economic factors and foreign instigation which led to the rebellion in the northeast.

As for the future, diplomats and Tshombe, now premier, agree that to obtain the required unity it will be necessary first to have a strong national army and good government.

Tshombe introduced white mercenaries into the army and army commander Gen. Joseph Mobutu has repeatedly stressed that his forces must be retrained and provided with better equipment to maintain order.

Until the Congo army can ensure complete security it is believed some mercenary units remain.

On the political level Tshombe will have — through strong support in parliament— a better chance to provide good government than any other premier.



Both Lumumba and Cyrille Adoula, who became premier after the death of Lumumba, had to contend with makeshift coalitions which repeatedly proved disloyal and unmanageable.

Since he took over the premiership in July, 1964, Tshombe has shown that he possesses rare political skill.

Besides making the necessary decisions to stop the rebellion, he has concluded important economic agreements with Belgium and other countries and has overcome some African animosity toward him by his former secessionist policies in Katanga.

Mutual Aid Fire Brigades Hold Games at Frankford

FRANKFORD — Hastings and Prince Edward County Mutual Aid firemen held a successful field day Sunday at Frankford. Some 600 people attended the annual event and enjoyed the firefighting games by competing teams representing Marmora, Stirling, Rawdon Township, Tweed, Batawa, Desoronto, Madoc and Frankford.

Merv Dafoe, Frankford fire chief, and Ray Morran, reeve of Frankford, welcomed those present for the event which started at 1 p.m. Also assisting were guests Chief Ted Post of Belleville and retired past coordinator Gerald Vance.

Highlights of the event were the bucket brigade, cart races and a tug-of-war, the latter being won by the newly formed group from Rawdon Township.

Taking home many trophies were the Marmora firefighter group who put on a special effort to gain 28 points in the competitions. Second and third places were taken by Stirling with 18 points and Frankford with 12.

Proceeds from the voluntary picnic, receipts, sandwiches and beverages sold will be donated to the Frankford Community Rink fund.

'Had Wonderful Trip' Says Queen Mother

LONDON (CP) — The Queen Mother, smiling and happy, arrived back from Canada today and told High Commissioner Lionel Chevrier she had "a wonderful trip."

Chevrier said the Queen Mother looked "absolutely wonderful and radiant, full of joy and gaiety."

The Times, in a report from from Tacoma, comments on the warmth of the reception the Queen Mother had from Toronto and Oshawa crowds, saying it seemed to be a reaction to the coolness of last year's royal visit to Quebec.

Afro-Asian Cancellation Of Conference Seen Severe Diplomatic Defeat for China

ALGIERS (AP) — China lost considerable face because the Afro-Asian conference was postponed despite vigorous Chinese insistence that it be held as scheduled.

China was forced to back down, in the face of overwhelming sentiment against the meeting of chiefs of state this week in the Algerian capital.

The Chinese reluctantly joined the other delegates in voting unanimously to postpone to reschedule the meeting for Nov. 5 in Algiers. A pre-conference meeting of foreign ministers was set for Oct. 28.

The vote came a day after part of the conference building at the Club des Pin 12 miles west of the city, was wrecked by a mysterious explosion. This and nightly demonstrations in Algiers against the ouster of president Ahmed Ben Bella prompted the delay.

(In Peking, the Communist party newspaper People's Daily, which since Ben Bella's downfall had told its readers the conference would proceed as scheduled, published a report of the postponement in the bottom right corner of the front page. But along with other Chinese papers, the People's Daily made no comment.)

(In Moscow, the party newspaper Pravda approved the decision to postpone the conference. "Dictated by the situation in the Afro-Asian countries it unquestionably helps to strengthen unity and understanding among the participants in the Afro-Asian countries," it said.)

Steel - helmeted policemen, armed with tear gas grenades and sub - machine - guns, were braced for further protests.

Leaflets were circulated calling for renewed demonstrations against the coup led by Col. Houari Boumediene.

One group called for a general strike today. Another urged Ben Bella's supporters to bang saucepans on their balconies in a "casserole concert" of protest.

Foreign ministers and diplomats who were here for the Afro-Asian conference tried to book air passage home. Some sought charter flights because many airlines reported they were booked solid.

A French diplomat observed that China had painted itself into a corner by going ahead with its high-pressure campaign for holding the conference on schedule.

Chinese prestige would not have been so thoroughly committed, the Asian said, had the Chinese remained silent and acquiesced in the postponement.

For the Chinese, the conference represented desirable setting for propaganda blasts against the United States at a time when worldwide sentiment for peace talks on Viet Nam appeared to be growing. Peking has mounted all-out efforts.

The Chinese charged "imperialists and reactionaries" with obstructing and sabotaging the conference.

Premier Chou En - lai had flown to Cairo nine days ago in preparation for going on to Algiers. There he had to contend himself with a tiny summit conference with Egyptian President Nasser and Indonesian President Sukarno.

The three met in Nasser's Kubbeh palace Sunday and scheduled more talks Tuesday. No statement was issued.

TRY STRIKE PREVENTION

CHICAGO (AP)—The American Newspaper Publisher's Association announced Sunday formation of a joint union-management committee to try to head off newspaper strikes. The association said the committee plans to "discuss approaches to the preservation of labor peace in the newspaper business."

Financial Institutions Criticized By Kierans as Non-competitive

MONTREAL (CP)—Canada's financial institutions were criticized today by Revenue Minister Eric Kierans of Quebec, who said they should be more competitive and require companies to disclose more information to investors.

"It does not seem to me that our financial institutions and structures have adapted themselves to the changed realities of a 1965 economy operating at a $50,000,000,000 gross national product level," he told a luncheon of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association.

He said the eventual prospects of financial independence and continuous growth depend on the revival of savings.

Advantages which could be gained by the increase in accumulation caused by the Quebec pension plan, he said, "would be lost if there were not a corresponding improvement in the functioning of the capital markets."

He said statements by the Porter royal commission on banking and finance that the investment industry "now is large enough to allow more impersonal and competitive forces to work" and that financial syndicates are too rigid have been proved by Quebec government experience.

Mr. Kierans said the traditional underwriters came last when Hydro - Quebec recently asked for competitive tenders on a $50,000,000 offering.

"The significance of this event has not escaped the attention of my colleagues and many of us believe that the underlying vigor and strength of the Canadian financial community will support three or more competitive syndicates."

He said the Quebec pension fund is a potential heavy buyer of stocks listed on the Montreal exchanges so it is interested in seeing implementation of Porter commission recommendations afforded investors be improved.

"In particular, standards of disclosure by corporations must be improved and complete information on trading by company directors should be provided.

"Continuing inertia on the part of the financial community is certain to lead to government action, action which can be avoided if energetic leadership and action is taken by the private sector itself."

HOPES FOR RECESS

OTTAWA (CP)—The government hopes Parliament can take its summer recess starting Tuesday night, Government House Leader McIlraith told the Commons Friday.

Seal Skips Out Of Pen Into Sea

VICTORIA (CP) — Herbie the seal, star attraction of Victoria's Undersea Gardens, has run away from home.

Mused Gardens Manager Bill Starkey: "It doesn't look as if we found a girlfriend for him quite quickly enough."

Herbie skipped out of his pen into the sea sometime during the night and the disappearance was noticed first at 9 a.m. Saturday.

Mr. Starkey said Herbie, a resident at the gardens for nearly a year, had been growing unhappy and his disposition recently had been steadily worsening.

Last week the seal nipped 21-year-old diver Gert Mills.

The gardens already had obtained government permission to get a second seal as a possible mate for Herbie.

Mr. Starkey said he and his staff will try to capture a pair of young seals and raise them under natural conditions.

AUSTRALIAN SLAIN

NEW YORK (AP)—An Australian rugby player was slain Saturday night when five youths tried to crash a farewell party for him in his apartment, police said. Other guests, most of them also rugby players, chased the fleeing youths and tackled four on the street. One was later charged with homicide. The victim was Keith North, 24.

Rochester Sea Explorers Enjoy Weekend Visit Here

Close to 50 Sea Explorers from the Rochester area "invaded" Belleville harbor over the weekend, but the Belleville Sea Cadets retaliated by running up the new Maple Leaf flag on the American boat and then were invited to take a short cruise.

The American Sea Explorers sailed in on two boats, the Friendwood, a 120 foot former sub-chaser, and the 40 foot SES Conquest. The visiting party was in charge of Skipper Alfred Hart of Brighton, near Rochester.

Sunday morning the Belleville Sea Cadets enjoyed a cruise with the American Sea Explorers as they returned home to Rochester by way of Murray Canal. The local boys disembarked at the Canal and returned home to Belleville by car.

American Sea Explorers are a scolling group and, unlike the Sea Cadets in Canada, have no connection with the Navy. The former American subchaser Friendwood, owned by a Rochester area businessman, was loaned to the Sea Explorer group for their weekend cruise on Lake Ontario.

19 White Women, Children Freed From Congo Rebels

LEOPOLDVILLE (Reuters)—Nineteen white women and children, including a missionary nurse who twice escaped death, have arrived here in apparent good health after many months in Congolese rebel captivity.

The 19 flew into Leopoldville Sunday night after being rescued from the rebels in the northern Buta area by a government patrol Saturday night.

They included 14 Belgian nuns and one Dutch nun, a British missionary nurse and a Belgian mother and her two small daughters.

The nurse, Margaret Hayes, 25, was the only white person to escape last December from the town of Banalia, 60 miles north of Stanleyville, where 15 foreigners were killed by rebels.

After a month hiding in the surrounding bush, she was recaptured and held in Buta in the extreme north of The Congo.

There, late last month, the rebels killed 31 Roman Catholic missionary priests, but Miss Hayes again escaped death.

She was taken from Buta [illegible] held in a jungle area southwest of Buta until the eventual rescue.

Government forces continued a search for another 29 foreigners—21 Portuguese, five Italians, a Belgian couple and a Pakistani—reported held by rebels in the bush near Bondo.

A Stately Home of England

Future Now Indefinite For RCAF Wartime Home

By JOSEPH MacSWEEN

LONDON (CP)—Death of the 25th Baron Mowbray has left uncertain the future of Allerton Park, seat of one of England's old families and wartime headquarters of the RCAF's No. 6 Bomber Group.

Mowbray, premier baron of England who died May 7 at 69 years of age, had announced plans to convert Allerton Park to luxury apartments but his successor says the plans are in abeyance for the present at least.

Charles Edward Stourton, the new Lord Mowbray, son of the 25th baron, says death duties and other matters now are impeding and no decision has yet been made regarding the 70-room Yorkshire family seat. He declined to estimate the value of the 111-year-old Victorian Gothic structure built on 3,800 acres of land for the 19th Lord Stourton, his great-great-grandfather.

Mowbray, 42-year-old chairman of a financial consultant firm, told a reporter he has pleasant memories of the many Canadian fliers he met at Allerton Park during the latter part of the Second World War.

"I lost my right eye in the Normandy fighting and came back to Allerton Park to recuperate," he recalled. "I knew of the new peer, in a family trust.

Mowbray said reports that his family was once among the wealthiest in Britain were based on misunderstanding. He is the 26th Baron Mowbray and 27th Baron Segrave, titles both created in 1283, and 23rd Baron Stourton (1448).

Stourton is his family name, the peer stressed, and the Mowbray title, associated with great wealth, was inherited only in the female line.

The late Lord Mowbray featured in a controversy earlier this year.

A leading Roman Catholic peer, he took a keen interest in the reburial of the remains of Anne Mowbray, the 15th century child bride of the Duke of York.

The remains had been found in a building site in London's East-End borough of Stepney last December but a letter to The Daily Telegraph, Mowbray described himself as a "member of the family." He opposed plans for reburial of the remains in the Protestant Westminster Abbey.

Portable Plywood Bridge

Using the engineering principle of the bowstring arch this lightweight portable plywood bridge will support a man across a span of about 8 feet.

Waterproof glue sheathing grade fir plywood ¾" thick must be used for the platform and a piece of ¾" thick for the centre stiffener.

About 20 feet of stainless steel or similar cable and two heavy turnbuckles are required. It is wise to make the end battens of oak or alternatively to face their outside edges with a metal strip to prevent the cables from cutting into the wood. Use heavy duty brackets as shown to keep the centre stiffeners at right angles to the deck.

The bridge has proven useful for crossing irrigation ditches. Light battens may be nailed across the walking surface to provide traction.

One 4 x 8 Fir Plywood Panel Makes Attractive, Vented Garbage Tin Housing

Garbage tins are a necessary but sometimes an unattractive part of our outdoor "furniture." They have to be placed where they are convenient for use, they have to be well-vented and they should be placed so that the unsightly garbage detail can get at them quickly.

Here is a solution that answers all conditions. Simply made out of only seven pieces of water-proof gine fir plywood, a few nails, two hinges and some stain, it attractively conceals the tin containers and yet permits easy access.

The dimensions may have to be adjusted to fit your tin, but the construction process is clear ly shown in the exploded drawing.

If the unit is attached to the fence by making a supplementary framing as shown and if a simple door is made to allow access to the tin from outside, your garbage disposal problem is solved, neatly and attractively.

Give Your Outdoor Gear Tender, Loving Care

It's a long way from the stone trowel to the rotary mower. But all implements, especially those used outdoors, require a great deal more care than those of the past. To insure longer life and better service from your outdoor equipment, we suggest the following "green thumbs" hints:

1. Annoying rust won't form on garden tools coated with petroleum jelly. Hoes, rakes and spades (and most of stainless steel should be rinsed and dried after each use, then treated to a fresh coat of petroleum jelly.

2. Keep pruning and cutting shears in condition to clip neatly along by lubricating them often with petroleum jelly.

3. Check and repair rubber or plastic handles on mowers, wheelbarrows and cutting implements before initial use; loose grips are harder to use, may be dangerous.

4. Sprinklers or watering cans may rust if not thoroughly dried after each session. For added protection, coat the sprinkler with petroleum jelly.

5. Tools with blades should be sharpened not only at the first of the season, but as often as needed for maximum efficiency.

6. To eliminate misplacing or careless handling of small tools, hang them from a rack. The simplest rack can be made from peg board and a few dimestore hooks.

7. Even glove-wearing won't always protect the most basic tools — your hands — against chapping and roughness. Before beginning any outdoor work, treat them to a soothing film of petroleum jelly. Rub a little extra around cuticles and beneath nails to discourage hard-to-remove dirt deposits.

Petroleum jelly can be a great aid with many items around the house which are exposed to the elements, for example.

8. To silence squeaky chains on garden swings, dab petroleum jelly at top where chain is fastened and at bottom where it joins seat.

9. Outdoor light bulbs won't rust if the threads are lightly coated with petroleum jelly.

If you putter around the garden, you'll be happy to know that a special moisture-resistant pencil can spare you the headache of trying to identify vegetable and flower beds with the seed packet. Just attach a tag marked with this pencil. It won't wash out, fade or rub off.

Plant Roses for Color, Little Work

Roses — a garden lover's must. Roses do for the garden what no other single plant can do: provide uninterrupted color all season long. And roses take considerably less work to maintain than other plants.

As for planting, there isn't a simpler flower to plant than a rose. Just find a sunny, reasonably well-drained spot, dig a hole, pop in the rose, cover up with soil mulched with peat, water generously and presto — everything's coming up roses.

Probably the greatest single advantage of the rose is its marvelous range of versatility.

First, consider how many different types of over-blooming roses there are: tall, medium and low-growing bushes, ramblers, climbers, pillars and fence covers, and, even a new hybrid rose species for "living fences," border plantings and hedges.

Best evidence there is of roses' increasing popularity is the large number of home gardeners who are planting roses in their front yards rather than limiting them, as in the past, to formal back yard rose gardens.

By putting more and more roses up front, the home gardener is using these everblooming beauties in place of traditional foundation shrubs which either do not flower at all or flower sparingly only once for a relatively brief period.

Generously spotting colorful rose bushes in and around green shrubs adds more sparkle and color - appeal to the front yard's appearance.

Fences of colorful roses up to 5 or 6 feet, or low, compact border and hedge plantings of roses are, in an increasing number of cases, replacing conventional fencing materials such as board, wire and concrete block.

RETAINS EARLY CHARACTERISTICS — St. Peter Port is the capital of Guernsey, the second largest and most westerly of the Channel Islands. Now a modern and popular holiday resort, St. Peter Port retains many characteristics of the days when it was just a fishing village. (CP Photo)

TAX HAVEN — Along the streets of St. Helier, British resort with an Anglo-French flavor, shops crammed with duty-free goods beckon the tourist to Jersey, one of the Channel Islands. The Island of Jersey, with income tax less than half the British rate, is a tax utopia for British businessmen. (CP Photo from Jersey Evening Post)

TOURIST MECCA — Jersey and Guernsey are the largest of the Channel Islands, a cluster of dots off the coast of France. Although still proudly French in many ways, they are the oldest of the British Dominions. Protected by the coast of France, the Islands abound with dazzling beaches, semi-tropical gardens and gay villas. Agriculture and tourism are important industries. The Jersey and Guernsey cows were developed on the Islands. (CP Newsmap)

Britain's Channel Island

Last Utopia for Tycoons

By CAROL KENNEDY

ST. HELIER, Jersey (CP)—Utopia for the tax-burdened Briton is a cluster of green islands 100 miles south of the Dorset coast where income tax is less than half the British rate and gracious living comes at pre-war prices.

Snug in the sheltered bay that divides Normandy from Brittany, the Channel Islands are the oldest of the British dominions, still proudly French in many ways. Once part of ancient Normandy, they have enjoyed special privileges because of their remote position ever since William of Normandy became master of England in 1066.

In 1205, when King John was forced to hand back his Norman lands to France, the islands unpredictably chose to remain with England. In gratitude John drew up a charter of independence which every British sovereign since has endorsed.

Ruled by a bailiff—combination prime minister and chief justice—the two largest islands, Jersey and Guernsey, make their own laws and levy their own taxes. Only some bills of the British Parliament apply to the Channel Islands—not the national health service, for instance.

SARK SHUNS TAXES

Alderney, a wild remote place of sand dunes and heather eight miles from Cherbourg, is partly self-governing but falls within the "bailiwick" of Guernsey, as do the tiny privately-owned islands Herm and Jethou. Sark, last feudal state in the Commonwealth, also technically belongs to Guernsey but in practice goes its own sweet way under formidable 80-year-old Mrs. Sibyl Hathaway, "La Dame de Serk," and a largely hereditary parliament.

A rural Arcadia beloved by British honeymooners, Sark has no truck with such new fangled inventions as automobiles and income tax, both unknown on the island.

Jersey—largest, prettiest nd most southerly of the group—might have been designed as a rich man's paradise, with its low-price luxury living, no death duties and balmy Gulf Stream climate. Nobody knows how many millionaires have gone to roost around its curving, 43-mile coastline fringed with dazzling beaches, semi-tropical gardens and gay villas. Probably few places outside the shores of Lake Geneva could boast so much money per square yard.

The island's buoyant economy, based on tourism, agriculture and the riches of retired tycoons, is continually fed by capital from international finance houses and British companies setting up Jersey establishments to take advantage of the low tax rate, unchanged since the Second World War.

RULES ARE STRICT

As the law stands now, there is nothing to prevent sale of British assets to a Channel Island company, thus escaping Britain's new capital gains tax. Setting up a Jersey company is a fairly complex business, with strict domicile rules which also apply to Britons buying property, but financial writers have predicted a big rush on the island once socialist Chancellor James Callaghan's tough April budget shows its claws.

Jersey's own April budget boasted a surplus of £1,349,412 and one penny, and triumphantly reaffirmed the principles of a fiscal policy that in the words of Chancellor Cyril Le Marquand, would "never soak the rich."

"Luxuries are cheap, necessities expensive," islanders say. With no British purchase tax, shop windows are crammed with luxury goods to tempt the tourist—in vain because of strict customs regulations. Everything from cameras to cars, makeup to milk coats is dramatically cheaper than in Britain, but groceries might average £1 a week more for a family.

WHISKY IS CHEAP

Duty on imported spirits is so much less than Britain's top-heavy tax that scotch whisky sells for the equivalent of $3.15 a bottle—$2.40 in Guernsey—compared with $7.25 in London or Leeds. Gasoline is less than half the British price, though disgruntled young Jersey people have been known to say "They should give it away—there's nowhere to go." You can drive anywhere in the island's 40 square miles in 20 minutes.

Jersey officials tend to be reticent about the tax - haven charms of their island—just in case Britain decided to clamp some kind of control. In practice, the amounts involved are small enough not to bother the British treasury, but there are a few loopholes for ingenious businessmen bent on evading Callaghan's widening grasp.

If you are a self-employed "consultant," such as an accountant with British clients, you can base yourself in the Channel Islands and spend anything up to six months' earnings in Britain without having to pay British tax. The normal fee limit is 90 days.

Occasionally a rumor that the income tax rate is about to be raised sends a shudder through Jersey's opulent coastal villas and ancient granite manorhouses. But treasury officials are confident the four-shilling-a-pound rate, keystone of the economy, is unlikely to rise.

"It would be killing the goose that lays the golden eggs," said A. D. Lebrocq, courtly, silver-haired greffier—secretary — of the Jersey Parliament.

"Besides," he added with a smile, "the English residents would only go off to Guernsey or the Isle of Man."

Weatherproof Outlets, Switches

Today's trend toward outdoor living has created a greater need for electrical outlets and switches located on or near the exterior of a house.

To give lasting service, it is therefore important that these outlets and switches be weatherproof. There are on the market today, weatherproof plates with metal, spring-hinged covers that protect outlets and switches from the elements when they're not in use. Covers with locking devices can also be installed to prevent unauthorized use. Most of these devices can be had at little extra cost.

Lands and Forests Discusses

Outdoors Recreation

The reversible 'falls on the eastern coast is a minor marvel compared with the two-way parade of population in Ontario. The faster people flock to live in built-up areas, the faster they come streaming back to the open country as anglers, hunters, campers and vacationists with various intents. Purposeful sportsmen or carefree holiday-er, they travel the wilds in the ever-growing numbers to feast their eyes on verdant scenery, to breathe more deeply in pine-scented air — and to set a problem for Department of Lands and Forests. The question how to use and maintain natural resources when the use is so heavy?

Recreation has become a problem in conservation, Cansider the facts. In 1959, the sales of resident hunting licences of non resident angling licences and of summer cottage sites on Crown lands were approximately double the corresponding sales in 1948. More recently, the public use of Provincial Parks has positively leaped upwards.

As the records prove, we live in recreational times and, in our Department, we are concerned to keep up with the needs of the times and to make provisions for the much greater needs of the future. To this purpose, many technicians and professional men are devoting their entire careers. While our foresters are working toward their goal of perpetual forests of superior quality, other personnel are aiming at corresponding peaks of achievement in which the sporting millions will have a direct, personal interest.

One example of our changing times is the increase in small pleasure boats and the consequent need for small, safe harbours. A recent decision, therefore, has reserved all the Great Lakes in perpetuity. Many harbours have been set aside for private pleasure craft. Forest Rangers have been asked to recommend suitable areas on lakes and streams belonging to the Crown, and many of these will no doubt be reserved for the use of boating enthusiasts.

Vacation Paradise

Blue Water Country

Along the eastern Lake Huron shore is the Blue Water Country are the geological wonders of Kettle Point and famous Ipperwash Beach and Provincial Park, Grand Bend, Bayfield, Goderich, Kincardine, Port Elgin and Southampton, all popular vacation centres.

Here sandy beaches stretch for mile after mile, backed by rainbow hued cottages, quaint villages and thriving towns, rich farm and pasture lands and young forests. Much of the area supports fruit orchards, a wonderful sight to see in blossomtime.

The most popular route to the vacation land of the Grey and Bruce counties from the United States and southern Ontario is probably along the scenic Blue Water Highway.

For the United States tourists who enter Canada at Sarnia or Windsor the drive along this well-paved highway is one that will long be remembered. Some travel this highway each year to cottages at one of many resorts that dot the route while others are taking the first trip up the Bruce Peninsula or across the gap to famous Manitoulin Island by way of the ferry boat.

They can also, from this direction, circle across to Owen Sound then continue along the Blue Water Route through Meaford, Thornbury, Clarksburg and Collingwood toward Barrie, Midland and Orillia. A circular trip can also be made down the Toronto or Guelph Highways.

The Bruce is the spot for a weekend fishing trip for your favourite species, Speckled, Brown's, Rainbows are in it's many streams and bays. Excellent Bass and Pickerel and Pan Fish lakes are at every hand. There is good Perch, Northern Pike fishing on the Lake Huron Side.

For a rare treat, visit the Peninsula during the early autumn, when the combination of colored foliage and deep blue water on some of our beautiful shoreline drives will prove an experience that you will never forget.

Many visitors prefer the fall for their holidays, with lazy, sunny days, cool nights by the fireplace, and exhilaration in the air. Lots of heated accomodations are available.

Plywood Unit Provides Smoked Fish Flavor

Fresh caught fish, slowly smoked for several hours in the smoke of a wood fire, are transformed from a simple dish into a rare delicacy. The drawings are self - explanatory and even do-it-yourselfers with a minimum of skill can make a smoker of waterproof glue fir plywood which will last for years.

All the parts can be cut from two 4' x 8' sheets of fir plywood ½" thick. Framework is unnecessary — gluing and nailing are sufficient. Wood frames with chicken wire stretched across them support the fish in the upper section. The concrete slab base is provided for the fire.

Fine sawdust, wood shavings, small branches or even fir cones produce a satisfactory smoke. After the fire is burning dampen it well with sawdust and regulate the draft to produce a slow steady smoke.

Shavings of oak, alder, hickory, beech or apple give delicious flavour to the fish. But pine, cedar and woods containing resins will not give good results.

To prepare the fish for smoking, open and gut them and remove the head. Soak in a salt solution (4 cups of pure salt, without iodine, in a gallon of water).

Various combinations of volume of smoke, kind of fuel and temperature will produce a wide variety of flavours and textures — experiment to get the smoked fish flavour you like best.

Pesky Bugs Fail Screen Test

Be sure to rescreen your outdoor room for more enjoyment this summer. You can do it yourself.

First determine the amount of screening needed to do the job. Next you'll want to rent or buy a gun-type stapler.

If your outdoor area was built with wood framing, carefully remove the thin batten strips and remove the staples that hold screen in place.

To insert new screening be certain to start your stapling across the top at 1½ - inch intervals. Leave ½-inch overlap of screening and fold over and staple between previous staples. If you are using fiberglas screening, it cuts easily with an ordinary scissors.

Next do sides, alternating between the two posts, keeping screen taut at all times. Leave a 6-inch margin on bottom to keep pressure on screening while stapling and cut off later.

For aluminum frame outdoor rooms first remove the vinyl splines which hold the screening in place. Align the screening and starting with the U-framing member insert a 1-inch length of spline at each end of the groove. Next, remove one of the short pieces of spline and run the roller over the screen the length of the groove. Then removing the second short spline at the other end of the framing as you reach it.

PARTY'S POPULAR

OTTAWA (CP) — Diplomats, politicians, officials and ordinary citizens crowded the lawns and gardens of Rideau Hall Sunday for the annual garden party of Governor-General and Madame Vanier. In bright sunshine, the vice-regal couple received more than 2,500 guests on the grounds of their official residence.

A Heritage of Green!

Here in Ontario's kingdom of green — forest and field — flecked with the blue from hundreds of thousands of lakes and streams — the vacationer can enjoy all the pleasures of the outdoors. In an age of speed, turmoil and tension, when the crowded citizens of most nations are worrying about every blade of grass, how fortunate we are to have this heritage of green.

In this vast realm of recreation man can lose himself in the outdoors. Here, "far from the madding crowd", away from the roar of motors and the nauseating fumes of exhaust pipes, he can relax in the quiet of beautiful surroundings.

This land is not different, in its further reaches, from the vast natural setting as it first appeared to the explorers centuries ago. They, too, came now from cities — of Europe. They, too, were campers. They made their way upstream by canoe and through the bush on foot. They pitched their tents and made their beds on the ground wherever they went. In those days there were no insecticides, no can openers, no primus. They lived off the land.

How incredible the progress they made! For them, no highways, no outboard motors no launching ramps, no Ontario sportsman's guide. We marvel at their conquest of the wilderness.

DAILY DRAMA

The daily drama of outdoors can give new meaning to a family vacation. Every turn can meets the drama of history; the drama of nature's splendor, the dramatic wonders created by man.

One can discover Ontario when new chapters in history are being written every day. One can tour the Parliament buildings and famed National Gallery; visit the national War Memorial and gracious Rideau Hall, residence of Canada's governor - general.

Scenic highways can take one to giant hydro-electric generating stations that harness the Ottawa river.

One can follow trails blazed by Canada's earliest pioneers explorers to North Bay where crystal waters teem with bass, trout, pickerel One will fall in love with the 2,700 square-mile Algonquin Park.

Camping lovers will find Algonquin Parks remote lakes and streams ideal. Friendly deer eat from one's hand. Leisure can be enjoyed fishing, swimming and exploring nature trails.

Canoeists will find a serene trip through Muskoka, Indian name for "Blue Skies" a journey of delight. One can become an amateur geologist by hunting mineral-laden rocks amid the fascinating rock formations near Bancroft.

For more than a half-century Ontario has been Canada's most popular vacation province. Resort relaxation as well as activities of every kind are here for the pleasure of visitors and residents alike.

There are inexhaustible opportunities for motor tours, cruising sheltered water ways camping out, canoe trips, hunting game birds and animals and angling for more than a dozen varieties of fighting fish.

There are Highland games and other sports events, historic sites and old forts, pioneer villages, museums, art galleries and excellent summer theatres great and small exhibitions and fairs.

HIGHWAYS, PARKS

In addition to these diversions Ontario's accelerated highway improvement and expansion program has played a large part in influencing an inestimable number of residents and encouraging more than 20 million visitors to vacation here.

The tourist industry has maintained its high position in importance in Ontario's economic progress.

Two major factors have increased tourist travel in Ontario, the great work done by the Department of Lands and Forests in establishing and developing an increasing number of provincial parks and campsites and a substantial increase in programs involving the modernization of existing resort, motel and hotel accommodation by private interests along with new construction.

THE ONTARIO INTELLIGENCER, Monday, June 28, 1965

In addition an increasing men's organizations and resort, mens organizations and resort, motel and hotel owners are collaborating with municipal authorities to promote and publicize the distinctive advantages of their own areas.

CONSIDERS HELP

RALGART (CP)—The federal government is considering legislation to help part-time farmers, Agriculture Minister Hazen Hays said Friday. One of the "great problems" today, Hays said, is the farmer who comes home a go of his farm and takes a part-time job, or the man who has a job but wants to go into part-time farming. "We think there should be legislation to help finance the move either in or out of farming."

"Run and Live!"

That's the longevity recipe of one of the world's greatest track coaches.

Follow this advice and aging greasers and wheezers with embonpoint, sparse thatches and bald patches can add ten years to life on the retirement pastures.

Arthur Lydiard, a fiery freckled little man from Auckland, New Zealand, whose many claims to coaching fame includes the world-record efforts of the famous Peter Snell, decided long ago that to live you have to run.

Lydiard told a Vancouver Sun columnist an incredible story of what running can do to keep the mortician waiting and your heirs in suspense.

"Stop running," he said, "and evil things will catch up with you. Things like flaccid lungs, fat-clogged blood and a wheezy clanking heart that is a good bet to cash in before the allotted three-score and ten."

Normally a happy-go-lucky chappie Lydiard's hackles rise when he sees jowls and jelly-bellies. To him they are signs of a wasted life.

He's "nuts" about running for health. Not necessarily the sanctioned track meet variety but what he calls "the getting up off the butt and getting out on the streets for a jog."

"Look here now," he told the columnist, "everyone in cars—accursed. In Canada you have great drives going to end cancer. It is cancer-this and cancer-that. But doesn't anyone worry about the fact that every person who dies from cancer, two die from heart attacks?"

He believes that the secret of healthy longevity is a healthy cardio-vascular system. A healthy heart able to pump blood.

He said that in New Zealand he has literally dozens of elderly men who had been written off as a heart case. "I started them running and they regained their health."

"There was one man," Lydiard said, "who was 70 years of age, weighed 250 pounds and hadn't done any exercise for 30 years. His doctor told him not to exert his heart. But in six months I have brought him to a point where he runs 20 miles a day. His pulse rate is down, his blood-pressure is down, his skin tone is improved and he feels and acts healthy."

When he isn't touring the country, Lydiard habitually runs 50 to 80 miles a week jogging easily on roads, beaches and parks. Snell does 100 miles a week.

"When Snell started training under me," he said, "his heart beat was 72 which doctors consider healthy. But right now it is 38, almost half what it used to be, his aorta is enlarged and his heart so powerful that it can pump the required amount of blood with half the effort an ordinary heart requires. Doing half the work it should last twice as long. Right? It is simply impossible for Peter Snell to ever have a heart attack."

Lydiard does not profess to be a doctor but he pointed out that without exercise the blood becomes infested with small globs of fat. Some of these cluster around the heart openings and the heart has to pump harder.

His advise to middle-aged "pots" is, "see the doctor first and tell him what you want to do."

Assure your wife and neighbors that you haven't gone daffy.

Start jogging easily without straln, for 15 minutes a day. Work up the time and distance governed by your own comfort. Don't force it and don't try to be a sprinter. Keep at it, day after day.

Parsons Blank Crusaders

Playing before the best soccer crowd in Belleville for some time, Parsons Cleaners blanked Kingston Crusaders 3-0 at Zwick's Island Sunday evening.

The win boosted the Belleville squad up near the King-ston and District Soccer League's leaders. Parsons' next game will also be at Zwick's Island, against Batawa, on Wednesday, July 7. Kick-off is at 6.30 p.m.

Against Crusaders, Parsons got a strong game from goalie Keith Mueller, who earned his first shutout of the season, and the half back line of Graham Liddiatt, Bob Main and John Rosenburg.

A three-way play after about 20 minutes had elapsed resulted in the first goal. Timmy Patterson lobbed the ball to Bob Rutherford and his pass was driven into the net by Allan Brown.

Parsons continued to press but the Crusader defence prevented further scoring until just before half time. Bob Rutherford potted Brown's rebound for the goal.

High temperatures slowed the game's pace in the second half but Belleville continued to carry the play and Brown twice had rough luck near the Crusader net, hitting the cross bar on hard shots.

Peter Crowle grabbed a loose ball in mid-field and his pass put Bob Rutherford in the clear for Parsons' clinching goal.

Mueller preserved his shutout with a fine save on a free kick taken by Crusaders' Art Robinson in the game's final minutes.

The victory was Parsons' fourth in six league starts. Following the game here against Batawa, Belleville plays league leading Hungaria on July 10, and the Dunbriks on July 17, both games being in Kingston.

'Whistling Sea' All Way

West Claims First Queen's Plater

TORONTO (CP) — A three-year-old bay colt galloped out of the West and into the Queen's Plate winner's circle Saturday. But without the faith of two people he wouldn't have made it to the starting gate.

Whistling Sea became the first Western Canada-bred winner in the Plate's 106-year history as he pulled away from the other 11 starters and showed them his heels all the way to the finish line.

Second was Flyalong from the stable of Tom Hayes of Oakville and Doug Weldon of London, Ont., 1¾ lengths behind. Blue Mel, owned by Phil Bogles of Toronto, was third, four lengths behind Whistling Sea. Native Victor, the 7-to-5 favorite from the Windfields Farm of Toronto industrialist Mrs. E. P. Taylor was fourth another three - quarters of a length back.

The faith in Whistling Sea came from owner Paul Olivier, a 35-year-old Calgary oil drilling supplier, and jockey Tak Inouye, a 30-year-old Japanese-Canadian, from Vernon, B.C., in the face of some tall obstacles.

PARENTS WEREN'T MUCH

To begin with, Calgary bred Whistling Sea had something less than impressive parents. His sire, Alibastre, couldn't win in 27 starts and his dam, Ii. Fast, did nothing even though she was sired by 1938 Plate winner Bunty Lawless.

Then there was a leg ailment last year that forced Whistling Sea home for treatment.

And Whistling Sea was a sprinter as far as trainer Roy Johnson of Calgary was concerned. Johnson didn't feel the horse had enough stamina to run the 1¼-mile Plate distance and with ample reason. Before the Plate Trials a year ago, Whistling Sea had run a mile only once and finished a bad fifth.

"Whistling Sea wouldn't have a chance of winning the Plate," Johnson said after the horse won the six - furlong Woodstock Stakes June 12. "I'd look like a fool if I ran him."

Olivier overruled Johnson and sent Whistling Sea to the Plate Trials. The horse led from wire to wire in winning his 1 1-16-mile race. But the skeptics still doubted that Whistling Sea could go the additional three - sixteenths of a mile in the Plate.

IS UNDERDOG

The Whistling Sea went to the post Saturday an underdog, led from start to finish for the second time in six days, and rewarded his backers, including Olivier, with a return of $16.40, $5.90 and $4.60. Flyalong paid $3.70 and $3 while Blue Mel returned $7.

Inouye stepped into the stirrups only after German born Calgarian Hugo Dittfach bypassed the horse for Blue Mel Dittfach collected about $800 for his ride on Blue Mel and Inouye cashed in for about $5,000.

"It's faith, my tieup with Whistling Sea," Inouye said after the race. "I worked another horse for Johnson a few weeks ago. Then, when the mount on the Whistler was open for the Woodstock Stakes, Roy told my agent to give me the ride."

Whistling Sea had to survive a foul claim by jockey Ron Turcotte of Grand Falls, N.B., who was aboard eighth - place Des Erables owned by Mrs Simone Thomas of Montreal.

Almost as soon as the result were flashed on the tote board the inquiry sign went up. So did a groan from the crowd o 31,752 which included the Queen Mother, on hand to present the Plate trophy and the traditional 50 guineas on behalf of the Queen.

CLAIMS INTERFERENCE

Turcotte claimed interference by Whistling Sea at the start, but the stewards ruled the contact wasn't enough to affect the race.

"Sorry to take a little edge off your win," Turcotte told Inouye afterwards, "but I had to holler when you bumped me out of the gate."

"It's okay," Inouye replied. "You had to do it, but the bumping wasn't my fault. My horse was pushed into Des Erables by the horse beside me. I think it was Butterscotch."

Western - bred horses weren't eligible for the Plate until 1943 and took nearly a quarter of a century to cash in. Whistling Sea's win gave Olivier a $47,633.75 jackpot in addition to a trophy and the purse.

Whistling Sea, who broke Taylor's Plate victory streak at three, was 2½ lengths ahead at the half mile, eased a bit in the stretch when Flyalong made a mild challenge, and turned it on again.

TIME IS OFF RECORD

Whistling Sea's time was 2:03 4-5 over a fast track, well off the Plate record of 2:01 by Taylor's Victoria Park in 1962.

Good Old Mort, owned by Toronto car dealer Ed Somhouse, was fifth in the Plate. The 3-to-1 choice was followed in order by Lucky Marine, owned by Larkin Maloney, Toronto; Super Flow, owned by Bill Beasley, Toronto; Des Erables; Taylor's Top Victory; Chief Brant, a last - minute starter owned by Mrs. Verne Martin of Paris, Ont.; Spotted Flyer, owned by Max Bell of Calgary and Frank McMahon of Vancouver, and Butterscotch from the Montreal stable of Viscount Hardinge.

It was Canada's richest racing day. The crowd bet $1,296,342, breaking the former mark of $1,248,373 set on June 15, 1963. Wagering on the Plate itself set a record of $292,734. The previous high of $257,109 was also set in 1963.

Win Doubles

By MURRAY CRASS
Associated Press Sports Writer

Minnesota Twins have developed the best puppet act since Kukla, Fran and Ollie — Mincher, Mele and Nossek.

The head of the act is manager Sam Mele. And his puppets are keeping Minnesota ahead of the rest of the American League even though they are on stage only half the time.

Don Mincher and Jim Nossek took turns coming up with winning performances Sunday as the Twins swept a double-header from Detroit Tigers 6-4 and 6-5 in 10 innings.

The double victory kept the Twins one-half game ahead of Cleveland Indians and Chicago White Sox, who also won doubleheaders.

Mincher broke up the first game, snapping a 4-4 tie with a two-run homer in the eighth inning. Nossek ended the nightcap with his third hit of the game, a single that brought in Rich Rollins.

First-baseman Mincher and third-baseman Nossek are part of one of the most unusual platooning acts in the majors, with shortstop Zoilo Versalles the only infielder remaining stable.

LEFTHERS BY MINCHER

When the opposition starts a right - handed pitcher, Mele plays Norman Killebrew at third base and places the left-handed hitting Mincher at first base. Southpaw-swinging Bernie Allen plays second.

But when Minnesota faces a southpaw, Mele pulls Mincher off first in favor of Killebrew and picks the right-handed Nossek out of the deepest end of him down at third. Rollins goes in at second.

In other AL games Sunday, the Indians defeated Kansas City Athletics 10-2 in 11 innings and 11-2, the White Sox dumped Baltimore Orioles 6-2 and 4-0, New York Yankees topped Los Angeles Angels 7-2 and Boston Red Sox swept Washington Senators 4-1 and 5-4 in 11.

All three leaders came to grief Saturday as the Twins bowed to Detroit 5-2, Baltimore outlasted Chicago 2-0 in 14 innings and the Indians bowed 4-2 to Kansas City. In other Saturday games the Yankees pummelled the Angels 10-3 and Washington outslugged Boston 12-7.

Chick Histon's fourth hit, a three-run homer off Jim Dickson, ended Cleveland's 1-hour, 15 - inning marathon against Kansas City Sunday.

ROCKY STARTED IT

The Indians broke a 7-7 deadlock in the nightcap with four runs in the seventh. Rocky Colavito started it with a single and scored the lead run on Max Mivle's sacrifice fly.

The White Sox took advantage of five errors, three by Baltimore shortstop Luis Aparicio, for five undarned runs in their doubleheader. They tied the first game 1-1 in the 14th inning on Aparicio's first miscue, and pitcher John Millers throwing error put them ahead to stay in the second.

The White Sox wrapped up the nightcap with three runs in the first inning. Skowron singled across two after runners reached base on errors by Aparicio and pitcher Steve Barber.

The Yankees' Whitey Ford, with relief help from Fedro Ramos in the eighth, posted his sixth straight victory. Elston Howard drove in two runs.

Carl Yastrzemski collected four hits, raising his average to 3.43, in Boston's double victory. He singled in a run in the opener in which the Red Sox also scored runs on wild pitches by Washington's--Bennie Daniels and Marshall Bridges.

Bob Tillman's bases-loaded walk snapped a 4-4 tie in the 11th inning of the second game.

Trenton Shades Stirling

STIRLING (Special) — Scoring their tying tunes in the seventh inning, Trenton Commercial Printers nipped Stirling 7-6 here Saturday night to move into a third-place tie with Tweed in the Belleville and District Softball League standings.

In a lone game tonight, Stirling visits Tweed, at Madoc. Saturday's game was postponed from June 10.

Stirling held a 5-3 lead going into the seventh frame, scoring three runs in the sixth on a single, hit batter, passed ball, error on an outfield pop, a fly ball and a wild pitch.

Trenton got three singles and a hit batter to plate one in the seventh and set up the turning point in the contest. With the bases full, Shortstop Grab let a ground ball and threw to home. The Stirling catcher, rushing in his bid for a double play, stepped off the plate before he took the throw, allowing one run to score. He fired wide of third base and two more came in, making it 6-5. Another base hit upped it to 7-5 before the losers counted one in the eighth. The two costly errors were the only ones made by Stirling.

Bob Lott got credit for the win, giving way to Pat Marcele in the seventh frame. They allowed eight hits. Lott fanned three and walked none while Marcele struck out five and passed two.

Howard Jefs went the distance for Stirling. He gave up ten hits, struck out 12 and walked but one.

Ron Chambers drove in Trenton's first two runs with a homer in the second inning, and also had a single. Bob McAlpine led all hitters with three safeties while Leon Mowatt got a pair. Roger Drake, Jim Shoniker, Art Barker and Pat Marcele also hit safely. Maracle's pinch - hit blow in the seventh ignited the big rally.

Clare Hagerman and Bob Lott had two singles each for the losers with John Noble, Roger Smith, Bob Noble and Doug Irwin notching the others.

Weslock Wins 6th Ontario Open

By STERLING TAYLOR

MILTON, Ont. (CP)—There's no telling what Nick Weslock will do when he's entirely happy with his golf game.

The 47 - year - old amateur from Burlington, Ont., won an unprecedented six in Ontario Open Saturday, capturing the Carling Trophy for the second straight year, finishing off with a two-under-par 69 for a tournament record of 204 for 54 holes.

Then the veteran sauntered off the green and confided that he had taken instructions that morning from two professionals —both finished far behind him in the tournament—in order to improve his play.

The previous day Weslock came in from shooting a 67 over the 6,305 - yard Tralalgar Golf and Country Club layout and expressed dissatisfaction. COMPLAINS ABOUT PUTTS

"I wasted a lot of putts on that round," he complained.

There was an eight - stroke gap between Weslock and his nearest opponent at the end but Bob Panasiuk, the Windsor, Ont., professional who finished second, had plenty of consolation.

His 212 total earned him $1,200 as top professional and earned him a place in the $200,000 Carling World Tournament at Sutton, Mass., Aug. 19-22, an event for which Weslock had already qualified.

The winners from open championships in Quebec, Manitoba, Alberta and British Columbia will also gain a spot in the world tournament.

Bill Mawhinney of Toronto finished third and won $800 for his second - place finish among the competing professionals.

Amateurs Martin Mason of Toronto and Tom McAllister of Woodbridge, Ont., tied with professionals Jack Kay of Toronto and Adrien Bigras of Ste. Dorothee, Que., for fourth place with 215s.

Bigras and Kay each picked up $530.

HAVE 216s

Six Hamilton, a Brampton amateur, finished at 216 with professional Frank Whibley of Kitchener.

Ten other professionals split lesser amounts of prize money with Al Johnson of Montreal, finishing in last place among the money winners with 225.

The big news of the final day was a hole-in-one on the ninth hole by Bob Rose of Toronto. He scored the ace on the par 3, 197-yard hole with a two iron and went on to card a course record of 63. He was awarded an additional $100 for his hole-in-one.

The amateurs were competing for a spot on Ontario's Willingdon Cup team. The tournament along with the qualifying round of the Ontario Amateur make up the cup team trials.

Defeats Snell, Grelle

Jim Ryun, 18, Sets New US Mile Record

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (CP)—Gerry Lindgren, running away from a jurisdictional dispute between the two major governing bodies of United States track and field, ran so fast Sunday night that he claimed a share of a world record.

And 18-year-old Jim Ryun, too young to be involved in the political crossfire, caught Peter Snell and Jim Grelle trying to outmanoeuvre each other and stripped them in the last forest mile ever run by an American citizen.

Together with a 13:15.4 clock-ing by Bob Schul, the Olympic 5,000-metre champion, on the three miles Saturday night which also set a U.S. citizen's record, these were the highlights of the two-day United States Amateur Athletic Union championships.

Lindgren and half-miler Tom Farrell were the only undergraduates to defy the boycott by the National Collegiate Athletic Association of the AAU meet, from which the 10-man team for the dual meet against Russia next month will be selected.

Neither won his race—Farrell was third behind U.S. Olympian Morgan Groh—but the diminutive Lindgren pushed Billy Mills to the wire in a spine-tingling six-mile race in which both were timed in 27:11.6. The former world mark-of 27:17.8 was set in 1963 by Ron Clarke of Australia.

The electronic timing separated Lindgren and Mills, the Olympic 10,000 - metre title-holder, by one-twentieth of a second but AAU officials said they will be certified as co-holders of the record.

The mile loomed as a rematch between Snell, the former world record-holder, and Grelle, who won decisively at Vancouver June 4 when the New Zealander was weakened by a stomach ailment and finished last.

But while the two favorites jockeyed for position, Ryun charged into a sizable lead on the final lap. The times were 3:53.3 for Ryun, 3:53.4 for Snell and 3:55.5 for Grelle. The old U.S. native mark of 3:55.4 was set by Grelle in the Vancouver race.

'Quinte' Wins The Quinte

After an 18-year drought, Bay of Quinte golfers captured the Quinte Cup Matches played before a large gallery and in blistering temperatures here on Saturday.

The play marked the 42nd year of the event and local players made it one to remember for BQC golfers.

Competing against the new winners were teams from Trenton, Picton and Napanee.

The Quinte Cup teams are picked at each club by the qualifiers in the club championship round.

Belleville battled Picton in the first round and copped a 9-up victory.

In the other round, Napanee defeated Trenton 5-2 with two ties.

In the second round, Belleville won a 6-3 decision over Napanee while Trenton took a narrow 5-4 victory over Picton.

Junior Lacrosse

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The rich got richer and the poor poorer in Ontario Lacrosse Association junior play on the weekend.

Oshawa Green Gaels walloped Guelph Mohawks 25-9 Sunday. Oshawa now has won all of its games this season while the hapless Mohawks have won just one game in nine.

In other weekend games, champion Armstrongs defeated Long Branch Castrolites 8-6 and Hastings Legionnaires won over St. Catharines 15-12. Both games were played Saturday.

ANNOUNCE TEAM

VANCOUVER (CP) — Four Vancouver golfers will make up British Columbia's Willingdon Cup team for 1965 to represent the province in the matches at Winnipeg later this year, the B.C. Amateur Golf Association announced Saturday night. The four names were Johnny Johnston, John Russell, Bert Tierney and Wayne Vollmer. The alternates — Frank Head and Harry Campbell—also are from Vancouver.

Trenton Driver Wins Race

WATKINS GLEN, N.Y. (CP) — Jim Hall of Midland, Tex., drove a Chaparral to victory in the 200-mile United States road racing championship here Sunday. His time was two hours, one minute 8.6 seconds, an average speed of 99.11 miles an hour, a record.

In second place was Hap Sharp in a Lola-Ford in another automatic transmission Chaparral.

Ludwig Heimrath of Toronto was lying third place in his McLaren when he retired on lap 17 of the 91-lap race with a broken A-arm in his front suspension.

Foxboro Outplays Planes

Foxboro outplayed Planes Concreto in the field and matched them at the plate to score a 4-2 victory over the hometowners Saturday night. Four Canadian errors to only one for the winners proved the difference.

Keith Dickey hurled the distance for Foxboro and was tagged with eight hits, struck out eight and walked four.

Butch Clapp, Canniton pitcher, gave up eight hits, struck out nine and issued three free passes.

Turcotte had a double and a single for the winners. Pete Young and Gerry Mann had a pair of singles each, and Glen Reynolds and Dickey stroked singles.

For Planes, Clapp smashed a triple, double and single, while Ross Empey bit a double and single. Planes' catcher Moe Hunter had a double and Ron Urch and Pat O'Conner stroked singles.

Floyd Wins at St. Paul

ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP)—Raymond Floyd, a beefy young belter who brims with confidence on a golf course, may be ready to join the likes of Arnold Palmer and Jack Nicklaus in the power brigade on the pro golf tour.

Floyd, playing his third year on the pro tour although only 23, slammed his way to the championship in the $100,000 St. Paul Open Sunday and picked up the biggest cheque of his career, $20,000.

He shot a final-round 69 on wind-blown Keller Golf Course for a 72-hole total of 270—14 under par and four strokes better than Tommy Aaron and Gene Littler.

Deal Refram was fourth at 275, a stroke ahead of Nicklaus and Bruce Devlin, while Palmer, Joe Campbell, Dick Sikes and Gardner Dickinson all had 277.

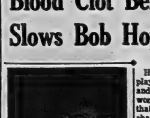
Blood Clot Behind Eyes Slows Bob Hope to Walk

By BOB HOPE

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — I've played before presidents, kings and big audiences all over the world, and I have to confess that I've had more than my share of thrilling moments and exciting experiences. But a few times in my life I've been scared, and oddly enough one was never due to facing presidents, royalty, or huge crowds. One of the most sobering experiences of my life was my eye trouble, which began about six years ago, during my Christmas trip overseas. It started with a nausea, dizziness and headaches, and pains in both eyes. At a party for our troops in Frankfurt, Germany, I almost fell flat on my face; later, in Keflavik, Iceland, I collapsed and had to be treated with penicillin by an army doctor.

On our return to Hollywood, my family doctor told me that I had a blood clot behind my left eye, gave me some pills and told me to take it easy. He take it easy? He had to be kidding. I took the pills and ignored his advice.



COULDN'T FOCUS

Three weeks later, I was putting on the green and discovered that I couldn't focus on the ball. This really frightened me, because golf is my racket. It's a game for fellows who are too old for girls and still want to get into a fight.

Then the doctor told me that the blood clot was spreading, and I took a plane for the Columbia - Presbyterian Medical Centre in New York. I kept making jokes, like when I told the head physician, "Now when I meet my friends on the golf course, they can talk about my eye instead of my ski nose."

But the doc didn't laugh. "For the next two weeks" he said soberly, "I don't want you even near a golf course."

His firmness convinced me that the joke was over. I was told that if I didn't slow down I might lose the sight in one eye. A series of photocoagulation treatments at Children's

AT THE PARK — From The Depths Of The Unknown — Neil McClinton uncovers a horror beyond the wildest imagination in "House of Horrors" Paramount's new horror shocker which comes tonight at the Park Theatre. AT THE BELLEVILLE DRIVE-IN — Nome-To-Nome, Head To Head, Luciana Paluzzi and Buddy Hackett get real close in a scene from the romantic hit in color "Muscle Beach Party", showing tonight and Tuesday at the Belleville Drive-In Theatre. 2nd feature attraction, also in color, "The Young Racers", features Mark Damon, William Campbell and Luana Anders.

Hospital in San Francisco followed wherein they sent a beam through the retina and mended the vessel behind the eye. I had to lie very still—not an easy task for me. Afterwards I had to wear pin-point sunglasses. Fortunately, I haven't had a recurrence.

A strange thing happened to me in Viet Nam last Christmas Eve, when I was driving through downtown Saigon to my hotel. We met a hotel going the other way. It was frightening. The American officers' billet, the Brink Hotel, was bombed by the Viet Cong 15 minutes before we checked into the Caravelle Hotel. Our hotel was right across the street. We stepped in and up-toed through the shattered glass in the lobby. Our luggage was searched by the demolition squad. Armed guards patrolled the halls. Our usual party was called off. It made for quite a nervous Christmas Eve. Well, we went over there to get some action, but got a little more than expected.

Emerson, Stolle Favored

LONDON (CP) — Top-seeded Roy Emerson, the defending champion, and second - seeded Fred Stolle represented Australia's tennis power as the men's singles competition entered the quarter-finals today in the all-England championships at Wimbledon.

Three U.S. players have reached the final eight, and at least one of them will be in the semi-finals. It's the strongest American showing in years.

The U.S. trio are all university students. Dennis Ralston, seeded fourth, and unseeded Marty Riessen and Allen Fox.

Ralston and Riessen will meet head-on today, and Fox faces unseeded Cliff Drysdale of South Africa.

Emerson meets Keith Diepraam, Drysdale's partner on the South African Davis Cup team. Stolle plays Rafael Osuna, the Mexican stroke artist who won the 1963 U.S. championship and is in the Wimbledon quarter-finals for the third time in four years.

The only Canadian still in competition, Vicki Berner of Vancouver, teams with Mary Habicht of the United States today to play Phyllis Brand and Dorothy Whiteley, both of Australia, in the second round of women's doubles.

Leafs Drop Twin Bill To Jets

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

It cost Ed Hobaugh a little sweat but he still got an enjoyable birthday present Sunday.

Hobaugh, who was 31, celebrated the anniversary by pitching the Leafs' 1-2-3 victory in Columbus Jets' 4-3 win in the nightcap of an International League doubleheader against Toronto Maple Leafs.

The Jets also won the first game, which went 14 innings, by a 6-5 score.

In other Sunday games, Atlanta Crackers won a doubleheader from Rochester Red Wings by scores of 11-10 and 2-0, Syracuse Chiefs swept a twin bill from Jacksonville Suns 4-3 and 5-3 and Toledo Mud Hens shut out Buffalo Bisons 4-0 in a single game.

Saturday, the Leafs beat Columbus 3-2, Toledo blanked Buffalo 1-0, Rochester shut out Atlanta 2-0 and the Suns defeated the Chiefs 5-0.

Clark Wins Grand Prix

CLERMONT - FERRAND (AP) — Scotsman Jim Clark won the 31st Grand Prix of France Sunday with a driving style so relaxed he didn't even know he was knocking down the records.

"After a few laps I felt right at home on the circuit," said Clark of the serpentine five - mile Auvergne course, served out of the sides of ancient volcano cones. The Scot race drove a Lotus.

So tough was the going that Clark's winning time was a modest two hours, 14 minutes, 38.4 seconds for an average speed of 89 miles an hour. Clark set seven lap records on his 40 times around. The lap time that stuck was three minutes, 18.9 seconds for an average of 90.5 m.p.h.

Speedboat Race Won By Storey

CAESAREA, Ont. (CP)—Don Smith of Niagara Falls, Ont., took home two titles from the eastern Ontario (zone two) championship speedboat races on Lake Scugog Sunday.

Smith came home first in both the A and B racing hydroplane races.

Jim Coutts of North Tonawanda, N.Y., won the C class racing hydroplane race after finishing second in the C stock hydroplane division. John Finley of Port Credit won the C stock race.

Dick Storey of Belleville won the D stock division, largest motors in the races, finishing ahead of Oshawa's Ed Thompson and Roy Warner of Oakville.

Mike Burns of Oshawa took the A stock hydro race and Bruce Thinel of Caesarea won the B stock hydro division.

WINS BIKE RODEO

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont. (CP)—George Fedorley of Sault Ste. Marie won the senior boy's event in the all-Ontario Jaycee bicycle rodeo here during the weekend. First in the senior girl's event was Tana Beach of Oshawa. More than 70 persons took part.

Pinson, Robinson Star

Reds Hit Braves Twice; Crowd Dodgers

By MIKE RATHET
Associated Press Sports Writer

Continuing to prove that 1965 will be no exception in his flip-flop pattern, Vada Pinson combined with roommate Frank Robinson for nine hits and eight runs batted in as Cincinnati Reds pounded Milwaukee Braves 10-9 and 10-2 Sunday and moved within one game of the National League lead.

Pinson sealed the sweep with a grand slam homer in the nightcap and wound up the day with four hits, four runs scored and four runs batted in. Robinson, who won the opener with a tie-breaking homer in the ninth, collected five hits while also scoring four and driving in four.

Pinson's 4-for-8 performance lifted his average to .311 while re-emphasizing the off-and-on pattern he has established during his seven-year major league career.

Starting with 1959, his first full year, Pinson has hit over .300 every odd-numbered year and under that level in the even - numbered seasons with averages of .316, .287, .343, .292, .313 and last year's lowest of all, .266.

And not only is the 28-year-old outfielder maintaining his record, he also is threatening it, improve on his best homer and RBI totals while challenging Robinson for team leadership in both departments. Pinson now has 13 homers and 46 RBI to Robinson's 14 homers and 50 RBI for Robinson.

With Pinson and Robinson showing the way, the Reds slashed 29 hits in the doubleheader, made it 11 victories in the last 14 games and closed considerable ground on the front - running Los Angeles Dodgers, who were walloped by Pittsburgh Pirates 10-2.

CARDS, CUBS SPLIT

Elsewhere, St. Louis Cardinals defeated Chicago 8-0 before the Cubs took the nightcap 6-3, Philadelphia Phillies' Ray Culp shut out San Francisco Giants 6-0 and Houston Astros downed New York Mets 4-2.

In Saturday's games Pittsburgh's Harmon Killebrew blanked 2-1, Milwaukee shaded Cincinnati 2-1, the Giants n'oped the Phillies 4-3, the Cincinnati Reds bombed Chicago 8-1 and Houston blanked the Mets 2-0.

The Reds built a 9-1 lead in the opener Sunday with Deron Johnson, Tony Perez and Tommy Harper hitting homers. The Braves came back to tie the score in a wild sixth inning that saw Cincinnati eight runs, two players and a manager.

Frank Bolling and Joe Torre smashed homers during the Milwaukee uprising with Torre's blow just inside the foul line causing an argument that led to the ejection of pitcher John Tsitouris, Johnson and manager Dick Sisler.

CLEARS THE BASES

The nightcap was easier for the Reds, who exploded for six runs in the fourth inning, including the fifth grand slam of Pinson's career and another homer by Robinson. Jim Maloney breezed to the victory for an 8-3 record.

Jim Pagliaroni hit a three-run homer and Bill Mazeroski chipped in with a two-run shot as the Pirates handed Johnny Podres his fourth straight defeat. Bob Veale, now 8-5, checked the Dodgers on five hits and struck out 11.

Bob Gibson, who had lost six straight after starting the season with eight victories in a row, limited the Cubs to five hits and struck out 12 in the opener while supplying the only runs the Cardinals needed with a two-run homer in the second inning.

Jeffery Archer won the 220-yard sprint for British team and Francis Brown was winner in the javelin throw Saturday. In one of the highlights of the meet, Alasdair Heron won the six-mile run — the first time he had covered that distance. Geoff Day was first in the 120-yard hurdles.

Crothers, in addition to the 880, topped the field in Friday's running of the 440.

In the women's division, Jenny Wingerson of Toronto won twice with victories in the 80-metre hurdles Friday and the broad jump Saturday.

Abby Hoffman, another premeet favorite, won the 880-yard run Saturday, after being upset by Cecilia Carter of Hamilton in the 440 Friday. Miss Carter was second in the 880.

Erzan Lee did not appear to be challenged in his events. In the mile run, he took the lead in the final turn, moving from fifth spot, and headed home first in a time of 4:09.1. Dave Bailey was first in the mile of East York finished behind Lepa.

Canadian Track, Field

Favorites On Top; No Records Cracked

ST. LAMBERT, Que. (CP)— The favorites ran true to form in near - ideal weather conditions Saturday. But they failed to produce any work for the record - keepers of the Amateur Athletic Union of Canada.

The two-day national track and field championships got underway Friday under bright skies but wind gusts of 18-miles - an - hour hampered the opening day's events.

Even though Saturday brought more bright sunshine and negligible wind velocity, there were no record - shattering performances in the 28 senior title events.

Favorite Nancy McCredie of the Don Mills Club, Bill Crothers of East York and Ergas Leps of the Toronto Track Club all came through with victories.

Miss McCredie, winner of the women's javelin and discus throws Friday, added the shot put title Saturday to emerge as the meet's only triple winner. Her best heave was 31 feet, one inch, one - and - a - half inches short of the Canadian open record in that category.

Crothers, the Markham, Ont., pharmacist who won a silver medal for Canada in the Tokyo Olympics last year, was the 880-yard event bandity. Leps, as expected, finished first in the one-mile run.

In addition, the national relay championships were held separately Sunday. Teams from the Manitoba branch of the AAU won three of the seven men's events.

The Toronto Track Club won two relays while the Southwestern Ontario Branch and the Toronto Olympic Club's A squad won one each.

The Don Mills club won the team championship as they compiled an aggregate score of 134 points. Second spot went to the visiting Oxford - Cambridge squad, 10 points back, and British Columbia was third with 89 points.

Irish Derby Winner

Meadow Court Horse Of Year

DUBLIN (CP) — Meadow Court, owned by three millionaires from North America, was being hailed today as British three-year-old of the year after winning the Irish Derby here Saturday.

And Calgary publisher Max Bell, Vancouver oil executive Frank McMahon and American singer Bing Crosby were in happy mood because their choice in horseflesh had come through nobly for them.

Meadow Court, the 11-to-10 betting favorite, won $186,900 first-prize money by covering the rain-soggy 1½-mile course in two minutes, 46 4-5 seconds, beating runner-up Convamore by two lengths. Wedding Present was third in the field of 21 three-year-olds.

British racing writers today praised Meadow Court, which earlier had placed second to France's Sea Bird II in the Derby at Epsom.

Tim Fitzgeorge - Parkers, in the London Daily Mail, put it this way:

"Meadow Court must be hailed as British horse of the year and the likely winner if he clashes with Reliance II in the St. Leger at Doncaster on Sept. 8."

Senior Lacrosse

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Huntsville Hawks proved for the second time in two nights that league-leaders aren't invincible.

The Hawks handed Brooklin Merchants, winners of their first 10 games this season, an 8-6 setback inSaturday in Ontario Lacrosse Association Senior A action.

It was the second night in a row that the Merchants Canadian senior champions last season, had been beaten. Brampton Excelsiors turned the trick Friday, defeating the Merchants 13-9.

In the only other weekend game, Brampton whipped St. Catharines Athletics 19-13 Sunday.

Dozen-Run Blast Wins For Latta

Latta rode a 12-run fifth inning into a first place tie with Foxboro in a South Hastings Baseball League game, at Read, on Sunday.

Latta trounced Read 17-2.

The big explosion in the fifth inning broke a 2-2 tie and the visitors added another marker in the eighth and two in the ninth. Mavety's solo homer, and a three-run blast by Rollins, featured the 12-run outburst.

Lorne Cronkright tamed the Read batters on four hits in pitching Latta's victory. He set nine down on third strike: and walked a pair.

Frank Farrell started for Read with both Ted Abrams and Percy Milligan called in during the fifth. They gave up 19 hits in all. Farrell lanned five and walked four, Abrams two and one and Milligan three and none. They were all combed freely, giving up nine, four and six hits, in that order of action.

Doug Rollins boomed out a home run with three on and a single to lead all Latta hitters. Bob Smith also got four hits, two of them doubles, and Larry Mavety hit a homer, double and single. Doug Chisholm contributed a double and two singles, Howard Meeks two doubles, Gary Ray and Lorne Cronkright one each and Doug Green a single.

For Read, Gerry Brennan had a home run and triple, L. Enright and W. Pascoe a single apiece.

U.S. Paratroops Go Into Action In S. Viet Nam

SAIGON (AP) — U.S. paratroopers have gone into action with South Vietnamese airborne units in the first joint American-Vietnamese combat operation of the war against the Communist Viet Cong, a U.S. military spokesman announced.

The spokesman said American and South Vietnamese casualties in the hogg operation were light so far.

The men of the U.S. 173rd Airborne Brigade and the South Vietnamese paratroopers were lifted into the attack zone 30 miles north of Saigon Monday by helicopter.

Operations were continuing today.

Meanwhile, U.S. Air Force planes today made their deepest strike yet into North Viet Nam, hitting a barracks and supply depot 150 miles west northwest of Hanoi, U.S. military spokesmen announced.

JET HIT

A U.S. Air Force B-57 jet bomber was hit by Communist groundfire as it supported a ground operation 15 miles from Saigon and crashed and burned in a rice field two miles north of the Saigon airport, U.S. spokesmen reported.

The two crew members ejected from the plane after the left wing caught fire, but one man's parachute failed to open, the spokesmen said.

A second American plane, an RF-101, was shot down at low altitude on another raid north of the Hanoi line, and the pilot was presumed killed, spokesmen announced.

Informed sources in Seoul said North Korean military officials are consulting with U.S. military authorities on steps toward the dispatch of 15,000 combat soldiers to South Viet Nam.

American officials in Washington said the United States would be willing to participate in peace talks at which Viet Cong representatives were present as part of the North Vietnamese team.

But they emphasized again that the Johnson administration is determined to negotiate only with a government — such as that of South Viet Nam—and not with the Viet Cong as a separate, independent group.

Will Send Tactical Jet Planes

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada likely will send two squadrons of tactical jet planes to Europe to provide close air support for its 6,200-man infantry brigade there, informed sources say.

Such a move is still someway. The government hasn't yet formally decided which if two American tactical planes it will have built in Canada for the RCAF.

However, it is indicated that the likely choice, as it has been for the last two months, is still the Northrop F-5 Freedom Fighter. The other plane still in the running is the Ling-Temco-Vought A-7 Corsair.

Defence Minister Hellyer has already decided, officials said, to reduce the number of CF-104 nuclear jet bomber squadrons in Europe to six from eight, possibly next year. The RCAF has lost 27 of these 238 planes—200 combat aircraft and 38 trainers—in crashes.

Authorities said NATO has too many strike planes like the CF-104 in Europe and too few tactical support aircraft like the F-5.

COULD BE MAINTAINED

Mr. Hellyer thus could maintain an eight-squadron commitment to NATO by sending to Europe two squadrons — 36 planes—of a type of aircraft the alliance commanders would prefer.

Such a move likely would involve acquisition of a new RCAF base in West Germany, possibly through an exchange arrangement. The two bases in Germany and one in France are considered too far away from the Canadian brigade area in the Ruhr for efficient use of tactical planes in brigade support.

The defence department has earmarked some $215,000,000 for a new tactical plane to support not only the brigade in Europe but the 3,500-man special force in Canada, designed to be able to operate anywhere in the world.

For this amount of money, the defence department could obtain 185 F-5s, it has concluded. The object is to have the airframe built at Canadair Limited, Montreal, and the engine

House Approves Tax Bill

By WILLIAM NEVILLE

OTTAWA (CP) — Parliament may be down to its final sitting day before the long - awaited summer recess.

It spends on when MPs get a look at the Dorion report and how they react to it.

The report on charges of attempted bribery and influence-peddling against federal ministerial aides is expected to be placed before the Commons when it meets at 2:30 p.m. EDT.

Members will have a quick chance to debate it when the government asks for interim supply to carry it through the summer until Parliament resumes in the fall.

The question is how far opposition spokesmen will jump at the chance.

'I'LL TAKE IT EASY'

The initial word from Conservative sources was that the official opposition at least will contest itself at this stage with a few preliminary comments. Among them may well be a call for a government housecleaning before the current session resumes.

The main parliamentary fire resulting from the report by Chief Justice Fredie Dorion of the Quebec Superior Court likely will be left over to the fall when opposition members will have had time both to digest its contents and gauge public reaction to it.

Interim supply, to give the government operating money to Oct. 31, is one of four items left to be cleared away before MPs head home. The others are amendments to the Judges Act and Veterans Land Act and the government's new legislation to make outright grants to areas designated as slow-growth and high-unemployment areas.

The Judges Act amendments will give Justice Minister Favreau a chance to reply to opposition criticism of two judges who have faced criminal charges in recent months.

Opposition MPs called last week for the resignation of Mr. Justice Leo Landreville of the Ontario Supreme Court, who was acquitted at a preliminary hearing last year of charges in connection with Northern Ontario Natural Gas stock. And they demanded that at least the name of Mr. Justice Adrien Meunier of Montreal Superior Court be suspended pending his appeal against a perjury conviction and two-year prison sentence.

CLEARS HURDLE

The House cleared a major roadblock Monday by giving final approval to controversial tax changes involving newspapers and magazines proposed in Finance Minister Gordon's budget.

The issue was settled when the government won a 102-to-78 vote rejecting a New Democratic amendment that would have sent the measure back to committee of the whole for reconsideration. Once that was out of the way, the bill itself passed without a formal vote.

The key provision in the 29-clause bill, which also embodies a 10-per-cent cut in personal income taxes effective this

OTTAWA (CP) — Jean Chrétien (L — St. Maurice-Lafleche), 31 - year - old lawyer, today was elected chairman of the Commons committee on legal affairs and privileges.

Robert Temple (L—Hastings South), also a lawyer, was elected vice chairman.

THEY'RE ENGAGED — The engagement of Crown Princess Beatrix of The Netherlands to West German diplomat Claus von Amsberg, 38, was announced by Queen Juliana in a radio-television broadcast. At the same time, the royal family released this photograph of the 27-year-old future queen and her fiance, taken in Princess Beatrix' home, Castle Drakensteyn. The engagement had been preceded by heated public debate over whether von Amsberg, who had served in the German army, was acceptable as a palace consort.

Mayor Ellis Leads Attack On Police Commission Bill

KITCHENER (CP)—The Ontario government was criticized for its policies in several fields Monday during the annual convention of the Ontario Association of Mayors and Reeves.

The association passed a resolution accusing the government of giving the Ontario Police Commission dictatorial powers which "endanger the public interest and the democratic system of government."

Mayor Jack Ellis of Belleville suggested the new amendments to the Police Act are similar to Bill 99, the "police state bill" quashed after a public furor last year.

The new legislation on the Ontario Police Commission which the association attacked gave the commission increased powers to determine standards, arms and equipment, and size of staff on municipal police departments.

Municipal councils' disputes with their police commissions on police budgets were made subject to appeal to the Ontario Police Commission only.

Reeve Albert Campbell of Scarborough, a suburb of Toronto, said it would be better to have the appeals go to the attorney-general, an elected official, rather than to an appointed commission.

He said municipal councils are becoming nothing more than "collection agencies for appointed boards and commissions" as more responsibility is taken away.

Mayor Gordon Stronach of London, Ont., association president, said new provincial legislation is putting such a burden on home-owners that people are "questioning the wisdom" of owning their own homes.

He also said the government is not providing enough aid to municipalities for soaring education costs and it should institute a new system of education grants.

But Municipal Affairs Minister J. W. Spooner told the mayors to overhaul their municipal assessment machinery before demanding tax money from other sources.

He said startling evidence of poor assessment practice was revealed in a recent survey of 900 assessment rolls. Discovered were assessable properties missing from the roll; summer cottages assessed on business level and apparently deliberate

Dorion Report Is Ready

OTTAWA (CP)—The cabinet went into session shortly after 11 a.m. today prepared to deal with the report of Chief Justice Frederic Dorion on allegations of attempted bribery and political pressure by ministerial aides.

Prime Minister Pearson arrived at the cabinet chamber carrying a yellow-covered copy of the judge's report which appamlingly riffled through in front of reporters without letting them get a good look at it.

"Yes, I have read it," he told questioners.

"I slept very well," he added to a further question. "I was very tired."

Mr. Pearson returned Monday night from the Commonwealth prime ministers' conference in London and took a copy of the report home with him.

Copies were distributed to ministers shortly before the cabinet convened.

Mr. Pearson said he expected the cabinet session to last "the

Other Regions Still Parched; Winds Rip Trees

TORONTO (CP) — Southern Ontario between Toronto and Kingston was drenched with rain Monday night as a ban of thunderstorms moved along the shore of Lake Ontario.

More than two inches of rain was recorded in suburban Scarborough and nearly an inch fell in Toronto. Peterborough and Kingston also reported heavy rainfall.

In Metropolitan Toronto lightning was blamed for 23 fires including a $150,000 blaze that hit a clothing factory shooting flames hundreds of feet into the air. Police, fire departments and hydro officers were swamped with emergency calls. Hundreds of motorists were stranded, unable to move their cars.

Thunderstorms activity occurred in almost all parts of the province but in most places there was little rain.

The parched Ottawa Valley, where drought has reached crisis conditions in recent weeks, got only little relief. Ottawa recorded only one-hundredth of an inch of rain and Killaloe, 100 miles southwest of Pembroke, had none.

In western Ontario there was a trace of rain recorded at Mount Forest, 35 miles northwest of Kitchener, and London had what a weather office spokesman called a "sprinkle." Simcoe and Windsor had none.

FALLS ON LAKE

Radar observations at Toronto showed that much of the rain fell on Lake Ontario.

One of the hardest-hit communities was Peterborough, where about six inches of water flooded the main streets, floating garbage cans down the road.

A small twister in Monaghan South Township, 10 miles south of Peterborough, ripped out hydro poles and maple trees and tore two chimneys and the roof off a house.

Many power failures were reported in the district. Lightning damaged a transformer serving radio station CHEX and CHEX-TV, pulling the stations out of service for about 4½ hours.

A group of Peterborough residents said they were considerably shiny the rain-soaked homes were flooded in the storm. They said they have been trying for almost a year to get the city to install a drainage ditch to carry rain water in storm sewers.

POWER FAILS

In Kingston, where Ontario Hydro officials said one-quarter of an inch of rain fell during the storm's main onslaught there were power failures and two houses were damaged when a tree fell between them.

Flooding of basements occurred in many parts of Metropolitan Toronto. Traffic was halted on one street for more than an hour when water flooded to a depth of three feet. Both passing lanes on the Macdonald - Cartier Freeway were flooded for more than a mile east of Toronto and two cars ran off the road on to the median. There were no injuries.

High winds, gusting to more than 50 miles per hour, downed hydro lines which cut power in different areas throughout the Belleville district, featured a sharp electrical storm which swept across the Quinte district late yesterday.

Approximately one-half inch of rain fell in the Belleville area in a series of showers, which commenced about 5 p.m. The intermittent rains ceased at midnight.

High winds, which smashed down trees and ripped off limbs, were the big trouble maker in the Belleville area, with even hydro poles being carried to the ground in the Shannonville and the Foxboro areas.

Mr. E. H. Burnham, manager of the Belleville Public Utilities, said there was no serious trouble in the city, although a broken tree carried down hydro wires on Highland Ave.

POWER OUT OFF

Power was cut in various sections of the city for brief periods because of the storm.

The effect of the high wind was felt mostly in the rural areas with hydro repair crews being called out early. Most of the linemen worked all night to clear lines and get power restored.

Most of the line trouble was said cleared up and power restored by early morning, but some rural customers were still without power at 9.00 this morning.

However, where power was still off at mid-morning the trouble was blown fuses at isolated transformers which had not yet been visited by repair crews.

FIREMEN BUSY

The storm also kept the city fire department on the run but here again no serious trouble was reported.

The fact that a night crew was still working probably saved a serious fire loss at Aluminum Star Ltd. on College Street when lightning struck an exhaust fan structure.

Painting was in progress in an inside spray booth in the exhaust fan prevented flames from getting into the building. Exceptionally high winds swept across the Foxboro area causing considerable damage to trees.

One big maple fell beside the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ernie Smith just missing the roof of the house. The gust of high winds lasted only about 15 seconds but trees were lost and more old were carried to the ground.

Firemen were called to Belleville Auto Electric and American Optical Ltd. where fire alarms were tripped.

Firemen also were sent to Shannonville and Foxboro where they stood by until the arrival of hydro repairmen.

Constable Rescues Two As Car Burns

KINGSTON (CP) — Police Constable Gary Wood pulled one man to safety and helped free another from the wreckage of their burning car here today.

The policemnh was in the vicinity when the car, carrying two men, crashed into a utility pole and sparks from a damaged electric transformer ignited leaking gasoline.

Ronald Pilling, 33, of Pembroke, who was driving the car, is in poor condition in hospital. Real Viau, 28, also of Pembroke, is in satisfactory condition in hospital.

Tension In Cyprus Remains High Despite UN Supervision

NICOSIA (Reuters) — The United Nations peacekeeping force in Cyprus today began duty in the troubled island of Cyprus with tension as high as ever.

In the last four months three Greek-Cypriot national guardsmen and one Turkish-Cypriot have been killed in areas where the island's two races face each other in a state of armed readiness.

The recognition of all parties concerned that a return to normal condition was impossible led to the Security Council's June 15 decision to extend the peace force mandate. The council lengthened the mandate from three to six months.

The UN force has reported a total of 250 shooting incidents in the last four months. Thirty were classified by the UN as deliberate breaches of the ceasefire.

They indicate the explosive situation that still exists 18 months after the first clashes between Greeks and Turks in Nicosia late in December, 1963.

It is only the presence of the UN force which prevents minor incidents from spreading into a general flare up.

The 6,000-man military force is drawn from Canada, Britain, Ireland, Sweden, Denmark and Finland, supplemented by civilian police from Australia, New Zealand, Austria, Sweden and Denmark.

Their patrols cover every part of the island, but most attention is given to Nicosia and the northwestern Turkish enclaves of Lefka and Kokkina.

Nicosia remains divided by the ceasefire line, fortified on both sides with sandbags and barricaded houses. The Greeks and Turks in around Lefka have exchanged heavy fire in recent months.

Other parts of the island are comparatively calm and Turkish-Cypriots are free to travel, subject to inspection and searches by Greek-Cypriot police.

Greek - Cypriots can travel along th eTurkish-held road between Nicosia and the coastal resort of Kyrenia only in twice-daily convoys, escorted by UN troops.

The relative calm has allowed some progress toward economic recovery, in which a civilian component of the UN operation is playing its part.

Their liaison has been essential in allowing some revival of the industries and agriculture on which Cyprus depends.

The UN supervises sowing and harvesting by Greeks and Turks in mixed areas, arranges for the cultivation of abandoned farms, solves water supply problems, fires mischinery and collects taxes.

Freedom of Press Is Not Threatened by New Bill Says PC Senator O'Leary

OTTAWA (CP)—Senator M. Grattan O'Leary told the Senate Monday night that Time and Reader's Digest were exempted from the government's controversial newspaper and magazine legislation because of pressure from Washington.

"I don't think there's a shadow of doubt about it," he said when the bill was introduced in the Senate. Earlier it received third and final reading in the Commons.

The bill disallows as a tax deduction money spent on advertising in foreign - owned Canadian periodicals. The Canadian editions of Time and Reader's Digest, both foreign-owned, are considered Canadian publications under the bill.

"If there was ever a more illogical, more inconsistent law ever passed by a Parliament, I don't know where or when it was," said Senator O'Leary, president of the Ottawa Journal who was chairman of the 1960 royal commission on publications.

CLAIMS ARE NONSENSE

But he dismissed as nonsense Conservative claims in the Commons that the tax on advertising constitutes a threat to freedom of the press. He said he spoke "not for any political party nor for any newspaper" but merely as a member of the Senate.

The Senate continues its debate on the bill today.

"I have read the bill as thoroughly as I can and I can't find a sentence, a word or a syllable that threatens the freedom of the press," said Senator O'Leary.

In 50 years in newspaper work he couldn't recall such an uproar about press freedom. While he didn't suggest the sincerity of his newspaper colleagues, he did not share their fears.

There was too much nonsense about freedom of the press. But reporters had a special interest in legislation.

"This was a hoary, sanctified myth."

Newspaper men had no special rights. "As an editor, I always thought I could hand a reporter a pad and pencil and invest him with some special authority."

HAS BEEN TAXED

Besides, advertising had been taxed for years. He said 65 per cent of the revenue of newspapers came from advertising. The government imposed a tax of 6¢ per cent on this revenue. And everything that went into the making of a newspaper was also taxed.

Senator O'Leary said a vote for the legislation was a vote for the destruction of the periodicals in Canada. Time and Reader's Digest were big readers who in many Canadian magazines had folded.

The royal commission on publications had established that the two American magazines swallowed up 40 per cent of advertising revenue in Canada between 1955 and 1958. This now had jumped to about 50 per cent.

He said the government had accepted the commission's principle of Canadian ownership of Canadian periodicals "and then strangled that principle in its cradle" by exempting Time and Reader's Digest from its legislation.

He said the government had contradicted Henry Luce, Time's editor-in-chief. Mr. Luce had testified at royal commission hearings that he did not consider his magazine to be a Canadian periodical.

BOY SCOUT ACTIVITIES

CUB AUXILIARY

The 14th Belleville Auxiliary held their June meeting on Tuesday. The meeting opened with all present repeating the "Mothers Promise". The treasurer's report was given. It was decided that the Auxiliary buy a half dozen "Cub" Auxiliary T-shirts. Cub Camp was discussed and a few plans were made for it. The regular meeting was closed with all repeating the Scout Mispah.

The 16th Belleville cubs were taken by their leader recently on a trip to Adophustown. The boys enjoyed their trip and learned also about early history.

On Sunday the boys visited H.M.C.S. Stadacona. Some of the boys were amazed at the size of the big planes. The boys also got quite a thrill at the first part of July. Some of the cubs are getting excited about this camp as it will be the first for most of them.

If any mothers have green cub sweaters and cub caps they are asked to phone Mrs. R. Reynolds at 962-2332 as they are still to be worn by cubs as long as they are available.

Industry Minister Holds Deloro Co. Responsible In Cobalt Stockpile Theft

Responsibility in the theft of 150 tons of stockpiled cobalt yesterday was pinned on the Deloro Smelting and Refining Company by Liberal MP Mac Ian-ter C. M. Drury, in the House of Commons.

The Minister was replying to a question by Social Credit leader Robert Thompson on police progress into the $650,000 theft last month at Deloro, north of Belleville.

Asked by Mr. Thompson who could use the stolen cobalt, Mr. Drury replied it is used by the industrial nations as an alloy in metallurgical processes.

He added that the government still is awaiting a report from provincial police, who have conducted an exhaustive inquiry since the stockpile was found looted May 15.

The huge theft, from a warehouse on the now-defunct Deloro Smelting property, was first revealed publicly May 10.

In the ensuing weeks Inspector G. A. Duguid, OPP Criminal Investigations Branch, and Detective Sergeant Lloyd Lyle, Belleville OPP headquarters, have conducted a wide-ranging probe.

Scores of witnesses who may have had any link with the Deloro site anytime since 1958 — when the cobalt was first stored — have been traced and interviewed by the detectives.

Police have kept quiet the course of their investigations but it is believed the number of people questioned in the painstaking probe thus far exceeds 100.

Mr. Drury told the Commons yesterday the stockpile at Deloro dates from the days when cobalt was considered a strategic material. With world consumption now running at 12,000 tons a year the metal no longer is considered so critical.

Plane Loses Part of Wing, Pilot Brings It in Safely With 153 People Aboard

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A Pan American pilot gave thanks today for the "miracle" that let his nurse his passengerload of 707 jet to a safe landing, despite the loss at 20 feet of wing tip and flaps which scattered in a populated area but hurt no one.

Aboard were 143 passengers and a crew of 10.

Two minutes after the Honolulu-bound 707 took off from San Francisco International Airport Monday, Capt. Charles H. (Chuck) Kima felt a jolt and a "heavy vibration" in his right outboard engine.

Hundreds of persons in south San Francisco and San Bruno said they saw the flames appear on the end of the starboard wing as the No. 4, engine snapped off and plummeted to earth like a flaming meteor.

Then one-third of the wing, trailing blazing debris across the sky, broke off and slanted to earth. In the plane, Pilot Kimes told his terrified passengers in a calm voice, "We have had some trouble . . . keep calm and everything will be okay."

Kima, pouring additional power to his other engines to keep his 270,000-pound giant flying, elected to head Flight 843 to Travis Air Force Base 50 miles away, where runways were long and emergency facilities more ample.

KEPT IT GOING

"I kept it going with a lot of help," Kima said later. "It was a miracle."

At Travis, fighter planes scrambled into the air to escort him and make visual airborne inspections of the damage. A U.S. Coast Guard plane already was alongside the crippled airliner. The wing was off by this time but the right landing gear refused to lower by a drailed jet.

First Officer F. R. Miller, with help from others of the crew, finally crashed down the gear. The plane landed safely. Passengers wept for joy as they disembarked by way of the plane's emergency chute.

Recover Nine More Bodies From Capsized Houseboat

DRYDEN, Ont. (CP)—Dragging operations were continuous today for the bodies of two of 12 persons drowned near this northwestern Ontario community when a violent storm struck their houseboat.

Provincial police recovered nine bodies Monday, including those of seven of eight children aboard the homemade craft on Sunday when the rain storm swept across Lake Wabigoon with winds up to 75 miles an hour.

The boat owners, Mr. and Mrs. Cyril Lobrean of Dryden, survived by riding the craft's oil drum pontoons to safety in 12-foot waves. Both were released from hospital Monday after treatment.

Dragging crews made their nine recoveries Monday despite wind and steady rain which kept the water choppy. Weather conditions were expected to improve today.

FIND BODIES

Monday's operations turned up the bodies of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Graham of Dryden and their seven children.

They were Shirley Ann, 13; Margaret May, 11; Jacqueline, 9; Lloyd E., Sharon, 6; Lynne, 5, and Daniel, 3.

The body of Mrs. Betty Hoskell, 22, of Wahigoon was recovered Sunday. Still missing as dragging began today were her 21-month-old daughter Roxanne and her mother, Mrs. Harry Pinlayson, 50.

All 14 involved were in the cabin of the houseboat, built about a year ago by Mr. Lobrean and his father and brother, when the storm struck during a fishing trip. The roof was ripped off and the boat flipped over with pontoons above the water.

Mr. Lobrean said in an interview Monday that the boat tipped when he tried to steer it into the wind. He pushed his wife—a non-swimmer — out of the cabin and got her in between two rows of oil drums.

RIDE WAVES

They rode the 12-foot waves for about an hour before they were washed to shore where they "walked about a mile and a half through bush and the storm blew trees down around us."

"All I had on was my bathing suit. Shirley had slacks and a blouse," Mr. Lobrean said.

He said they were both bleeding from leg cuts when they stumbled into Bonny Bay cabin. Mr. Lobrean also complained of back pains.

Dryden Paper Co. salvaged the overturned houseboat Monday.

Music Critics Praise Opera

LONDON (Reuter's) — British music critics outdid themselves today in heaping praise on one of the most spectacular spectacles ever to appear on a London stage.

The event was Arnold Schoenberg's two-act opera Moses and Aaron, staged by the British premier Monday night at the Royal Opera House in Covent Garden.

When the curtain fell a capacity audience including scores of opera stars and celebrities hailed the performance with a 12-minute ovation.

The Opera staged in an English translation by David Rudkin and directed by Peter Hall of the Royal Shakespeare company, was by general agreement one of the most grandiose spectacles ever staged at Covent Garden.

Everyone agreed that the much-heralded orgy scene was a riotous success. It lasted 25 minutes and ended on a stage littered with bodies and splashed with gore.

Demolition Leaves Building Without Wall, Touches Off Squabble Between Owners

TRENTON — Recently, Trenton realtors Donald R. Fraser and Hugh O'Neil bought the Century Theatre on Dundas St. West and demolished it. The demolition left the west wall of the two-storey building to the east, owned by ex-councillor Gerald A. Weaver, exposed. Evidently, when the Weaver building was built in the late 1940s, no outside west wall was built. The east wall of the theatre was made to serve as a wall.

On Monday, D. R. Fraser, who is also an ex-councillor, told a reporter he had immediately contacted Mr. Weaver when the exposed state of the wall came to light, and offered to have his contractor build a common, fire-proof wall between Mr. Weaver's building and the commercial building Fraser and O'Neil plan to erect on the site of the former theatre. However, Mr. Weaver said he would have to be the price named by Mr. Fraser for the work. Mr. Fraser said he and his partner also refused to consider any proposed agreement whereby future owners of their building would be "tied in" to the common wall agreement.

Mr. Fraser said on Monday he and his partner had refused Mr. Weaver permission to enter upon their property in order to build a west wall to his building.

APPEAL TO COURT

On Thursday, Mr. Weaver and his solicitor came before Judge J. F. Smith at Belleville, asking for an injunction to restrain Fraser and O'Neil from erecting a building on the theatre property until such time as the west wall of the Weaver building was built, and also asking court permission to enter upon the Fraser and O'Neil property in order to build it.

At the same session of court, Mr. Fraser asked for an injunction to disallow Mr. Weaver's request to the court.

Judge Smith ruled Mr. Weaver might not enter upon the Fraser and O'Neil property, and ordered them to proceed with the building of the east wall to their own building "expeditiously."

Since then, Mr. Weaver has appeared before town council, asking that a by-law to permit entery upon a neighboring property for the purpose of repairing property be passed. Such a by-law was defeated by a vote of 5-1 at the June 21 meeting of council. Councillor Joseph Gould was the lone proponent of the proposed by-law at this meeting. Later last week, when Mr. Weaver came before council at a special meeting, Councillor C. V. Graham indicated he was sympathetic to calling another special meeting to consider the by-law again.

Mayor James MacDonald and Councillor Edward Todd have stated that the by-law as it has merit, but that council should "steer clear" of taking any sort of a stand in the present issue.

Councillor Ross Burtt has stated repeatedly he also thinks the by-law might be a good thing for the town as a whole, but, "if we pass it now, it means we're taking sides with one party in the dispute."

Today, Councillor Duncan McDonald said he also thought council should steer clear of appearing to take sides in the issue.

Councillor Paul Tripp was not available for comment today.

Storm Knocks Down Trees, Hydro Wires

TRENTON — Last night's storm in the Quinte area wrought havoc in Trenton in the form of fallen trees, fallen limbs, downed hydro wires and resulting property damage.

Trees and limbs were down all over town. One huge tree fell completely across Sidney Street and traffic was forced to re-route.

On Cedar Street, Mrs. John Coutts and her daughter, Miss Kay Patterson, were convinced a "twister" hit their property. One large tree at the front of their home fell across the rear of Miss Patterson's late model car, completely wrecking the rear end. Another tree at the rear of the house, a large willow, was uprooted and fell on the back of the house. Miss Patterson said today "there was a woosh, and the whole house seemed to lift up, when the storm struck."

In west Trenton, downed hydro wires plunged the west side of the town in darkness for around an hour and parts of east Trenton were also blacked out.

Television aerials were snapped in some cases, and in others could be seen dangling precariously in the high wind.

At the home of Gordon Flynn on the Wooler Road, lightning struck the house around 7.15 p.m., blowing uses and plunging the house in darkness. The pump was knocked out. Trenton firemen were called to the scene as a precautionary measure.

Wrong Name Given In Report of Death

TRENTON — A news item in Monday's Trenton news which read, "Alec Wilson, manager of the Central Bridge Company in Trenton from 1927 to 1952, died in Toronto Sunday," should have read, "Alec Hill . . . died in Toronto, Sunday."

Mr. Hill was well - known in the Trenton area before he left to take up work in Hamilton and later, in Toronto.

Mayor Expects To Obtain All Properties

TRENTON — Mayor James MacDonald said today he expected to have east and west Trenton properties which are to form the approaches to the new bridge "bought and paid for" by the end of July.

A cheque for $350,000 from the federal department of transport arrived in town over the weekend. This money is to be used to buy up the approaches to the bridge.

Options on all the needed property have been taken by the mayor, acting on behalf of council, with the exception of four east Trenton lots, owned by D. J. Whitley. Mr. Whitley has so far failed to agree to the price offered by the town and expropriation proceedings have been instigated.

The mayor said he thought the Ontario Department of Highways would start work on the steel structure of the bridge in September, and that he was sure the bridge would be completed by the end of 1966.

Pinnacle Street Contract Goes To Lightfoot

Lightfoot Construction Ltd. of Belleville were the low bidders for installation of underground services for Pinnacle Street which are to go in prior to rebuilding and paving of this traffic artery later this summer.

Only two tenders, one from Lightfoot Construction and the other from the Tatham Company Ltd. were received for the job. The tenders were opened yesterday at city hall.

The contract for the Pinnacle St. underground services will be awarded at a special meeting of council called for next Tuesday.

City engineer Wilbur Purcell said the price bid by Lightfoot Construction was within the figure estimated for the project.

Bites Lion's Nose To Save His Brother

LISBON (Reuters)—A man bit a lion on the nose to stop it killing his brother, the Portuguese news agency Lusitania reported today.

The brothers, Lucio and Joaquim Chanca, were hunting in Angola when the lion jumped on Lucio and pinned him to the ground.

Unable to shoot because his native bearer had run away with his gun, Joaquim leaped on the lion and tried to turn it upside down.

Not having any success with his hands, Joaquim got the lion to flip over by sinking his teeth into its snout. Lucio quickly slipped free and shot the animal dead.

The brothers are in hospital being treated for several wounds, but their condition is not serious.

20 Students Ready for Exchange Visits

Twenty Belleville high school students are jumping on the bilingualism bandwagon this summer to join almost 2,000 other young Canadians engaged in the same venture. Half of these students are from Quebec and the rest from Ontario and the West. Their exchange visits are sponsored by the Canadian Council of Christians and Jews in co-operation with Visites Interprovinciales and the Centennial Commission.

The local participants in the scheme will leave Belleville on Friday July 2 to spend two weeks in their French-speaking partners' homes. Ratepayers Favor Providing Bus Service for All Children In Ameliasburgh Township

A well attended meeting of the ratepayers who send their children to Mildred Corke School last night favored providing bus service for all school children in Ameliasburg township. Two trustees of the township's five member school board were present to answer questions and explain the board's position in the matter. The three trustees absent had commitments to fulfill elsewhere, trustee Mrs. Twila Langman explained.

The recommendation will be discussed and considered by a quorum of the trustees this Wednesday night. If adopted it means an expenditure of $30,000 annually. Eight buses are involved.

At the present time the Ameliasburg taxpayer contributes 18 mills of his assessment to elementary education. Total busing would hoist that to 22 mills.

Generally ratepayers are concerned about rising mill rates, but not this group assembled in the Albury school house for a serious conference regarding the retention of bus service. By a unanimous vote they expressed a willingness to accept the financial responsibility of providing transportation. Mothers and fathers alike voiced fears for their children if they are required to walk to school along the busy Redneersville road.

RATEPAYERS AROUSED

The ratepayers became aroused by stories their children brought home to them from school. Some of them said they thought the school board should have had notice of the proposed bus service cancellation and passed it along accordingly.

The contract with the bus operator expires the end of this month. Last year the total amount to bus Mildred Corke school children was $4,000. Of that sum $1,600 come out of the taxpayers' pockets while government grants took care of the remainder.

However, the situation has changed. Now all of the township's elementary schools are under the control of one board made up of five trustees. Now the taxation that carries whatever bus commitment is decided upon will be shared by Ameliasburg ratepayers as a whole.

In other words it would be unfair to ask taxpayers in the Consecon area to pay for Albury's bus service. Under the new set-up, until the proposed area school at Ameliasburg opens in September 1966, the trustees plan to furnish transportation for pupils displaced by the closing of two schools near the Hillier boundary. Until last night they had not been called on to provide additional service.

LESS CONCERNED

The Redneersville and Ameliasburgh schools to be replaced along with Albury after the area school goes into operation seem less concerned about bus service. Residents of the Rossmore area have been paying the cost of sending their children in classes at the latter.

Otherwise the school board so far has only had to deal with Albury requirements. Some 80 pupils enrolled at the Mildred Corke School travel more than two miles to classes at their places Albury in a priority bracket.

In the event the proposal to bus all children is turned down the school board has an alternative to consider. A motion by Howard Wesse calling for the taxpayers of Albury to pay their own school bus transportation received majority endorsement.

Traffic Mishaps

Traffic accidents can, and often do, engender a chain reaction in the course of which several vehicles become involved.

Freezing rain as often as not results in such mishaps. On busy highways, at night, a driver may stop on the shoulder for one reason or another only at his peril, and particularly so if he is tenting. Not long ago a man who had stopped to aid another motorist in the Toronto area was fatally injured by another vehicle as he stood on the edge of the road.

Traffic authorities and police try to warn citizens of such risks, but occasionally fail to set a good example themselves. Speeding police cruisers sometimes imperil other highway users. Then again, the simple routine of interviewing a traffic violator can impede the smooth flow of vehicles. The other day a motorcycle officer stopped a woman driver on East Bridge Street. He conducted the interview leaning forward on the window of the car, forcing outward bound vehicles to make a wide swing onto the crown of the road to avoid hitting him and crowding inward-bound traffic to the side. Not a matter of enormous import perhaps, but still one meriting attention; the same procedure at night might have had unfortunate consequences.

Attention to small details such as this, as well as constant vigilance, can mean the difference between life and death on the highway.

Down on the Farm

A Canadian Weekly feature about a Brantford family which spent a holiday down on the farm shows how far most of us have travelled away from the simple pleasures of life.

Peter Pongrac and his wife and four children aged 5 to 10 vacationed on the 200-acre Albert Durst farm near Clinton, Ont. Writer Sylvia Fraser says the Pongracs heard of the Durst farm through a brochure put out by the Canadian Farm Vacation Association. It lists 80 farms, ranches and rural guest homes in Ontario, British Columbia, Quebec and Nova Scotia offering away-from-it-all vacations for prices averaging $40 a week for adults and $20 for children.

According to writer Fraser, hundreds of Canadians are rediscovering this forgotten vacationland of the great outdoors, and at the same time giving city-reared children a glimpse of an entirely new world.

As for the Dursts, who live in a 135-year-old home with 12 rooms this is their way of keeping up an interest in the world beyond the farm.

In the same issue of Canadian Weekly there is an article on the lost art of picnicking, or tenting as the case may be. A photograph shows how easily some of the simple pleasures of life could be enjoyed a few decades ago. All you had to do was pack a few sandwiches, some fruit perhaps, and a flask of tea or coffee, drive off in your sedan (the one in the picture is a splendid big vehicle of about 1929 vintage) and find some quiet rural spot beside a stream.

But today you go with the crowd, to a camp site or picnic ground or beach, and if you have not got all the equipment, from collapsible chairs to transistors or even a portable television set, you are not just with it.

Sour Grapes

As might be expected, the Kremlin continues to vent its spleen over Canada's well-publicized ousting of two Soviet diplomats caught red-handed at spying.

Few Canadians, however, will likely be outraged by charges levelled in the Soviet press to the effect that the RCMP, in best James Bond tradition, had "bugged" the Russian Embassy in Ottawa with listening devices and that members of the federal police force had "harassed" Russian consular officials through close surveillance.

If there is any foundation in fact for these charges, then the Kremlin with its record of clandestine capers is scarcely in any position to complain.

Moreover, Canadians might well consider it a feather in this country's cap that the acknowledged world leaders in spying find the counter-espionage activities of the RCMP so annoyingly effective.

Canadian cities need airing, facelifting and replanning. Let us welcome the new society of man by getting out from under the dictatorship of machines and a jumbled heap of dirty buildings.—Secretary of State Lamontagne, addressing a conference on community improvement and rural beautification.

Aspirin Is at Top of List Of Drugs Causing Poisoning

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Here is a list of the most dangerous drugs, materials and poisons found around the average household that are a hazard to young children. Some may surprise you, although I suppose nearly everybody knows by now that aspirin is tops.

The list was prepared on the basis of 2,911 poisonings in a single state (Michigan) in one year. There were 66 other materials involved, but these are the main ones. The first figure is the number poisoned; the parenthetical figure is the number of children under 5 years old:

Aspirin 715 (565)
Bleach 122 (78)
Soap-detergent 100 (36)
Insecticide 90 (54)
Lighter Fluid 71 (51)
Furniture Oil 56 (36)
Hormones 60 (39)
Perfumes 56 (19)
Vitamins 56 (20)
Amphetamines 56 (44)
Laxatives 52 (22)
Disinfectant 50 (20)
Lye, etc. 47(32)
Barbiturates 45 (22)
Analgesics 44(29)
Rodenticides 41 (33)
Liniment 40 (19)
Gasoline 39 (23)
Psycho-pharmacologic drugs 33 (22)

Of these 54 died. Sixteen of the children were toddlers. It is entirely likely that some further cases of poisoning didn't get into the records.

And this is by just one state. The same thing is happening in every other state and province.

Note that almost everything listed is either a common household material (or perhaps something that is kept in the garage) or is found in a bathroom medicine chest.

If these sad statistics don't convince you to clean out the medicine chest, stop putting things in the wrong bottles, stop leaving any household cleaners, polishes, sprays, etc. under the sink, or within the reach of children in the basement or garage, nothing will.

Summer is by far the most dangerous season.

Here is a simplified check list which, if followed, will prevent most of these poisonings:

Throw away all medicines as soon as you are through with them. Keeping them in case you may need them later may save you a few cents, but there's a risk. Besides, many lose strength from standing.

Throw away all chemicals in unlabelled bottles or containers.

Keep all sprays, pesticides, garden sprays, etc., either in cabinets that are securely locked so children can't get at them, or so high they can't be reached even by climbing. Or both. Check kitchen, bathrooms, basement, closets, garages, attics.

When discarding this stuff, pour it down a drain. Don't just put the bottles out with the trash. You know how kids poke around.

Final rule: Do it now.

Dear Dr. Molner: Does exercise right after a meal harm one? I believe in daily exercise, and right after the evening meal is the only time I have for it. — A. L. A.

It depends on how stuffed you are, and how vigorous the exercise is. After you have eaten, some of your blood circulation is diverted to the work of digesting your food.

A walk, or exercise of that intensity, is well tolerated. But if you have vigorous exercise in mind, you'll be better off to defer it for at least an hour or two, or more if possible, after eating a full meal.

Note to A.M.: For such continued tiredness, the first step would be to have your doctor check you for anemia, thyroid activity, adequate nutrition and appropriate sleep patterns as well as chronic infection.

Hastings County raised over four and a half million dollars in the Eighth Victory Loan, or 116 percent of its objective. That is an honor which the people of this county have earned through their devotion to the cause of freedom.

The achievement has been possible first of all through the readiness of everyone to cooperate in this great undertaking of raising the amount of $3,625,000. It was a high objective but it represented a real challenge with the happy result above in bonds sold. It was possible through the organization and the salesmen.

What has been done has been worth achieving. It is a recognition of the service which the youth and men of Canada have given on the field and in the sky of Europe and on the ocean ways. It was in spirit with V-E Day.

Ottawa Offbeat

Whether It Be Inflation or Escalation, Results the Same

By RICHARD JACKSON
From The Intelligencer's Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — . . . strikes . . . rising wages . . . climbing prices . . . strikes . . . rising wages . . . climbing prices . . . strikes . . .

Which came first this time? Wages? Or prices?

Give the Government a good, hard answer on that one and you'll be in a sound position to solve the chicken-or-the-egg problem.

More important than pin-pointing the blame for the not-so-slowly rising spiral is to determine how many more spins this economic not-so-merry-go-round can make before it becomes inflation and the brakes go on.

Inflation is a dirty word.

Politically, economically, almost any way you care to look at it.

Politicians especially don't like using it.

Scares people.
Terrifies pensioners.
Worries business.
Ultimately upsets voters.

So call it not inflation, as they're not calling it here in the Capital.

Call it instead by that fangy and deliberately imprecise term Escalation.

Escalation is an "in" word, beloved by the Bureaucracy because by its very quality of inexactitude, it can be so conveniently employed to obscure any number of sticky situations.

UP EVER UP!

So how goes it with the strikes-wages-prices-Escalation? You don't have to guess.

The Trade and Commerce Department's new respected Dominion Bureau of Statistics has cold figures and the hard facts.

With the DBS people it's known as the Cost of Living Index.

Last month, based on 1949 prices equalling 100, it stood at 133.

Make it simple.

Read that 100 as simply $1.00. Then for the $1.00 you spent just 16 years ago, you now must spend $1.33 to get the same value.

Why, though, 1949 as what DBS calls the "base year?"

Simply because, it was the first "normal" post - war year. By then, production had pretty well caught up with consumption, and prices settling back from wartime peaks of scarcity free stabilization.

But what's really "normal?"

Might it rather than post-war 1949 be pre-war 1939, or even pre-depression 1929?

Instead of 133, back-base the DBS Cost of Living Index to '39 and see how your 1965 dollar stacks up.

For the $1.00 you spent then, you now would have to spend $2.66 to get the same purchasing power in terms of goods and services.

Go back just 25 years, prices and your cost of living have more than doubled.

And unless somebody slams on the brakes, the spiral could continue and costs be on their way up to triplets.

THE BREAKDOWN

But, likely the politicians and perhaps even the DBS fact-and-figure - finders expect, by 1539, with the world nervously emerging from the recession and basking for war, was scarcely "normal" either.

Prices were deeply depressed, so no wonder your recession dollar went more than twice as far as today's boom dollar.

Okay, then, if a boom can be taken as the "normal" base period, what about 1929, when the world perched at the economic peak before the long slide into the valley of Depression?

In terms of today's dollar, says DBS, your '29 dollar was worth $1.84.

Measure the four different dollars — today's, '49's, '39's, 1929's — and look at food, clothing and shelter, the basics.

Here, at a glance, takes: Today's food dollar was worth: $1.34 in '49; $2.56 in '39; $1.39 '29.

Today's shelter dollar: $1.40 in '49; $1.62 in '39; $1.39 in '29.

The DBS figures on other prices don't go back to '29 or even '39, but on the basis of the 49 dollar, transportation including your car now costs $1.49; health and personal care $1.75; recreation $1.60 and liquor and tobacco $1.22.

Inflation or Escalation — it means you need more dollars to cover the same ground, and the more you get the more you need — so hardly anybody ever really catches up in the circle of wages chasing prices chasing costs until somebody somebody puts the brakes on this kind of not-so-merry-go-round.

Color TV Is Expensive

Brantford Expositor

Though color television will be available on Canadian networks in 1967, home viewers will hardly rush to trade in their black and white sets. The experience of the United States, where color broadcasting was introduced seven years ago, suggests that conversions will take place gradually.

Two factors, both related to costs, indicate that black and white sets will take some years to become obsolete. The CBC can expect to spend close to $40,000,000 in a 15-year stage-by-stage conversion to color, according to its president J. Alphonse Ouimet. Private stations will also have to invest heavily in the changeover. A new color TV set now costs at least $750, though this price should drop when the demand increases.

The government has been forced into an earlier decision than it intended on color broadcasting. The American networks have been steadily expanding color programming which can be picked up in Canada. Expo 67 also has ambitious plans in which color transmission figures prominently. To meet its opening deadline, it must have time to complete the television improvements. Ottawa has therefore had to pry out of the Fowler committee its color television recommendations and sanction them in advance of the inquiry's full report on broad matters.

Nevertheless, color conversion will be a shot in the arm for the television industry and Canadians generally will welcome the government's announcement to go ahead. It is to be hoped that the quality of the programs to be shown in color on Canadian stations will justify the cost. Some of the present features are of such poor value that color will do nothing to dress them up.

Strictly Personal

Suspicion Crippling For Young

By SIDNEY J. HARRIS

Purely Personal Prejudices: The chief difference between a politician and a statesman is that the latter never tells a lie that he doesn't first believe himself.

A play must be an organic creation, like a person, or it will not be viable; when a play collapses in its third act, it is because its first act was improperly conceived — just as a person fails apart in middle age because his childhood failed to consolidate his personality.

It matters not how many technical problems we solve or surmount, there will be no peace and little real progress in the world until we are able to make the optimum equation between freedom and order in human society.

We hate what we fear, and we fear what we do not know; the ancient half - truth that "knowledge is power" should be retired in fact "knowledge is acceptance of otherness."

In times of misfortune, we are prone to reflect that we do not deserve such unhappiness; but in times of felicity, it rarely occurs to us that we are equally undeserving of such happiness.

It is a mistake to believe that the feeling called "love" connotes the same thing to a man and to a woman; in one example among many differences, a woman prefers being ill-treated by a man she cares for to being indulged by a man she is indifferent to; whereas few men, whose love has more quality and less self-abnegation, would long tolerate such a condition.

Fame does not satisfy its most lavish recipients, but it prevents them from ever again being satisfied with obscurity.

Teaching children to suppress their generous emotions is much worse than allowing them to be fleeced or victimized; they will naturally learn to guard against the latter as they get older, but once generosity has been constricted into suspicion, they remain emotional paralytics for a lifetime.

Those who equivalate "experience" as a thing in itself should pay heed to Joubert's observation: "Few men are worthy of experience — the majority let it corrupt them."

If we ignored the criminal elements from the history books there would hardly be enough left to fill a primer; nine-tenths of the "dates" in history are dates of folly, fratricide, dishonesty, bigotry, war - running and reversions to barbarism.

Whatever happened to old-fashioned plain word, "lunacy," which described a certain type of person in a way that has no synonym?

Salmon Bonanza in Atlantic

The Saint John Telegraph-Journal

The sudden appearance of large quantities of Atlantic salmon in the nets of fishermen on the west coast of Greenland may hold serious implications for Canada. A spokesman at the Federal Fisheries Biological Station at St. Andrews says there is not yet enough evidence in to allow full assessment.

In 1964, Greenland fishermen netted 600 tons of salmon from headlands and islands to catch cod, took 1,450 metric tons (long) tons of Atlantic salmon.

In 1960, the total catch had been 953 tons. It rose to 115 tons in 1961, 290 in 1962 and 420 in 1963.

Records show that there had not been any important Greenlantic salmon fishery in the area since the 1930s when the big fish were also plentiful.

The significant feature of the 1964 catch, for Canadian scientists, is that for the first time fish tagged in Canadian waters and in Europe as well were caught in the catch. Three were 18 Canadian tags returned, all taken between September and November of last year.

Most had been tagged as smolts (young fish) far up the Miramichi and on the Restigouche River in Nova Scotia. Four had been tagged as larger fish in New Brunswick waters and in Quebec.

A Scottish scientist speculated some years ago that there was a common feeding ground for salmon from both sides of the Atlantic somewhere near Greenland. (The fish range down the American coast as far as Maine and breed in European rivers as far south as central Spain.)

But the habits of salmon after they leave the freshwater streams where they are born and head out to sea remain a mystery. Is there in fact a single feeding range? Why has it moved in close to Greenland, apparently after a lapse of 30 years? Is the change related to the present cooling cycle of North Atlantic waters?

This gives scientists a few new pieces to the puzzle and many questions are answered to more, but they are still far from a full picture.

Canada must consider it a matter of urgency to investigate.

Greenland's whopping catches pose a threat to the future world supply, the sooner the problems are understood and controlled, the better for all.

Road Hazards

Montreal Gazette

The rising cost of automobile insurance is further evidence of the urgent that provincial governments would do well to give more than lip-service to the highways of those drivers who are notorious for causing accidents. The renewal of a licence should depend on something more than the ability to pay a few dollars. If it is obvious by the record that a driver has abused his privilege, or is accident-prone, the renewal of his licence becomes an anti-social act.'

Atlantic Solo Flight Hair-raising

By EDDY GILMORE

LONDON (AP)—U.S. pilot Benjamin Games, 41, arrived here Monday after a hair-raising solo flight across the Atlantic during which he is believed to have set three records for single-engined amphibious planes.

Games flew the four-seater from Elkhart, Ind., via Boston, St. Pierre, St. Pierre Miquelon off Newfoundland, Greenland, Iceland and Scotland.

"I'm not a professional pilot," said Games. "I'm a sort of professional amateur."

His mission was to bring the small flying boat here for Australian William Riley.

"He delivered it all right," said Riley, "but what a flight. It's one of the most exciting flights I ever heard of.

"From what I can tell, Ben's broken three world records for this type of plane.

BELIEVE RECORD

"He flew 1,000 miles nonstop from Boston to St. Pierre in 11 hours 30 minutes. We'll have to have all this confirmed, but I think the previous long-distance solo flight for this sort of plane was 800 miles."

Games flew a lake LA-4 single pusher flying boat.

Riley said the second record set by Games was one of seven hours 15 minutes for the 840-mile flight from Reykjavik, Iceland, to Prestwick, Scotland. He said he was certain the previous record for this distance was 11 hours 45 minutes.

The third record was one of low altitude.

"Because of ice storms and really foul weather, he had to fly over long distances right down on the sea, almost touching it at times."

NARROW SQUEAK

He said he encountered at times temperatures of 41 degrees below zero.

"On top of everything else," he went on. "I got sick on some bad food at Narsarssuak. But I was up in the air by this time, there was another ice storm and, well, I had to press on."

He said he landed next at Julianhaab, Greenland, where he refueled.

"Then came the worst part," said Games, "flying in a cold like I've never felt before. I landed next beside a rock called Kusuuk, and right beside it was an iceberg."

Gassing up, he then flew Greenland's ice cap into Iceland.

FLIES BLIND

"I was pretty much flying blind by then," explained the pilot, a U.S. air force pilot from the Second World War and the Korean war, "but somehow I got through."

In Washington, the National Aeronautic Association said the flight would not stand as an official record of any kind, since it was not monitored by the NAA or any other part of the International Aeronautic Federation.

The NAA said the current distance solo record for this type of aircraft is 853 miles, set last Sept. 2 by George L. Hunt, also in a Lake LA-4, on a flight from Reykjavik to Belfast, Ireland.

The agency has no record category in the area of low-altitude flight.

DESIRES PRIORITY

OTTAWA (CP) — President Claude Jodoin of the Canadian Labor Congress said Monday he hopes the government will give Canadians priority in any job opportunities "before it seeks to raid European labor markets." He was commenting on a statement by Immigration Minister Nicholson that Canada will launch a European recruiting drive for 150,000 skilled workers.

Court Grants New Appeal By Minister

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario Court of Appeal granted a new appeal Monday to Russell Horsburgh, 48, a former United Church minister at Chatham, against a conviction on five charges of contributing to juvenile delinquency.

The court did not set a date, but Horsburgh's lawyer, Charles Dubin of Toronto, said the appeal will be argued before the Court of Appeal "sometime in the fall."

Horsburgh was sentenced to a year in prison Nov. 18, 1964, after a trial in Chatham where 14 teen-agers testified he aided them in having sexual intercourse in Park Street United Church where he was minister.

The new appeal will be the former minister's second attempt at a retrial. His first appeal was granted Nov. 18, 1964, and denied June 25, 1965, by Mr. Justice Eric Moorhouse of the Ontario Supreme court after two days of argument.

Conservatives Revise 13 District Areas

Every Inch a Queen

Standing on the road side waiting for the car,
Standing there wondering just where they are.
Standing for an hour, don't know why,
'Cause before we could see her the car went by.

On our way out of Toronto Sunday evening, my wife and I heard a bulletin over the radio . . . beep, beep, beep, "The Queen Mother's procession will be leaving Windfields Farm, the home of E. P. Taylor (as if we didn't know) momentarily."

So there we were, at Bayview and the 401, and a few cars had already stopped along the shoulder of the road to wait for the distinguished visitor, so we stopped too.

There we sat. And sat. And sat. And sat.

More cars were stopping all the time. In a few minutes there were cars as far as the eye could see. Big cars. Little cars. Medium cars.

Cars parked sideways. Cars beside cars. Cars in the median. Cars like you wouldn't believe.

And there were people too. People in bikinis. People with furs. People with sashs and ties. People without shirts. People with shirts. Old people. Young people. Big people. Little people. Medium people.

A sharp operator could have made himself a bundle selling popcorn and peanuts to the crowd.

Anyway, there we were, standing in the hot sun, waiting for the Queen Mother.

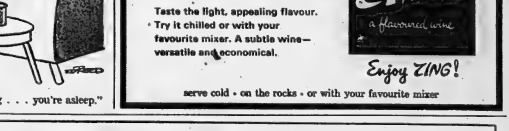
After 15 minutes, restlessness was beginning to set in. "Just another 15 minutes that's all."

After half an hour had elapsed and still no show. "We've waited this long. Might as well wait another 15 minutes."

At the 45-minute mark two motorcycle policemen drove off of Bayview onto the 401. "This is it!" (It wasn't.)

Another hush came over the radio . . . beep, beep, beep. "There's been a slight delay in the royal lady's departure." (No kidding!! That's what they say told us after we'd been waiting an hour to see her!)

Then it happened!!



She came.

We only saw her for a second but what we saw was a gracious lady, looking every inch a Queen, smiling and waving to the people — who were also smiling and waving.

Even if the whole idea of royalty is disgusting to some — and I must admit, I have qualms — why knock something like this.

I mean, we have to have some diversions.

Employees To Be Paid For Lay-offs

OTTAWA (CP)—A plan under which Ottawa will pay up to $75 a week to laid-off auto workers and ask the big auto companies to reimburse the federal government on most of the bill was outlined in the Commons Monday by Labor Minister Mackachen.

The payment will be made to workers in auto or auto parts plants who are laid off temporarily because of plant expansion work brought about by the Canada-U.S. auto agreement.

Average weekly wage in all these plants last year was $118.37. In March of this year the weekly average was $138.14 in auto plants and $111.26 in parts plants, but the $118.37 is being used as the basis amount on which the 65-per-cent benefit maximum is based.

At the same time, Industry Minister Drury announced an $18,000,000 federal loan fund to help finance expansion of small auto parts firms who must increase their capacity to take advantage of the tariff-slashing auto pact.

CHARGE SIX PER CENT

The loans will be at six-per-cent interest, repayable in 10 or 30 years depending on the type of project.

Both programs are designed to ease the short-term dislocations expected to occur while the auto firms are gearing to new and bigger production runs. The government says the eventual result will be 10,000 extra jobs and lower auto prices for Canadians.

The plan to add to auto workers will be known as T.A.B.—transitional assistance benefit. The benefit will include 26 weeks of a normal unemployment insurance benefits of $27 weekly for single persons and $36 for married.

Mr. MacEachen said T.A.B. will give the men the same lower supplementary unemployment benefit — S.U.B.—which the auto companies and their parts firms would otherwise have to pay to most of their laid-off workers under union contracts.

Because of this, the companies would be asked to pay to the government amounts equal to those they would have paid under S.U.B., but without drawing on the S.U.B. funds that have been built up by weekly company payments.

AFFECTS 1,640

T.A.B. will apply to the 1,000 workers who are to be laid off by mid-August at Ford's Windsor plant. Of these, 1,200 are already covered by S.U.B.

The Ford layoffs will extend in some cases to mid-October. It is estimated that T.A.B. benefits will run to $700,000 in the period.

Critics roasted the T.A.B. proposal.

George Burt, president of the United Auto Workers (CLC), said at Windsor that the benefit would give a worker only half of his gross earnings.

He said 575 comes "nowhere near what the auto and auto workers have a right to expect."

Earlier, Mr. Burt had argued that the auto companies will save $50,000,000 in taxes under the new pact, which slashes auto tariffs and merges the Canadian and U.S. auto industries into one economic unit. The workers should not be forced to lose income while the companies prosper.

He warned Monday night that the UAW will go on a campaign to turn public opinion against the auto pact.

In the Commons, Michael Starr (PC—Ontario) said the plan was "far from satisfactory" because U.S. auto workers would get $102 a week under similar layoff circumstances.

Mr. Starr, whose riding centres on the auto city of Oshawa, said the Canadian workers were as well off under the S.U.B. benefit.

Alfred D. Hales (CP—Wellington South) said Mr. Drury's announcement is another case of the government having to be prodded into action to make it possible for the parts manufacturers to survive.

In negotiating the auto deal with the United States, the government had forgotten all about the displaced persons and industries which would result, and now it had to bring in this program to bail them out.

The six-per-cent interest rate on loans to parts makers was altogether too high. Returns in that business were not high enough to pay such rates.

PUC Requests Curtailment of Lawn Watering

PICTON (Staff) — The Picton Public Utilities Commission is continuing its program urging residents to curtail their summer watering to two three-hour periods a day. The hours set out by the commission are 7 to 10 a.m. and 5 to 8 p.m.

P. U. C. is trying to increase its pumping capacity to accommodate the growing use during warm weather.

Manager H. C. Blakely reported that Saturday was the day, June 9, that the demand exceeded the plant's capacity. A heavy demand for water coincided with the draining of the reservoir for cleaning. "We were very near the point where the bypass line supplying Camp Picton," he reported. Mr. Blakely explained to Camp officials how the cleaning of the reservoir and a large consumption both occurred at the same time. He promised to see that, at least, seven days notice should the situation threaten again so the camp may be warned that the problem may not occur again.

The manager reported that delivery of a new motor and rotating element for number one low lift pump is expected at any time. The four-inch standby pump owned by the town is being fitted for temporary use while the regular unit is out of service.

The new pump is expected to greatly increase capacity of the filtration plant and solve much of the problem. The plan, such as enlarging the reservoir, are still under consideration by the commission.

Rare Specimens Of Firearms At Exhibition

PICTON (Staff) — Many fine and rare specimens of antique firearms were on view in Picton Town Hall Saturday when members of the Trent Valley Arms Collectors' Association held their meeting at Prince Edward Yacht Club. The exhibits were open to the public from 2 to 4 p.m. and prizes were awarded the three best exhibits. First place was awarded to H. Sleeth of Brantford, Ont. Second and third were won by Jack Welsman and Ron Platt, both of Oshawa. About 40 members were on hand for the occasion and some had come from Brantford and Toronto on the West to Catarqui on the East.

One of the highlights of the fine showings was a collection of Colt revolvers used by the Canadian Militia in the 1800's. Nearly every type of weapon was shown from boarding guns to Remington rifles and double pistols.

The Association normally holds its meetings in Peterborough, (its home base) however twice a year it holds meetings away from that area. One meeting is held in Picton, the other in Kingston. Rene Dafoe, President of the Club said the Association likes to come to Picton because the facilities are so good and the hosts "go all out" to organize a good meeting.

PICTON (Staff) — Severe electric storms and high winds streaked across Prince Edward County last night, bringing much needed rain and creating havoc with falling limbs. One tree fell across the road between Hillbrd and Cherry Valley blocking traffic until it could be cut up and hauled out of the way.

In the town of Picton, many large branches are reported to have fallen across hydro wires and streets. One residence on Jane Street, in the town, had a huge limb balanced across the roof of the bungalow type dwelling.

High winds lasted most of the day and were said to be the cause of the sinking of a two-masted schooner type yacht off the village of Northport. The vessel sank in approximately 14 feet of water and all that remains visible is the top of the two masts protruding above the surface. All persons aboard reached safety. Although the storm created minor havoc throughout the county farmers more than welcomed the much needed rain.

Congo Rebels Beat and Hack Many to Death

LEOPOLDVILLE (Reuters)—Congo rebels last month beat and hacked a group of Belgian and Dutch missionaries to death and then made other Europeans survivors hold a leg of one of the priests, a British report told a press conference Monday.

The nurse was one of five European women released from the hands of an insurgent band at Buta, in the far north of The Congo, by the rebels' chief of security.

The rescued Europeans are 35 Roman Catholic nuns, the British missionary nurse, Margaret Hayes, and a Belgian mother and her two young daughters aged two and four.

The 19 arrived in this Congolese capital by air Sunday night whereupon reportedly in bad physical condition.

Miss Hayes, 40, was the only European to escape in December from the town of Banalia, 60 miles north of Stanleyville, where 15 Europeans were killed by rebels in November.

After biding in the surroundings bush for a month Miss Hayes was recaptured and taken to Buta, where the 31 Roman Catholic priests—18 Dutch and 15 Belgian—were killed.

One of the attractions of F-5 production is the possibility of sales to other NATO countries. The F-5 is less expensive than the A-7 and easier to maintain and does have an good range or bomb-load capacity.

The RCAF has never been overly keen on the F-5. Some fliers have referred to it as a "souped-up trainer." One pilot picked a name when it was being demonstrated for the Spanish Air Force, killing two. Spain bought 70 anyway.

Sharp Willing To Talk Over Uranium Sale

OTTAWA (CP)—Trade Minister Sharp said Monday that the Canadian government would be willing to discuss with France the possibility of Euratom—the atomic energy arm of the European Common Market — controlling the use of any uranium sold to that country by Canada.

House

July 1, is one to disallow as a tax deductible expense advertising outlays in newspapers and magazines aimed at the Canadian market and more than 10-per-cent foreign owned.

Mr. Gordon brought forth the proposal to aid Canadian magazines and papers in competition and to guard against foreign takeovers of newspapers.

The opposition, however, attacked the measure on two counts. They slammed the special exemption for Canadian editions of Time and Reader's Digest from the tax penalties and, in the case of the latter, branded the newspaper measure an infringement on freedom of the press.

OPPOSES EXEMPTION

The amendment introduced by Stanley Knowles (NDP — Winnipeg North Centre) sought to refer the whole clause back to committee, by introducing it, however, Mr. Knowles made it clear he wanted the Time and Reader's Digest exemption removed.

Opposition leader Diefenbaker said:

"I can only conclude that the minister of finance, having suffered so many wounds and so many defeats in the last two years and two months, wants to be able now to say here is something that he got through the House."

Douglas Fisher (NDP—Port Arthur) joined Mr. Gordon to say whether he was "pleased with the naturalization of these editions, I cannot tell. But the minister gone along with this in cabinet in order to get approval for his tax measures in the house?"

Mr. Fisher said he wonders if the newspaper measure will be the last. "Will there be similar situations such as the Thomson papers and the Fredericton Gleaner where, although the papers were formally owned by Canadians, they remained in fact the property of British residents Lord Thomson and Lord Beaverbrook?"

The bill then shaped up for a while as a tight one with all four opposition parties — or parts of them — combining to support the amendment. When the votes were counted, however, the minority government was an easy winner.

There were 98 Liberals in the chamber for the vote. Eight of they drew support from two Social Creditors and two Independent North Central. The opposition could muster only 57 Conservatives, 24 New Democrats, five Social Creditors and six Creditistes.

The bill then went to the Senate where it faces immediate opposition from the man who headed a royal commission into the whole issue of edit ro publications.

Senator M Grattan O'Leary, president of the Ottawa Citizen, told the upper house he is convinced Time and Reader's Digest were in business because of pressure from Washington.

FINISHES JOB

With the final portion of Mr. Gordon's bill out of the way the House finished off one piece of unfinished business and completed most of its work on another.

Given final reading was a bill authorizing a 10 - per - cent increase in war veterans allowances retroactive to last Sept. 1. Veterans' child rearing allowances and orphans now receive $31, up $30 a year under the legislation.

The House gave everything but final reading to the Veterans Land Act which created a $318,000,000 revolving fund to make larger loans and grants to veterans. That reading was held up on a formality when Creditiste members protested they did not have a French copy of the bill.

usual two hours or 3½ hours."

By the time the cabinet meeting got under way, Justice Minister Favreau had not arrived. Fifteen other ministers were present. One of the tasks given Chief Justice Dorion was the inquiry into Mr. Favreau's handling of RCMP reports on police investigation of the attempted bribery and coercion allegations.

The judge's report was expected to be tabled in the Commons later in the day. The House meets at 2:30 p.m. but the inquiry into Mr. Favreau's day's sitting take up an unpredictable amount of time.

A cabinet meeting had been tentatively scheduled for 10 a.m. when the report was formally received Monday.

Acting Prime Minister Martin received French and English copies of the report late Monday afternoon and Prime Minister Pearson, on his return from London Monday night took one home with him to prepare for the cabinet meeting.

"I'll probably find time to glance at it tonight," Mr. Pearson told reporters on his return from Commonwealth prime ministers' conference.

SUMMARIZES FINDINGS

The report summarizes the findings of Chief Justice Dorion after a months-long public inquiry into allegations that a $20,000 bribe was offered and accepted by Lucien Rivard, suspected narcotics smuggler, to help him escape arrest while wanted in the United States.

Rivard, who was held in Montreal's Bordeaux jail pending the outcome of legal steps to extradite him to the U.S., escaped June 22, 1964 and still is loose. The federal cabinet posted a $25,000 reward.

The attempted bribery allegation was made by Montreal lawyer Pierre Lamontagne, who was hired for the U.S. government in extradition proceedings.

He said $20,000 was offered to him June 22, 1964, by Raymond Denis, former executive assistant to then Immigration minister Rene Tremblay to agree to Rivard's release on bail. Denis has denied this.

SAID RECEIVED CALLS

Mr. Lamontagne said he also receives Chateau calls about bail for Rivard from Andre Letendre and Guy Lord, aides to Justice Minister Favreau, and from Guy Rouleau, Liberal MP for Montreal Dollard and that parliamentary secretary to the prime minister.

Mr. Rouleau, who resigned his parliamentary secretaryship when the case was made public in the Commons, said he made normal representations on behalf of Rivard but did not try to pressure Mr. Lamontagne.

Besides dealing with the allegations, Chief Justice Dorion is expected to make findings on the manner in which the RCMP conducted its investigation into the case and on Mr. Favreau's decision not to launch a prosecution last June 24 under the internal discipline by the immigration ministers.

Mr. Tremblay, now postmaster-general, asked for and received Denis' resignation.

'Red' Nichols Dies Suddenly Of Heart Attack

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Ernest Loring Nichols, known as "Red" to swing music fans since the big band era and most famed for his Five Pennies combo, is dead at 60.

Nichols, who once briefly put aside his trumpet to wield a conductor's baton, suffered what doctors said was a heart attack Monday in his apartment.

He had called the Mint Casino, where he and his combo were to have played, and told the switchboard: "Get me a doctor. I can't breathe." Nichols was dead on arrival at hospital.

In his years with the big bands, Nichols hired and brought forth some of the all-time popular music makers: Benny Goodman, Joe Venuti, Artie Shaw, Gene Krupa, Jimmy Dorsey, Eddie Lang and Arthur Schutt. His first arranger was Glenn Miller.

Nichols, sometimes referred to as "the man who plays the cornet sideways," coined the Five Pennies in 1927.

Harry Quigley, London, Dies Of Cancer

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — T. Harry Quigley, 64, a former Liberal candidate in provincial and federal elections, died of cancer in hospital here Monday.

A native of London, he was the Liberal nomination for London East in the 1945 federal campaign before losing out to G. Ernest Halpenny, a Progressive Conservative.

In February, 1963, he lost the Liberal nomination to Clarence Peterson.

Later that year, Mr. Quigley entered the provincial campaign for Middlesex-4, a former riding represented by John White, present Conservative whip in the Ontario legislature.

He served with the Royal Canadian Navy during the Second World War.

His wife, Lucy, is a sister of John Wintermeyer, former Ontario Liberal leader. He is survived by a daughter and a son.

Funeral service is to be held here Thursday.

over-add-under-assessment.

"It is sare to say that if the administration of the tax base by senior levels of government is not adequately administered the nation would probably be bankrupt," the minister said.

He suggested three basic reasons for the situation:

—Outdated and inadequate assessment systems;

—Poorly trained assessment corps;

—Reluctance of municipalities to spend money to institute and refinitate assessment efficiency.

He said the assessment branch of his department was making available a comprehensive training program and would happy begin to licence assessors in January, 1966, to help correct these problems.

Ann Landers

This Kind of Ecstasy Leads Only to Agony

ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LANDERS — You've heard the story thousands of times. Middle-aged man (early 50's), mom is her 30's — both married, of course, been separately, madly, hopelessly in love for three years. Her husband is a fine guy. My wife is a lovely woman. "Divorce is out of the question.

I know your answer. Break it off. Well, I can't break it off and neither can she. We've tried — really tried. But what happened. I get physically ill. Can't eat. Can't sleep. Can't work. When we stay away from each other for more than a few days we are both so miserable life isn't worth living. We rush back to each other like a couple of high school kids.

We know there is no good ending to this. But what can we do? This woman has given me ecstacy I've never-known. When she is in my arms I'm as close to heaven as any mortal can be. I'm ten feet tall and 20 years old. Any suggestions? — IN LOVE.

DEAR IN LOVE — You've anticipated my advice and rejected it. So I have no words for you — only sympathy.

I am printing your letter for the benefit of others who may be toying with the idea that a little extra-curricular activity might add glamor and excitement to their lackluster lives. The best way to avoid the agony is to forego the "ecstasy."

DEAR ANN LANDERS — What makes an adult incapable of telling anything straight? I hate to call my husband a liar but I am shocked by the way he deviates from the facts.

Not infrequently I have found that they all have this despicable habit. Don't they realize how it sounds to those who were present?

I would never embarrass Ned in the presence of others and say, "No, dear, it wasn't like that . . . " but I have pleaded with him in private to please stop exaggerating. It hasn't helped. Why? — PRO-TRUTH.

DEAR PRO — People who embroider the facts beyond recognition want desperately to impress and/or amuse and they don't trust the straight story to do the job.

Exaggerators and distorters earn a reputation for irresponsibility or dishonesty and no one can afford to be seriously. It is a high price to pay for a brief moment in the spotlight.

DEAR ANN LANDERS — For almost two years my wife and I have not spoken to the people next door. We used to be friendly and I liked it that way. Then the girls had a misunderstanding and the friendship went pfft-t.

I'm sure my wife was at least 50% to blame for the trouble and now I'm sorry I got involved in the mess. I have a feeling that the other fellow is sorry, too.

I told my wife yesterday that I hate to spend another summer ignoring these neighbors. It's not only embarrassing but awkward since our children play together and go in and out of each other's homes constantly.

My wife says, "When I am through with somebody I am through with them." I don't want to live this way. Am I wrong? — NEIGHBORHOOD TROUBLE.

DEAR NEIGHBOR — Now that you've learned that husbands should not become involved in wife-type "misunderstandings" go on from there.

Tell your wife you are going to speak to the neighbors and end the feud, freeze. In time she will probably follow suit. If she refuses, make no point of it, but it will be good for the children to see that there is at least one adult in the family.

Unsure of yourself on dates? What's right? What's wrong? Should you? Shouldn't you? Send for Ann Landers' booklet, "Dating Do's and Don't's," enclosing with your request 35 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Woman's Touch Says Needed In Municipal Affairs

KITCHENER (CP) — Anne Shipley of Kirkland Lake was almost turned away from a mayors' convention in New York once by a policeman who told her no women were allowed.

She was admitted after she said: "I'm no lady. I'm a mayor."

At this year's Ontario Association of Mayors and Reeves convention the question of female admittance is no longer asked. Women delegates include five mayors and nearly a dozen reeves, deputy reeves and aldermen.

All said they believed a woman's touch is needed in municipal affairs.

Mrs. Cameron Montrose, a Windsor alderman, said more elected women officials are needed to deal with the problems of welfare, senior citizens and recreation.

ARE ON EXECUTIVE

Four of the women delegates serve on the executive of the association. They are Mrs. Michael Cunningham, mayor of Cobalt; Mayor Beth Nealson of Leaside, a Toronto suburb; Reeve Iva Davidson of Toronto's suburban East York, and Marie Curtis, a retired reeve of Long Branch, just west of Toronto.

Mrs. Curtis also is a former president of the association.

Mayor Agnes Wing of Parry Sound will be chairman of the resolutions sessions of the convention and Councillor Gladys Rolling, of East Gwillimbury, will address the 700 delegates on the problem of desertion of families by husbands.

The women delegates also said elected women officials can spend more hours on the job because they are not breadwinners as their male counterparts must be.

STUDENTS TO COME

WATERLOO, Ont. (CP)—The World University Service of Canada will reverse its normal practice in 1967 of sending students abroad and instead will bring foreign students to Canada. J. C. McKegney of the University of Waterloo told 36 students leaving Monday for Chile that students from other countries that have been hosts to Canadian groups will be invited to tour Canada during its centennial year.

Registered Nurses Hear Various Reports

Last Monday the Bay of Quinte Chapter of the Registered Nurses' Association of Ontario held its June meeting at Lakeshore Lodge, the Sandbank. After a delicious supper, the chairman, Mrs. Shirley Ackerman, opened the business meeting. She reported that there had been an increase in membership in the RNAO in the last few months.

A report of the annual meeting in Toronto was given. The new structure which was ratified at the annual meeting will include the following changes:

There will be only one class of membership; only initial registration with the College of Nurses of Ontario will be required for membership in the RNAO. Current registration with the College will no longer be required; chapter and provincial elections will be held biennially. Committee members and chairmen will be elected rather than appointed as formerly; instead of twelve districts there will now be six regions with an executive secretary for each region. The Board of Directors has begun its program of how to implement these changes in structure. A special meeting of the province will be called to be held in January 1966 to deal with these proposed by-laws.

COLLECTIVE BARGAINING

Regarding collective bargaining, it was decided to elect two provincial committees for collective bargaining before December, 1965. One committee will be for non-management agreement and the other for management nurses. The general membership has the responsibility of deciding the horizontal dividing line between these two categories of nurses. The Board of Directors will outline its efforts to secure the passage of "The Nurses' Collective Bargaining Act, 1965." Until this legislation is enacted, collective bargaining will be initiated in any way deemed advisable to meet the wishes of nurses in individual employing agencies.

Mrs. Ackerman suggested that the members of the nurse thought concerning the election of voting delegates for the Provincial meeting in January. It was decided to hold study groups in Belleville, Trenton and Picton during the summer for the purpose of determining what categories of nurses should be members of the nonmanagement bargaining unit and what nurses should be members of the management bargaining unit.

FUTURE CONFERENCE

Arrangements were reminded about the conference on Personal Growth and Career Achievement to be held at Delawana Inn, Honey Harbor, from September 30th - 24th. It was announced that the Public Health Nurses have formed an informal co-ordinating committee, functioning under the assistance of RNAO. This committee will discuss and resolve common problems in the work situation of the Public Health Nurse throughout Ontario. The chairman is Miss Jean Thompson, of Brampton.

The Picton members provided a pleasant social hour, including a unique hat show. A tooled leather purse, donated by Mr. Conner, was won by Mrs. Jean McConkey of Frankford.

District No. 6 will hold its fall dinner in Lindsay on October 20th.

Ends Season With Banquet

On Saturday evening the Welleyan Methodist choir of Belleville, closed the season with a banquet at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Voteary, Bridge St. East.

The large recreation room and tables were tastefully decorated with musical motifs.

A variety program followed a ham dinner, with a barbershop quartet by Bud Babcock, Floyd Cummings, Ira Spearman and Roy Stevenson; a Ukrainian skit from Wington with the "almost human" birds being, Endora Denike, Hazel Locklin and Bert Shetler, followed by some group singing and a special number from Helen and Ira Spearman who also accompanied Ruth Babcock and Nora Elliott on an electric guitar.

As masters of ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Ray Mitts brought words of greeting and appreciation and presented the choir director, Mrs. Joyce LeRoy with a beautiful pink corsage. A poem, composed by Mrs. Mitts, with personal reference to each of the choir members was greatly enjoyed.

The pastor, Rev. Eldon LeRoy spoke briefly and outlined the large place in Scripture allotted to music.

WEDDING

ANDERSON — CURRY

The marriage of Elva Dorothy Curry, only daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Charles Clark of Tweed, and Mr. Stewart James Anderson, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. James Anderson, formerly of Montreal, was solemnized in the chapel of Albert College, on Saturday afternoon, June 26th. Rev. James A. Payton of Tweed, officiated.

The couple was attended by Miss Starr Curry of Toronto, and Mr. James Anderson of Winnipeg.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at The Tops Motor Hotel.

Mrs. Anderson was co-editor of The Tweed News, while her late husband, S. R. Curry, was owner and publisher. Following the latter's death, she operated the paper for a short time and recently has been on the staff of The Telegram in Toronto.

Her husband was general manager of The Nichols Chemical Company plant in Sulphide for ten years before his transfer to Sarnia, and since last December has been superintendent of The Lasco Roofing Co. Ltd. in Winnipeg, a subsidiary of Allied Chemical Ltd.

The couple will make their home at 31 Bittersweet Bay, St. Boniface, Manitoba.

Nuns Become Models for Fashion Show

By LYNNE EDMUNDS

LONDON (Reuters)—Roman Catholic nuns became models here Monday for a unique fashion show aimed at proving that their clothes are adapted to modern life.

Nuns from French, Norwegian and English orders paraded first in the traditional black habits dating as far back as the 14th century at the opening of the Roman Catholic vocations exhibition at the Earls Court exhibition.

Then they demonstrated modern, ankle - baring outfits made - made fibres in greys, greens and blues that are replacing the bulky, floor-sweeping habits.

WERE STARS

Stars of the show were the "scooter sisters," the cash-benefited social-workers nuns of the English order, the Little Sisters of the Assumption.

Rhodesian sisters of the Dominican Mission in Salisbury provided a contrast in full length, toga-style cream habits worn under flowing black cloaks.

"No such fashion show has ever been staged in Britain before," said a spokesman.

It was part of an exhibition called Challenge '65, sponsored by the Council of Roman Catholic Religious Orders of England and Wales.

The audience consisted of nuns, housewives and a sprinkling of men.

Twenty-three religious orders took part in the show.

There was one order which could not participate because its members have no habit. They dress in street dress.

RETAIN STYLE

Explained Mother Jeanne Wauters of the Daughters of the Heart of Mary:

"My order was founded in France during the French Revolution when any nun wearing a habit would have been persecuted. To this day we all wear the dress of the outside world."

She had trouble trying to put herself in the picture. Every time she tried to pose with other nuns, photographers tried to escort her from the group. This happened three times before she finally convinced the photographers she is really a nun.

Successful Living

Public Relations Demands Getting Along With People

DEAR DORIS — About my career. I am interested in public relations. Could you please fill me in on information in this field for women? — GRADE TEN GIRL

DORIS CLARK

DEAR GIRL — Can you write? Talk? Get along well with people? Do you enjoy being a hostess to your friends? How is your cooking?

Public relations is an expanding field, with some good spots for womanly talents. It may involve writing publicity copy or conducting a radio program or a cooking school; making speeches or planning conventions. Or a number of other things.

You can prepare for it via the Home Ec route or by taking a course in business administration or just plain (or honor) arts. Or other ways.

P.S. people are helpful by nature, and would gladly talk to you about their jobs. Get your teacher's help in seeing one of them.

DEAR DORIS — How do you get training to be a clothes designer? I am only 15 but I make all my own dresses and my mother thinks I should find out about doing this kind of work.—SEWING SALLY.

DEAR SALLY — There are now 92,000 men and women in Canada engaged in making clothes, not including tailors and textile workers. Some of these are designers. Some work alone as dressmakers; others design and prepare patterns for others to follow, in large factories.

To make good, a girl needs an urge to create styles. This is a talent one either has or hasn't. She also needs good grooming habits and the ability to inspire people with confidence.

If she has been sewing on the side ever since she could hold a needle, she is off to a good start.

Prospective designers should take the Home Economics option with emphasis on the clothing major, in secondary school. There are special institutes which teach fashion designing; and you may find out about the ones in your province by writing to your provincial Director of Technical Education.

DEAR DORIS — Is it proper to invite your married children down on your own birthdays and Mother's Day, or is it up to the children to just come down that day? Please let me know the proper way to go about this. — MOTHER.

DEAR MOTHER — If the alternative is to sit around lonely and wondering if they'll show up, invite them! Turn the tables by providing a lovely dinner and celebrating the occasion yourself.

Confidential to CURIOUS — Write again enclosing ten cents and a stamped, self-addressed envelope, for my leaflet on "How To Get More Mail."

DEAR DORIS — You keep saying you can teach an old dog new tricks. Perhaps so. Anyway, I'm willing to try. I'm 76 and smart enough to baby-sit. Do you suppose if I concentrated I could get to help the 13-year-old with social studies?

If you are so foolish as to encourage me — and I think you are — how do I go about it? — GRAMPS.

DEAR GRAMPS — Of course you can. Courses like this are offered by provincial departments of education. You could work for your matriculation by easy stages, if you wanted to.

I'm sending you my leaflet entitled "Learning for Living" which tells about courses in crafts, academic subjects, great books, hobbies, university extension et cetera. (Any reader who craves to know more about anything and has time on his hands — or hasn't — should write in for this carefully compiled list, enclosing ten cents and a stamped, self-addressed envelope.)

(Don't just muddle along. Do something about what's troubling you. A letter to Doris can put you on the way to more Successful Living.)

Bring the Canadian flag to the table on Dominion Day. Mary Moore tells you how to make an ice cream dessert in the design and colors of our handsome new flag to commemorate our founding day.

CANADIAN FLAG DESSERT

Can you stand an extension of the flag debate? This time we're going to eat it!

This is a do-it-yourself effort and is in celebration of Dominion Day.

CANADIAN FLAG DESSERT
(Serves 6)

1 package strawberry jello.
1¼ cups boiling water.
several large perfect strawberries (for garnish).

Make the package of strawberry jello up into jelly but use only 1¼ cups boiling water to dissolve the powder, stirring well. Pour into an 8½ x 8½" square pan and chill until firmly set. Now using a small red 2" maple leaf for a guide place it on a piece of stiff white cardboard and with a pencil mark the outline of the little leaf. Remove leaf, cut out cardboard maple leaf with small pointed scissors, but do not be too particular about all the little indentations. You will not need a pattern to cut out the two red end bars. But do not cut these too wide - ½ to ¾" by the width of the ice cream brick (about 3") is sufficient. Cut out 12 end bars from the set red jelly and place them, for future reference, on a flat plate covered with a piece of waxy wax paper. Cut out a little maple leaves from remaining jelly, using cardboard pattern. Keep all jelly cutouts cold in refrigerator. Just before serving cut both bricks of ice cream into 3 lengthwise slices with sharp cold knife and place on 6 cold dessert plates. Quickly place one bar of jelly at each end of the slices of ice cream, then place a little jelly maple leaf in centre of each. Garnish sides with perfect strawberries and serve at once. These will create a sensation at any Dominion Day party.

The following potato salad is good enough for Dominion Day too, and I want to persuade you to clip it and file it in your salad file and use it often this summer.

EMEN'S POTATO SALAD
(serves 6)

5 medium large scrubbed new potatoes.
½ cup French dressing.
¼ cup chopped chives (or 2 tablespoons finely chopped green onions).
¼ cup genuine mayonnaise.
2 hard-cooked eggs, sliced.
½ cup sliced stuffed or salad olives (include some pimiento).
½ cup chopped partially pared cucumber.
½ teaspoon salt.
2 tablespoons genuine mayonnaise.

Boil potatoes until barely tender in salted water. Drain. Chill in cold water and peel off skins. Cut into ½" cubes. Drizzle French dressing over, add the ¼ cup mayonnaise and chives (or onion) and gently mix. Cover and chill (preferably overnight). When serving time arrives add one of the sliced hardcooked eggs, the sliced olives, chopped cucumber, salt and second amount of mayonnaise. Gently mix. Turn into lettuce-lined salad bowl and garnish edges with a border of the remaining sliced hard-cooked egg and if desired, place slices of radishes between egg slices. Highly recommended.

Susanna's Family Fare

LOVE'S OWN REWARD

Dear Susanna: Enter the maiden aunt again! My sister was having a bit of a feeding problem with my little nephew and when he was left in my care I did exactly the opposite to what she was doing. As a result, when she and her husband returned from their trip, I was able to return to them a happy little boy who was enjoying his meals again.

During the last few months as he grew bigger and older, my sister began to relax more and more food on his baby dish until I'm afraid the child rebelled at the sight of it all. After the last, I put his little plate away in the cupboard, took down two of my largest dinner plates for us, and started out by serving slightly smaller portions. Of course the food in the centre of those huge plates looked so little that it wasn't long before he was asking for seconds.

His mother and dad were so delighted they vowed they would never entrust him with anyone but me! — Annie the Aunt

A great reward indeed, Annie!

FROM GREY TO WHITE

Dear Susanna: What happens to white ankle socks to get them so grey and dirty, I don't know, but I do have a good remedy for getting them to almost their original color. After washing the socks, I simmer them in color remover, and then rinse them thoroughly. It's quite a trick. — Mrs. Ethel Kwasuk

(If you have any hints for running a successful household — or any problems — write to Susanna, in care of this newspaper, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope when requesting pamphlets.)

Heavily Perfumed Ladies Pick Up Tab for Charlies

By JEAN SPRAIN WILSON

NEW YORK (AP)—Charlie is a reasonably presentable fellow with a sun-lamp tan, a careful wave in his hair and teeth as white as his doeskin gillies.

He was a part of the crowd on a chartered plane to a New York area social resort recently where a round of weekend parties at the country club and the beach houses opened the summer season. His lady friend, pulling his hand, teasingly introduced him to the others as her 35-year-old son.

Other Charlies arrived at the resort driving Rolls, Bentleys and Jaguars, all without noses in their silk linen slacks. Beside them sat carefully coiffed and heavily perfumed ladies who would pick up their tabs.

Compared with the number of men who at least pay their own way at this summer playground of the rich, the Charlies are few. But they are there, and as they were ever-present at the New York parties during the spring season, and at Palm Beach and Miami this winter—wherever the fun is, the money is, and the lonely ladies are.

Almost all Charlies are amusing, sailing masters, manicured, grammatical, hip to the swingers and "in" places, and unless they have had too many cocktails, gallant. And broke.

SUPPORTED BY WOMEN

A few are unabashedly jobless, totally supported by the women they escort. Some are crew-cut college kids temporarily lasting the Manhattan society. Many are frail lads with shaggy manes and tight pants, artists, actors, decorators, hairdressers, guaranteeing sexless escort service in exchange for the chance to make valuable social and business contacts.

In Palm Beach, lack of youthfulness is forgivable and so is lack of money for a single man who is socially registered or anyway, with very good family connections. A white-thatched Gold Coast Charlie with a bald-up house and a pittance pension candidly admits he is able to live well and steadily because "all the groceries I need are instant coffee and frozen orange juice to get me through the mornings."

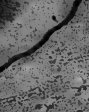
"I have to spend a lot of money on thank-you postage or I'd stop getting luncheon and dinner party invitations, though. My function is to even up an otherwise lopsided seating arrangement, to waltz with an unattached lady now and then, and see her home. Sometimes this gets pretty dull because I never meet anybody outside the group. But it's not a bad price to pay for the very good life I lead."

MEN SCARCE

In Miami, where the available male is in such short supply he is a consummately cute, a bronzed and muscular sun-follower with no more than a white dinner jacket to his name can become a regular part of the party-life circuit. Legend are the deflated widows and divorcees who open charge accounts for these young, bailer-cool swabs at elite private clubs and restaurants.

In New York, unmarried women have a greater supply of manpower to draw upon, but their social requirements exceed the supply.

As one lively lady of indeterminate age explains, "My whole life revolves around parties because I haven't anything else to do, or say other way to be among people. I'm on the go nearly every night to cocktail parties and charity balls.



"Some very nice men friends ask me out once in a while, but there aren't enough of these to go around. Women don't like me to come to these parties alone. Believe it or not, at my age they think I'm a threat. I ask these kids to go. They get a kick. Once in a while one of them gets an idea like settling down forever and on my money. Well, I'm not that foolish. . . . Not yet anyway."

Queen Ranks Below Bailiff In Channel Island of Jersey

By CAROL KENNEDY

ST. HELIER, Jersey (CP)— In the tiny oak-and-plush chamber of the Jersey parliament, the chair of the lieutenant-governor, representing the Queen, is set seven inches below, that of the bailiff, the island ruler.

The symbolism has a real significance. Part of the reason why French and English have rubbed along so amicably for so long in this small, south-sloping granite isle 14 miles from France, Jerseymen tell you, is the proud spirit of independence from both countries that has shaped their destiny.

Jersey people seem to owe a special allegiance of the heart neither to England nor to modern France, but to the long-gone Normandy of William the Conqueror who would still, it is said, understand the slurred, archaic patois of rural Jersey.

Next year they plan to celebrate the 900th anniversary of 1066, "when we conquered England."

It is an attitude that baffled the occupying Germans during the Second World War, and today it helps blur any friction that might be felt between the French - speaking farm-workers tilling the potato fields of the island centre and the rich English residents of the coastal rim.

PUBS OPEN LATE

The atmosphere of Jersey is predominantly English with a French accent. Pubs with names like Les Fontaines and L'Auberge du Nord sell English draught beer and low-priced scotch—and remain open from 9 a.m. till midnight, in heady contrast to the restricted British hours.

The policemen wear blue helmets like London bobbies; there are French patisserie shops but no sidewalk cafes; the currency is British, mixed with Jersey's own banknotes and pennies.

The island is sprinkled with ancient Norman names, from Bailiff Robert Le Masurier, down. Some crop up again and again, evidence of generations of intermarrying.

Though much of Jersey's French culture has slipped into history, a colorful thread of Norman tradition still runs through the fabric of everyday life.

The local court, presided over by 12 imposing jurats—magistrates — in scarlet and black robes, dispenses a mixture of Norman and Anglo-Saxon law, and island attorneys train in both England and France.

Parliamentary language is laced with ornate French phrases. An islander with a grievance against his neighbor can invoke legal redress by dropping to one knee and declaiming an antique Norman formula: "Haro, haro, haro! A l'aide mon prince. On me fait tort."

POLICE MOSTLY UNPAID

The island is still divided into its 12 historic parishes, once each ruled by a "seigneur" and an elected unpaid parish connetable which acted as a democratic curb on his power. Nowadays the seigneurs are country squires with a few picturesque feudal rights while the councils have grown into the insular parliament, known as the States of Jersey—still honorary except for the bailiff, who is paid by the British crown.

Two-thirds of the island's 300 police are also unpaid.

About half Jersey's 70,000 people live in St. Helier, a neat, scrubbed - looking port with gaily-painted houses and streets that gleam after every night. It is the island's only full-scale town. The wealthy retired people who buttress the island's prosperity live mostly around St. Brelade's Bay, a popular honeymoon spot, or Gorey, a picture - postcard crescent-shaped yacht harbor nestling beneath 13th-century Mont Orgueil Castle on the craggy east coast.

Except in the summer season, when vacation jobs abound, most of young Jersey emigrates, as it has always done. In its buccaneering 17th-century heyday when Jersey pirates terrorized the English coast, Philip de Carteret colonized New Jersey and patois-speaking fishermen settled in Newfoundland, this tiny island made a far-flung impact on the world.

LILY FROM JERSEY

A Jersey girl who made a different kind of impact was Emilie Le Breton, a clergyman's daughter who became the actress Lily Langtry, toast of Edwardian England and close friend of King Edward VII. The lovely, statuesque "Jersey Lily," who died in Monte Carlo in 1929, is buried there.

MORE

in her native parish of St. Saviour's.

Jersey is so compact, nine miles by five, that any turning off the built-up coastal strip leads immediately into deep green lanes and wooded valleys where the fawn-colored Jersey cows graze, tethered to iron stakes to ensure they crop every inch of the lush grass.

Prize Jersey cattle—like the black - and - white Guernseys—are exported all over the world.

But it is said they never produce quite such rich yellow cream anywhere else.

Nearly half the island is cultivated, the soil kept rich with seaweed fertilizer. Dairy produce and early vegetables for the London market still account for much island revenue, but the pace now is set by tourism.

"We have the best of both worlds," said a tourist official. "To the English we're a little bit of France without the bother of going abroad, and to the French a little bit of England just off their coast where they can drink a pint of beer in a pub and drive on the left, and where they'll have no difficulty making themselves understood."

HALF MILLION TOURISTS

The tourist boom that started in Britain's post-war austerity years now brings some 500,000 visitors annually to the island, pumping an estimated £20,000,000 into the economy. Most come from Britain, by air or the Weymouth mailboat, with about 40,000 a year from France.

In the high season a plane lands at Jersey airport every two minutes, making it one of the busiest in Britain.

The government committee that runs the tourist industry is proud of the way Jersey has adapted to mass tourism without acquiring the bingo-hall - and - bowling - alley brashness of many British resorts or substituting fish-and-chips for the island's superb seafood cuisine.

Another committee keeps a sharp, paternalistic eye on outside companies with ambitions to develop the wilder parts of Jersey's coastline. Sir William Butlin, Britain's holiday camp king, was politely turned away here and Guernsey when he planned to extend his empire to the Channel Islands.

Despite 5 Years of Strife Congo's Economic Position Far Better Than Neighbors'

The Congo is in a far better economic position than most of its African neighbors. In the following story, the second of a three part series, Arnold Amber, Reuters Leopoldville correspondent, deals with the Congo's economic problems.

By ARNOLD AMBER

LEOPOLDVILLE (Reuters)—Although it has suffered almost five years of dislocation caused by conflict, the mineral rich Congo economy is climbing toward its pre-independence level.

With the exception of about nine months in 1963, the Congo's economy has suffered from continued strife: three years of secession attempts in the mineral rich areas of Katanga and South Kasai provinces and intermittent fighting in almost all other areas of the country.

Despite this, the Congo, helped to a great extent by United Nations, United States and Belgian aid, is still in a far better economic position than most of its African neighbors.

The Congo's riches lie in the copper of Katanga, the diamonds of South Kasai, widely spread and diversified agricultural products and the commercial centre of Leopoldville.

In addition, The Congo has sufficient electricity, river transportation and other essential industrial and commercial facilities left from the Belgian colonial days.

STARTS BADLY

The unsuccessful secessions and the general political turmoil immediately after independence in June, 1960, put The Congo off to a bad economic start. By early 1963, when peace and stability were restored, The Congo was entering a severe crisis.

In November, 1963, the government of Cyrille Adoula devalued the Congolese franc, established import quotas and strict economic policies.

This paid off handsomely in 1964 as foreign exchange earnings reached a post independence high of 7,000,000,000 francs (about $14,000,000) per cent increase compared with 1963. At the same time, the budget deficit was trimmed.

But the outbreak of rebellion early in 1964 set back the entire recovery program.

Defence expenditure this year was increased to 9,000,000,000 Congolese francs ($18,400,000), approximately 24 per cent of the total budget expenditure.

Large sums already have been spent and will still be necessary for the rehabilitation of the reconquered areas.

Burdened by the large defence and rehabilitation costs and salary increases for civil servants, government expenditure threatened at one point to reach 77,000,000,000 Congolese francs (about $312,400,000) this year, a deficit of about $196,800,000.

An international monetary fund commission advised the government to trim the expected expenditure to about 54,000,000,000 Congolese francs (about $338,500,000).

Despite inflationary problems the economists' guarded optimism for continued recovery is based on The Congo's mineral resources. These account for 60 per cent of its foreign revenue which is expected to amount to $320,000,000 this year.

The production of copper, The Congo's most important mineral, is expected to rise by between 10 and 15 per cent this year over 1964's total of 175,000 metric tons.

The copper and diamond mines also form the backbone of The Congo's recently negotiated "stock portfolio" with Belgium, which will give the Congolese government about $15,000,000 annually in dividends.

In addition, The Congo receives large amounts of foreign aid. Last year this aid accounted for about 7,000,000,000 Congolese francs (£46,700,000) or about 15 per cent of the 45,000,000,000 Congolese francs (about $298,000,000) budget.

Marmora

MARMORA — Miss Cathy Jones and Tommy Campbell are participating this week in the East Central Ontario District Playground Leadership Course being held at Quin-Mo-Lar Camp.

Mr. and Mrs. T. Quillan of Ohio spent a few days this week with Mr. and Mrs. Frank Grant.

The Weekly Marmora Herald of June 17th printed an interesting picture of the Champion Junior Ball Team of 1927. A few of the group have passed on, others moved and those that are still in the district can still be identified although 38 years have gone by.

The year's reports of Marmora High School of grades 9 - 12 were received by students on Wednesday, June 23rd and Thursday, 24th by those on mail routes.

Tweed

TWEED — Wednesday was a big day at the S. H. Connor School when the annual field day took place. Teachers and a few willing parents were busy throughout the afternoon running the many events.

In the primary division the top girl was Lorna Gunning and the top boy was Brian McConnachie. In the junior division the winning girl was Barbara Bronson and winning boy was Scott McTaggart. In the intermediate division the winners were Wendy Goulah and Eddie McCallum and the senior division top girl was Judy Bittle and top boy Garnett Gray. Following the presentation of trophies the children and guests enjoyed ice cream treats.

Grade 8 pupils prepared for the annual graduation dinner which was held at the Hotel Tweedsmuir. Teachers in attendance at the dinner were Mrs. Montgomery, Mrs. Wannamaker, Mrs. Bateman and principal, Mr. Clive Kingston and Mr. Wes Hamilton, principal of Tweed High School. The top students of the graduation class were Anne Dunham and Robert Cotton.

Following the dinner the students went back to the school for a class party to end a very busy day.

EGG PRODUCTION UP

Egg production rose in May to 29,859,000 dozens, 4.1 per cent more than in May, 1964, bringing five-month production for this year to 134,530,000 dozens, up 3.8 per cent from last year, the bureau of statistics reported Monday.

EMPLOY 80,000

Urban municipalities with populations over 10,000 in the 1961 census employed 80,167 persons in their departmental services at the end of March, 1965, a bureau of statistics report said Monday. Their payrolls in 142 municipalities amounted to $89,600,000 in the first quarter of this year, down six per cent from the previous quarter.

EARNINGS DROP

CPR reported Monday net earnings for May were $4,000,-737, a decrease of $300,027 compared with the same month in 1964. Railway earnings from January to May were $14,337,-291 compared with $18,500,888 for the same period in 1964, the CPR said.

Possibility of Separatist Demonstrations Thursday

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Planned separatist demonstrations in Quebec will bring an anti-Dominion Day aspect to this year's festivities, at home and abroad, marking the anniversary of Confederation.

Le Rassemblement pour l'Independence Nationale is to hold a demonstration at the foot of the Champlain monument in Quebec City on the eve of Dominion Day. The city has approved the demonstration provided there is no marching in the streets and no posting of separatist slogans.

In Montreal, a march is planned Thursday, Dominion Day, by a group called Parti Prix, the name of a separatist-socialist magazine published by Montreal persons.

The group has announced it intends to protest against "this date, which marks the anniversary of Confederation, a regime which crushes the French-Canadian nation."

DISTRIBUTE HANDBILLS

Last week handbills were distributed in the Montreal region urging Quebecers to show their displeasure of the one-day July 1 holiday.

Most retail outlets, banks and other financial institutions will be closed Thursday but some businesses are reported planning to remain open for the holiday and allow employees a day off Friday for a three-day weekend.

Twenty-one-gun salutes will mark the country's 98th birthday at Ottawa and in provincial capitals.

INCLUDES FOLKSINGING

Regional festivities will include an annual international folksinging competition involving some 2,500 entrants at Oshawa, near Toronto, the annual Trout Derby at Flin Flon, Man., the Alberta Open golf tournament at Edmonton, an archery meet at Lethbridge, Alta., and a fair and rodeo at Swift Current, Sask., to be attended by Opposition Leader Diefenbaker.

Overseas, Canadian armed services personnel will be marking the birthday with receptions and parties.

The 4th Canadian Infantry Brigade group is holding a track and field meet at Ruckenholi Stadium at Menden, 15 miles from Soest, West Germany. The celebrations will include a 21-gun salute and a flypast of brigade aircraft and a retreat ceremony.

At Camp Rafah, Egypt, a Mediterranean beach party is planned for 800 Canadian members of the United Nations Emergency Force. Camel and donkey racing, plus horse-shoe pitching and volleyball competitions, are on the program.

RECEPTION SET

In Cyprus, a reception has been scheduled by Acting Canadian High Commissioner John Schioler and Col. Henri Tellier, commander of the Canadian contingent to the UN force. There will also be a march-past of troops, an inspection by Brig. B. F. Macdonald, Canadian commander in the Nicosia zone, and a bugle band demonstration.

Thursday also marks the 20th anniversary of the Regina riots, clashes between police and unemployed workers in 1935 that turned the city's Market Square into a battleground of violence. Some 100 persons were injured in the riots, a Regina detective was killed and 80 men were arrested.

For those heading out for cottages and vacation areas, the Canadian Highway Safety Council had a grim forecast. It predicted 15 persons would be killed in traffic accidents and 450 would be injured.

Kadar Resigns As Premier, Now Party Chief

BUDAPEST (AP) — Hungarian Communist Party Chief Janos Kadar resigned Monday as premier in a major government reshuffle apparently designed to follow the Soviet example of collective leadership by separating top government and party functions.

The post of premier in the all-Communist government which Kadar, 53, had held periodically since the November, 1956, crushing of the Hungarian revolution went to his long-time deputy, Gyula Kallai.

Kadar's resignation and the reshuffle of the cabinet were announced three days after a special session of the central committee of the Hungarian Socialist Workers (Communist) party.

An announcement by the centra. committee published by the official news agency MTI said Kadar was relieved "of his duties as chairman of the council of ministers (government) in order to be able to devote his whole time to his duties as the first secretary of the central committee."

At the same time, the announcement said, the central committee proposed to Parliament to elect Kadar to the presidential council.

Dominion Day to Mark 30th Anniversary of Violence in Regina

REGINA (CP) — Dominion Day marks the 30th anniversary of the Regina riots of 1935, an outburst of violence that turned this city's old market square into a depression-era battleground for police and unemployed workers.

In the space of three hours, 100 persons were injured, 37 of them policemen, a Regina detective was killed, and 80 men were arrested. Store windows were smashed, vehicles overturned and debris, including such makeshift weapons as railway spikes and rocks, lay scattered in the square behind police headquarters.

An argument that has never been settled is whether the violence was touched off by a mistake or whether a calculated risk had been taken in arresting all at once the leaders of burgeoning mass on Ottawa by unemployed workers.

The train of events began in relief camps of the West where thousands of jobless received food and lodging but no hope of work. As discontent grew, 500 men broke camp in British Columbia and began what was to be a trek to Ottawa—a protest strike against the relief camps.

Their ranks grew as eastbound freight trains were made their way across Alberta and Saskatchewan. Two thousand were aboard when they reached Regina June 14.

'KEEP HANDS OFF'

By this time the federal government had ordered the RCMP to halt the trek. Saskatchewan's premier, Jimmy Gardiner, protested the federal order, and in a telegram to Prime Minister R. B. Bennett asked him to keep his "hands off the policing of this province."

With 300 Mounties waiting at Regina barracks, ready to prevent the march from continuing on to Ottawa, a general strike was declared by Regina Trades and Labor Council.

The marchers presented a set of demands that included 50 cents an hour for unskilled labor, union rates for skilled workers and a five-day-be-hour week, social and unemployment insurance, and an end to military control of relief camps.

Following a meeting with the two cabinet ministers, a group of marchers left for Ottawa. Eight men met with Prime Minister Bennett June 22. Mr. Bennett said their demands could not be met and ordered the men back to their homes and camps.

On their return to Regina, plans were launched to resume the march on Ottawa. Mounties watched rail lines out of the cities and marchers who attempted to leave by truck or car were arrested.

Federal officials urged the men to go to a relief camp at Lumsden, 15 miles north of Regina, where food and lodging were available. From there they would be returned to the places from where they came.

GATHERED IN SQUARE

Most of the marchers remained at the Exhibition grounds but some went to market square to attend a protest meeting. The crowd estimated at 3,000, including women and children, was there.

Versions of what happened vary. One is that plainclothes Mounties quietly began removing ringleaders from the crowd into waiting police wagons.

Police on horseback suddenly rode into the crowd trying to scatter the demonstrators. Others on foot waded into the crowd wielding batons.

Marchers grabbed whatever they could for weapons and women and children ran screaming from the scene. Running battles raged for hours and adjoining streets. Tear gas was used by police and pistol shots were fired as the riot spread through most of the downtown area. Later police surrounded the Exhibition grounds where most of the marchers had remained.

A federal commission headed by Saskatchewan Chief Justice T. C. Brown investigated the circumstances. It declared that the federal government was correct in deciding that the trek on Ottawa must be halted. It also described some of the leaders as dangerous.

In addition to the 80 arrested during the rioting, 50 were charged in the next few days. Twenty - four were tried on charges of rioting, wounding and assault and were sentenced to terms ranging to 14 months.

Tories To Use Pearson Film To Raise Money

NORTH VANCOUVER (CP)—Prime Minister Pearson will be the star attraction at a North Vancouver Progressive Conservative fund-raising meeting tonight.

The public meeting will feature the film Mr. Pearson, a documentary of one day in the prime minister's life, filmed by the CBC but never shown on television.

"It's a sneaky thing to do, but we figure the film be a real money-maker," said the association secretary, Mrs. W.J. Paterson.

The money raised will go toward trying to help defeat Mr. Pearson's Liberal government in the next election.

First Break In Construction Strike Seen

TORONTO (CP) — The first break in the Toronto construction strike occurred Monday when a bricklaying subsidiary of the International Union of Operating Engineers (Ind.) settled for a 55-cent-an-hour wage increase.

The settlement could affect the outcome of other strikes against the Toronto Construction Association which had held the line at a 35-cent increase during two years.

The strikes are holding up commercial construction in Toronto's $100,000,000 building boom. Projects such as the new city hall, extension of the Gardiner Expressway, construction of the east-west subway and widening of the 12-lane Macdonald - Cartier Freeway across north Toronto, are held up.

The settlement between the hoisting engineers and the Steel Erectors Association provides for an immediate increase of 20 cents an hour; another 25-cent increase May 1, 1966, and an additional two per cent of earnings for a vacation pay trust fund per cent. The old rate for crane operators was $3.40 an hour.

The engineers continued their strike against the Crane Rental Association which provides cranes to general contractors.

The other unions still on strike — cement masons, carpenters, bricklayers and stonemasons—might create an accommodation problem for local school boards which expected to spend additions completed by fall.

New Cement Floor Being Placed in Curling Rink

The brooms and the rocks may be gathering dust, but the Quinte Curling Club isn't.

Workmen started putting in a new floor in the rink on June 10 and expect to have everything completed by the week of July 19.

Ken Pinder, president of the club, reported that the club is spending $22,353 on the new floor. Of this amount, the first board is paying $5,000 upon completion of the floor and another $3,000 over a five-year period for use of the building during fair week.

"We've had a great deal of trouble with heaving over the past few years," Mr. Pinder said. "It was so bad that outside rinks didn't even want to come here to play. This new floor will give us a level surface to play on."

The old pipes under the ice were removed and sold for scrap. Then the area was excavated and all the old sand was taken out and it was brought down to a hard surface. Next, four inches of three-quarter stone and two inches of three-eighth screenings were compacted over the surface by machine.

The next step was the placing of three-eighth inch rods at two-foot centres for reinforcement. That was covered with six gauge wire mesh with six-inch centres.

Then four inches of cement slab was poured over the whole area. After this slab dries, the chairs (pipe holders) go on and the plastic pipe is put in place. The pipe, one and one-quarter inches in diameter, measures a total of 34,900 feet in length over the whole area. A final slab of cement is poured over the pipes, leaving the pipes one inch under the surface and ready for operation.

The general contractor is Hugh Murray Limited, and the pipes are being laid by the Canada Ice Machine Company Limited.

U.S. Business Has Been So Good Few Think It Can Get Better

By SAM DAWSON
AP Business News Analyst

NEW YORK (AP)—The U.S. economy has had its best-ever six months. But that is itself is dampening some of the celebration. The first half of 1965 has set records which some—notably New York stock market traders—fear may be hard to top or even sustain.

Most U.S. business firms and most of the public have done better so far this year than they expected, to, in production, sales and in personal income.

The first three months far exceeded predictions. Then most observers warned that a breather was due during the spring months. But where there has been any slowing down it has been less than anticipated.

The business upturn since the low point of the last recession, reached in February, 1961, now is ending its 52nd month. This exceeds by two months the former peacetime record set in 1933-37 when the United States was pulling out of the depression. At mid-year the question is: How long can it last and how high can it go?

There is little question about the gains so far in most of the economy—or of the losses in the stock market in the last six weeks.

The prediction in January was that this year the gross national product, the total output of goods and services, should hit a record $680,000,000,000 to top the previous record of $622,600,-000,000 in 1964. This prediction still holds, if only because the first half was so much better than expected.

In May 72,400,000 Americans were employed, 1,100,000 more than in January. Personal income was at an annual rate of $517,000,000,000 in May, with the five-month average 6.2 per cent higher than the previous year.

Dividend payments in the first five months came to $6,400,000,000, up 10 per cent from the 1964 period. Retail sales are running eight per cent ahead of last year.

Capital spending plans of business for the year now are put at $50,400,000,000, up 12.3 per cent from 1964, and each new survey of intentions has seen an increase. Steel production has reached 68,000,000 tons, about 10,000,000 more than in 1964. Some 5,000,000 cars have been built this year, against 4,200,000 a year ago, and sales have set records.

Too good to last? Pessimists and optimists are sharply divided at the mid-point, but they agree the first half could hardly have been better.

WANTS VARIETY

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — J. Duncan Edmonds, organizing committee secretary of the proposed Company of Young Canadians, says it is hoped a wide variety of projects will be developed. He told national Junior Chamber of Commerce delegates that the company will seek effective ways of working with Indian and Eskimo communities.

Gyula Kallai Moves to Top In Hungary's Red World

BUDAPEST (AP) — Gyula Kallai combined soft - spoken ways of a scholar with the courage and daring of a resistance fighter to rise to the top in Hungary's Communist world.

Like Janos Kadar, whom he replaced Monday as premier, the 55 - year - old Kallai spent years in fascist and Stalinist jails in sharpening the urge to power.

Intellectualism and underground plotting were the two pillars of Kallai's career that marked the rise of the village bootmaker's son.

Kallai joined the Communist party in 1931 as a student and soon became active in clandestine party organization.

The rightist Horthy regime imprisoned him in 1939. After his release in the Second World War he worked on the staff of Nepszava, then the organ of the Social Democratic party which had close links to the Communists.

A graduate in philosophy and arts, Kallai was one of the organizers of the underground group called "Hungarian Memorial Committee."

He was arrested again in 1942. There is no record of his further activities during that time except that he also joined the Smallar Front, an anti-fascist group.

In 1945, Kallai rose quickly to membership in the Communist party's central committee and became secretary to then Premier Ferenc Nagy.

He was editor of two journals, Freedom, and Free Land, and later took over the party's department of culture.

He served as foreign minister from 1948 to 1951. Then the Stalinist regime arrested him and sent him to prison in 1954 on a variety of anti - party charges.

Shortly after his release in 1954, Kallai was rehabilitated and made head of the board of publications and deputy minister of culture.

After the ouster of Stalinist strongman Matyas Rakosi in 1956, Kallai was reinstated as head of the cultural department of the central committee.

Following the crushing of the 1956 uprising he joined Kadar in reorganizing the party and was elected to the central committee, serving as secretary until his appointment as vice-premier in 1959.

Kallai wrote several books on the party's wartime underground history.

SPORTS SLICES

By Geo. H. Carver
Sports Editor

Gary Player, the spectacular South African golfer who scored a headlines hole-in-one with his victory in the United States Open and subsequent giving-away of the loot has some unusual characteristics.

For instance how many professional athletes go to "work" with a figurative jug in one hand and a book in the other?

Don't be misled. The "jug" in the Player duffle bag is filled with honey—the book is the Bible. He reads it every night.

He carries the honey jar in his golf-bag and occasionally he ducks behind a bush to take a surreptitious sip.

Player believes in prevention that cures under the heading "ounce." He doesn't take his honey "neat," generally spooning, except for that odd behind-the-shrubbery-swig on a golf course. He mixes it with raisins, nuts, dried fruit, wheat germ, yeast.

His diet is in direct contrast to the steak-baked potato-salad noshing of the professional football hockey and basketball behemoths of sport, but for a guy that ends only 5-7 and tips the scale at 156, he says it is sturdy.

Going through a supermarket with Player, says Stan Leonard, who has known him since he came to the U.S. in 1957, is one of life's more interesting experiences.

Big-time hockey players can have their syrups, other champions their breakfast soggies, kid athletes their "wonder builders" but Player's rare fare gives him the necessary edge, he says.

There's nothing wrong with it. He started the nuts and raisins diet at 14 when he took up the game in his native Johannesburg. He turned pro at 17 without having seen an amateur tournament.

He took up and still maintains a crash program of finger exercises with other calisthenics and weightlift-
He lifts the barbells to keep those drives on a par with his closest buddies Palmer and Nicklaus.

He eschews the weed and the highball. He dresses in black because, he says, the New Zealand national sports color makes him feel and play stronger.

Outside the scions of the South African diamond-mining tycoons, you'll find few 29-year-olds in professional sport who have banked the guineas like Player. His seven-year tournament take amounts to $300,000 and he's off-beat income equals that much.

And after his sensational victory in the U.S. Open this year and his philanthropic gestures in parting with the $27,000 loot, his off-links income, endorsements, etc., will probably net him several pokfuls of gold.

The giveaway gesture might well prove to be an investment that will bring in a half-million lining to the Player exchequer.

It was no puppy affection that struck Player when he saw his first golf course. It was a links love at first sight and started off on a spectacular note. The first time he ever played with his own clubs he parred the first three holes. He was 15 and had just recovered from a broken neck. His father gave him a set of clubs to relieve the despair resulting from the injury.

But Player is not the first athlete Brother Bee's product has helped to glory, gold and headlines.

Farry O'Brien, one of the world's greatest shotputters always carried the 16-pound ball in one hand and a 16-ounce pot of honey in the other. Murray Rose and Herb Elliott, Australia's world-swimmer and distance runner always took honey.

Peter Snell always has a 60-pound crock of the sweetness in his home while the Detroit Red Wings sipped the nectar between periods last year—and won the NHL championship. Strangely enough, Player's idol, the famous Bobby Locke, who inspired him to first grasp a golf club never trained on honey—except when it sweetened a hot rum toddy.

Chisox, Indians Move Into Top Slot

By JIM HACKLEMAN
Associated Press Sports Writer

Chicago White Sox scored 17 runs Monday night with a 19-hit attack that included three homers, one a grand slam, as they swamped Minnesota Twins 17-4 to earn a share of the American League lead.

Cleveland Indians also grabbed a piece of first place with their 15th victory in the last 17 games, a 9-3 romp over Boston Red Sox.

Chicago and Cleveland now have a one-half game edge on Minnesota Twins, out of the league lead for the first time since May 20.

In other American League action, Detroit Tigers nipped Baltimore Orioles 4-3 and New York Yankees stretched their winning string to five by beating Washington Senators twice, 3-0 on Mel Stottlemyre's two-hit pitching and 4-3.

Dave Boswell of the Twins had checked the White Sox on one hit and had a 3-0 lead when the uprising started in the fifth inning. Chicago then loaded the bases on singles by Ken Berry and Al Weis and a walk to J. C. Martin, then McCraw blasted his 430-foot grand slam.

Jimmie Hall tied it for Minnesota with a homer in the last of the inning, but in the sixth the White Sox really cut loose. Danny Cater and John Romano belted homers off Boswell, and Chicago collected five more runs in the inning.

ADD FOUR MORE

Cater added a run-scoring single in the big sixth and drove in a run with a double in the White Sox scored four more in the ninth.

Fred Whitfield triggered Cleveland's win at Boston with a three-run homer off loser Bill Monbouquette in the second inning. Batting leader Vic Davalillo also had a homer in the Indians' 14-hit barrage that included three hits each by Rocky Colavito and Leon Wagner.

Felix Mantilla and Tony Conigliaro homered for Boston runs.

Al Kaline's run-scoring single and Don Wert's homer helped the Tigers get by the Orioles. Dennis McLain blanked Baltimore for seven innings, before giving up a run in the eighth and was tagged for Sam Bowens' two-run homer in the ninth.

Stottlemyre pushed his eighth victory and third shutout in the Yanks' opening game decision at Washington, getting home run help from Clete Boyer. In the second game, New York took a 4-0 lead before the Senators made it close on homers by Woodie Held in the fifth and Willie Kirkland in the sixth.

Bobby Richardson, the Yankees' second baseman, got five hits in the doubleheader.

Coach Bob Shaw said the "accent will be on hitting from the first day" and we "are going to rejuvenate the club." Argonauts finished last in the eastern conference of the Canadian Football league for the last three seasons.

Only 37 players from the 1964 club were on hand for opening day drills.

TORONTO (CP) — Whistling Sea, 1965 Queen's Plate winner, may be shipped to Chicago for the $100,000 Arlington Classic Aug. 28, his owner, Paul Oliveler of Calgary, said Monday.

"Horatio Luro, trainer for Toronto industrialist E. P. Taylor) told me to send him to Chicago," said Oliver in an interview.

"If Horatio thinks he should go and my trainer, Roy Johnson, says go, we'll go."

Oliver also said that Whistling Sea, first western winner of the plate, will race at Blue Bonnets in Montreal, in two weeks and here at Woodbine July 17.

TORONTO (CP) — Ky. Quill took a page from the book of the Queen's Plate winner at Woodbine Monday to win his first Ontario race.

A Western horse, as is plate winner Whistling Sea, Ky. Quill came from last off the pace to defeat Gay Van and Barlecorn. In four other races this season, he finished no better than fourth.

Owned until Monday by Toronto's Pine Tree Stable, Ky. Quill was claimed just before the race for $6,500 by the Jo-Ann Stable, also of Toronto.

HENLEY-ON-THAMES, England (CP)—A spokesman for the St. Catharines Collegiate rowing crew said, Monday night the Ontario school is representing Canada at the Henley Royal Regatta here this week as winners of the 1965 Canadian scholastic rowing championships at St. Catharines last month.

He said the 13-member contingent is receiving $4,200 from the National Fitness Council of Canada for winning the scholastic championship. Another $5,000 was collected in private contributions from the citizens of St. Catharines, he said.

George Hungerford and Roger Jackson, Olympic gold medalists in the pairs competition at Tokyo last year, are representing the Vancouver Rowing Club and are not a national entry.

Jackson said in an interview their expense money comes from the Vancouver club and a grant from the province. However, Jackson added that they have not yet received any money from the council but hope the grant will cover half their transportation and hotel expenses.

The Shawnigan Lake crew from Vancouver Island was expected to arrive by air today. No comment was available on their financial arrangements. But official lists for the Henley regatta, which begins Wednesday, show them representing the Shawnigan Lake School.

Borden Wins Title From Burke

MONTREAL (CP) — Leslie Borden of Montreal Monday night cut and slashed his way to the Canadian lightweight boxing championship with a unanimous 12 - round decision over Gerry Emery of Cobourg.

Borden, who weighed in at 132 pounds, a heavy limit of 175 pounds, outweighed the veteran Emery by four pounds.

He used his comparative youth and the weight advantage to bull the 32-year-old former champion on to the ropes and scored repeatedly with flurries to the head throughout the match.

Yastrzemski Closing In

NEW YORK (AP)—Carl Yastrzemski, the man with the silent, and the noisy bat, has been stroking base hits with machine - gun rapidity while closing in on Cleveland's Vic Davalillo, the American League's leading hitter.

The 25-year-old Boston outfielder has a sizzling .331 pace in last week's games, soaring from eighth place into runner-up position. He collected 17 hits in 32 times at bat and lifted his average from .307 to .343. Yastrzemski captured the AL batting title with a .321 average in 1963, but slipped to .289 last year.

Davillilo skimped 15 points to .350 last week with only eight hits in 32 trips. Some among the other leaders also tailed off. Detroit's Willie Horton fell one hit shy of 31, suffering a 5-for-35 performance that put an 18-point dent in his batting mark. He's batting .325.

LOSES 12 POINTS

Jimmie Hall of Minnesota, in fourth place, lost 15 points to .315 with only seven safeties in 29 trips while Boston's Felix Mantilla, who bounced into fifth after slumping 12 points to .313 with a 7-for-31 showing.

Meanwhile, Hank Aaron of Milwaukee continued to hammer National League pitching and took a 25-point lead over San Francisco's Willie Mays.

Aaron picked up eight points to .331 with 11 hits in 27 attempts, a .407 pace. Mays dropped six points to .326 with 10 hits in 31 times at bat. The figure include Sunday's games.

Richie Allen of Philadelphia climbed one place to third. The sophomore third baseman had eight hits in 31 trips and his batting mark remained at .331. Joe Torre, Milwaukee, and Ron Santo, Chicago Cubs, are deadlocked for fourth at .327 apiece followed by Pittsburgh's Donn Clendenon .327 and Roberto Clemente .325, DEAD HEAD

Cleveland's Rocky Colavito slammed three homers and took over the AL lead with 18 while Felix Mantilla of Boston continued to set the pace in runs batted in with 56. Mantilla drove in six runs last week.

Pittsburgh's Willie Stargell gained considerable ground on the Giants' Mays in the NL home run race. Stargell walloped five, including three in one game, and lifted his season's total to 20. Mays has 22, one more than a week ago.

Ernie Banks of Chicago remained the RBI leader with 59, two more than Cincinnati slugger Deron Johnson.

Royal Henley

Vespers Favored For Grand Challenge

HENLEY - ON - THAMES, England (CP) — Jack Kelly, once the greatest U.S. sculler, is back at Henley for the first time in 16 years with a disappointed bunch of Olympic champions.

The champions are the Vesper Boat Club of Philadelphia, gold medal-winners in Tokyo last fall. They are heavily favored to win the Grand Challenge Cup in the Henley Royal Regatta, which opens Wednesday.

"But we have had only one competitive race in the United States this season," said Kelly, brother of Princess Grace of Monaco. "We would have welcomed many more.

"We asked for invitations to several of the college regattas. We didn't get them. So naturally, we are disappointed."

Kelly made the remarks in a riverbank interview beside the Thames, the picturesque setting for the four days of regatta racing.

"It is no disgrace to lose to the Olympic champions," the 38 - year - old, wealthy former oarsman added. "If you win, it is a feather in your cap."

Kelly's generous financial support of the Vesper club was a major factor in the success story that culminated in Tokyo. He now is here as manager, revisiting the place where he made his own personal impact by winning the Diamond Sculls in 1947 and 1949.

Kelly looked up from where he was unlashing a crateload of oars.

"We are certainly as fast as we were in the Olympic trials," he said. "We are possibly as fast as we were in Tokyo. By the end of the summer, I think we will be faster than we were in Tokyo."

RACE AGAINST HARVARD

Vesper's first race is Thursday against unbeaten Harvard University—a struggle of giants that has tended to overshadow anything else in the regatta preliminaries. Harvard has beaten 16 different crews in the United States this season.

By contrast, Vesper fought for the American Henley at Worcester, Mass., where it finished four lengths up on Cornell.

No Russians are competing at Henley. Ratzburg from West Germany, are drawn against the TSC East Berlin crew on the second day of the regatta. Both German crews were due to arrive today.

SHOOTS ACE

LETHBRIDGE, Alta. (CP)—Stan Leonard, veteran touring professional from Vancouver, registered a hole-in-one Monday during an exhibition at the Henderson Lake Golf Club. He used an eight-iron for the perfect shot on the 128-yard 15th hole and finished with a three-under-par 68.

Burning Rectal Itch Relieved In Minutes

This Special Hemorrhoid Remedy Contains a Unique Healing Substance That Relieves Pain As It Shrinks Hemorrhoids

One of the most common afflictions is a condition known as "Rectal Itch." It is most embarrassing for the sufferer during the day and especially aggravating at night.

If you want satisfactory relief — new healing agent, recommended by research laboratory has found a unique healing substance with the ability to promptly relieve the burning itch and pain. It actually shrinks hemorrhoids. This substance has been shown to produce a most effective rate of healing. Its germ-killing properties also help prevent infection.

Now, hemorrhoid cases after another "very striking improvement" was reported. This improvement was maintained over a period of months. Among those sufferers were a wide variety of hemorrhoid conditions — from simple to bleeding.

This was accomplished by a new healing ointment (Bio-Dyne)—developed by a world-renowned research institution. This substance is now obtainable in ointment or suppository form known as Preparation H. Ask for Preparation H Suppositories (convenient to carry if away from home) or Preparation H Ointment with special applicator. Available at all drug counters. Satisfaction or your money refunded.

Marichal Out-Duels Drysdale

Wins 5-0

By MIKE RATHET
Associated Press Sports Writer

Right-hander Juan Marichal of San Francisco Giants, who has never lost at home against Los Angeles in his six-year major league career, made it 10 in a row Monday night when he scattered six hits and outdueled the Dodgers' Don Drysdale in a 5-0 victory over the National League leaders.

Despite the defeat, the Dodgers maintained their one-game edge over second-place Cincinnati Reds, who dropped a 5-4 decision to Pittsburgh Pirates.

Elsewhere, New York Mets swept a doubleheader from Milwaukee Braves 5-2 and 6-3, Philadelphia Phillies blanked St. Louis Cardinals 3-0 and Chicago Cubs belted Houston Astros 7-2.

The Giants scored in the first on singles by Dick Schofield and Willie Mays around a sacrifice. Juan broke it open with a four-run fifth inning after Drysdale opened the door with two consecutive throwing errors.

Drysdale first threw away Hal Lanier's grounder, then fired wildly on Randy Hundley's bunt. Lanier, however, was caught in a rundown trying to score but Drysdale's batterymate, John Roseboro, was charged with interference while blocking the plate and Lanier was allowed to score. Singles by Matty Alou and Jim Hart brought in the other three runs.

HAS MOST SHUTOUTS

Marichal came out with his fifth shutout—high in the majors this season—and the Dodgers' Sandy Koufax and Sammy Ellis of Cincinnati for most victories in the majors and lowered his earned run average to an eye-opening 1.65.

Roberto Clemente stroked a two-run single in the seventh inning, driving across what turned out to be the decisive runs for the Pirates when the Reds chased Don Cardwell with a four-run ninth. Cardwell, now 6-2, socked a homer and checked Cincinnati on three hits through eight innings before needing Al McBean's relief help.

The Mets snapped a five-game losing streak in the opener with Jack Fisher (5-6) scattering nine hits and Ron McMillan providing the key blow. McMillan singled to bring run in the third, then lashed a run-scoring triple in the fifth and scored on Ed Kranepool's sacrifice fly.

The Braves went down to their fourth straight defeat in the nightcap—their longest losing streak of the season—as the Mets exploded with a five-run fourth inning uprising. Kranepool's homer and a two-run single by Chuck Hiller, who had six hits in the double-header, were the big blows.

Chris Short checked the Cardinals on four hits while Johnny Callison provided the only run the Phillies needed when he tripled in the third inning and scored on a wild pitch by Tracy Stallard.

Larry Jackson, 5-10, pitched six-hitter and Ron Santo and Don Landrum slammed two-run homers in the Cubs' victory over the Astros. Landrum also got sole home in the eighth inning. Joe Morgan and Walt Bond connected for homers off Jackson.

Suns Hit Grand Slam, Win 7-6

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) Larry Stubing's grand - slam home run sparked a six-run rally in the eighth inning and paved the way for Jacksonville Suns to beat Atlanta Crackers 7-6 Monday night in an International League baseball game. Atlanta had a 3-0 lead at Jacksonville came to bat in the bottom of the eight, but the roof caved in on starter Clay Carroll and relief pitcher Chi Chi Olivo.

Fritz Ackley walked to lead off the eighth for Jacksonville. Bob Toland then singled and Atlanta brought in Olivo. Olivo walked two men and gave up a sacrifice fly that scored the first run. Another one scored on a wild pitch and then Stubing cleaned the bases with his blast.

Atlanta battled back to tie the score in the ninth after two were out.

The winning Jacksonville run scored in the ninth after Dave Ricketts and when Jack Smith singled and Bob Tolan reached first on an error; Elio Chacon then doubled to right-centre and Tolan scored.

Harvey, Hilton Post 77's

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Gail Harvey of Toronto and Sue Hilton of London each posted a 77 Monday to tie for medalist honors in the Ontario women's golf test match at the Hunt Club.

Twenty golfers from across the province competed for a berth on the Ontario four-member team in the Canadian closed golf championships - at Kitchener.

Five more test matches are scheduled before the team is announced. Players earn points up in a maximum of 12. With the Hunt Club rated at 76, Miss Hilton and Miss Harvey each collected 11.

Sandra Post of Milton, Ont., reigning Ontario women's champion, shot 79 for third place. Fourth spot went to Bonnie Mae Legge, 17, of Toronto.

Applies For NHL Entry

VANCOUVER (CP) — Fred Hume, owner of Vancouver Canucks hockey club, said Monday his organization will make formal application for membership in the National Hockey League "sometime this week."

Mr. Hume said his Western Hockey League club is prepared to meet every stipulation set at the recent NHL governors' meeting in New York city, which includes having a 12,500-seat arena for each expanded-franchise club.

The Canucks use the forum, owned by the Pacific National Exhibition, which seats 5,080. Joining the NHL in time for the 1967-68 season would mean expansion of existing facilities or construction of a new arena.

The Canucks owner said a letter was sent to NHL President Clarence Campbell on March 12 outlining the basis for the proposed Vancouver franchise. The new application will substitute a formal bid for an NHL franchise, said Mr. Hume.

Sports-Writing Launch Pad

By BORIS MISKEW

NEW YORK (CP) — On a warm autumn day 44 years ago J. Samuel Periman, a youthful Winnipeg lad, was struck with a determined desire to see the World Series and quite by accident was launched on a sports-writing career that rocketed him to enviable heights.

Periman recalled the incident the other day during an interview in his luxurious Fifth Avenue apartment overlooking Central Park.

Immaculately dressed in a business suit, Periman told of the circumstances that landed him as sports writer for the Winnipeg Free Press and eventually as editor and publisher of the New York Morning Telegraph and associated newspapers, the final authority on horse racing in North America.

Agile of mind and body, with only a trace of greyness in his sandy hair, few would guess Periman's age if they were not aware that recently he retired as editor and publisher of The Morning Telegraph upon reaching his 65th birthday.

Long before his retirement—he is continuing as a consultant to the publisher and a consultant and director of the Laurel race track in Maryland—Periman was widely credited with salvaging the racing daily from almost inevitable death.

MONEY IMPROVED

He changed the entire appearance of the newspaper and made it highly respectable and prosperous, as he watched respectability come to a sport that had been clouded in a somewhat questionable past.

"There has been a tremendous improvement in the honesty of horse racing in recent years," said Periman, attributing this mainly to better supervision and policing of the race tracks.

He engaged correspondents in the major racing centres in the United States, Canada and Europe in a successful effort to change the paper from a statistical publication to what it is today.

"When I took over," said Periman, "I changed it. Introduced special editions for such occasions as the Kentucky Derby, expanded coverage and set up columnists."

Himself erect and conservatively dressed, his influence soon was reflected in The Morning Telegraph which in time also took on a conservative, well-tailored appearance.

He inaugurated the Horse of the Year awards that now are one of the turf's important functions.

WON MANY HONORS

Periman has been honored by many racing organizations and in 1938 he received the only award ever presented by the Thoroughbred Racing Associations—an organization that includes every important race track in the United States and Canada.

The award was presented for "his objective approach in the reporting and editing of his journals" and for being "a force for good in all segments of the sport" through his efforts to increase public confidence in thoroughbred racing.

The following year Periman was honored by the Ontario Racing Commission, the Ontario Horsemen's Benevolent and Protective Association, the Ontario Jockey Club, the Prairie Thoroughbred Breeders and Racing Association of Canada, the Vancouver Thoroughbred Association and the Canadian Thoroughbred Horse Society "in recognition of his great contribution to thoroughbred racing."

Lack of money, after finishing high school, prevented Periman from entering law school and he joined the Canadian Pacific Railway in Winnipeg, intending to save enough money to continue with his education.

By 1921 he had been long enough with the railway company to qualify for a pass. And what was foremost in his mind? A trip to the World Series between the New York Yankees and the New York Giants.

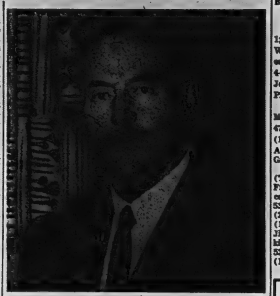
BECOMES SPORTS WRITER

But how was he going to get in to see the games once he got to New York? He approached Bill Finlay, Winnipeg Free Press sports editor at the time, and suggested that he cover the series for the newspaper.

Finlay, who knew Periman as a catcher with an amateur baseball team in Winnipeg, agreed—despite Periman's lack of newspaper experience.

The excellent coverage Periman provided resulted in a job offer a couple of months later, and Periman joined the newspaper's sports staff.

He became night sports editor and travelled extensively throughout Western Canada covering hockey, football, baseball, soccer, curling and, of course, horse racing.



Periman married Whetta Tritt of Neepawa, Man., and by 1928 had decided he'd earn more money by starting a racing paper. He left The Free Press and founded the Winnipeg Sports and Turf Digest which became the official publication of thoroughbred racing in Western Canada.

In 1932 he sold his paper to Triangle Publications which by then owned all the racing newspapers in the United States, but continued to operate it.

When in 1943 Walter H. Annenberg needed a general manager to take charge of Triangle Publications, Periman was selected to fill the position. And four years later he was appointed editor and publisher of The Morning Telegraph and associated newspapers, with editions published in New York, Chicago, Los Angeles, Miami, Seattle, Toronto, Winnipeg and Vancouver, all under his direction.

He has tried raising racehorses and was in partnership with John Haza of Calgary when their horse, Sir Trappeph, won the Canadian Derby in Winnipeg in 1934.

Periman said there is a "lot of uncertainty" in the breeding of champion race horses and that Canadian breeders had been handicapped in the past because of a lack of good breeding stock. But he predicts a brighter future as more money is invested in better stock.

RACING AUTHORITY — Samuel Periman is a Winnipeg native who became editor and publisher of the New York Morning Telegraph, the final authority on horse racing in North America. He retired recently but continues as a consultant to the publisher and a director of the Laurel race track in Maryland. He started as a sports writer for the Winnipeg Free Press 44 years ago. THE ARNOLD Palmer Method

by GOLF'S 4-TIME MASTERS WINNER

You would think it obvious that on tee shots you should make a much fuller body and shoulder turn than on short approach shots. After all, you are using a longer club off the tee, and you are striving for more distance.

Yet, many golfers take too little of a turn on tee shots and too much of one on approach shots with the middle and short irons.

Always make sure to take a full turn on tee shots. Stretch those back and shoulder muscles on your backswing so you get a full universe of power coming down. Failure to take a full turn on wood shots often causes slicing.

Then, on approach shots, where the accent is on accuracy rather than distance, take a shorter swing with less body turn. A long swing with a short club can only undermine accurate approaching.

Study the illustration showing a shorter swing with the iron and a longer swing with the wood. Then recall this picture the next time you play.

Some Institute members from here enjoyed the bus trip to Ottawa on Thursday, sponsored by the Redneraville Women's Institute.

Mrs. Ralph Redner, accompanied by Mrs. Crozier, Miss Brickman and Miss Bonter motored to Picton on Thursday and called on Mrs. Annie Lamb at the County Home on the occasion of her birthday.

Mr. and Mrs. Delmar of Six Lakes, Michigan, were recent guests of Mrs. A. H. Pulver.

Mr. Taylor Franklin of Albert College occupied the pulpits of Redneraville charge on Sunday. He spoke in the interests of the Temperance Federation.

Miss Brickman and Miss Bonter attended a baby shower on Saturday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Bedell, Belleville, for Mrs. Bruce Bedell of Toronto.

The school children enjoyed their annual Field Day on Wednesday afternoon. It was held at the Ameliasburg ball park. A program of sports was carried out with the schools of the township participating.

Eight In Row

Arm Of Law Winning

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Pittsburgh Pirate pitcher Vernon Law's eight victories in a row after losing his first five starts may have surprised many fans, but to the veteran right hander it was just a matter of time.

"There is no difference in my pitching," he says. "I might just as well have won those first five games."

The 32-year-old star of the 1960 World Series lost his magic touch after the Pirate's championship season and has been struggling to pick up where he left off ever since. He won 20 and lost seven in 1960.

Plagued by a sore arm during the 1961 through 1962 seasons, the soft-spoken elder of the Mormon Church, retired voluntarily in August of 1962. His retirement followed a disappointing year which saw him win four, lose five, give up 11 home runs and compile a 4.95 earned-run average.

He returned to the Pirates in April of last year and encouraged many fans with a 12-13 won-lost record.

In his first five losses this year, he gave up only 12 earned runs and reached up a 2.88 earned run average.

CONSIDERS CUT

OTTAWA (CP)—The federal Food and Drug Directorate is considering reducing the maximum amounts of vitamins permitted in drug products sold to the general public, it was announced Monday. A reduction in vitamin D has already been recommended by the directorate as a result of suspicions that heart and mental defects may have been produced in children by their mothers' intake of vitamin D during pregnancy.

CUSTOM-CLEAN GASOLINE

Two major improvements have been made. They will give you better mileage... fewer carburetor tune-ups... real protection against stalling and flooding.

(1) A new carburetor cleaner has been added to all six Custom Blends of Blue Sunoco. This advanced additive (known as L-110) cleans deposits from your carburetor. Results? You need fewer carburetor tune-ups. You prevent stalling caused by deposits in the carburetor. You also get better mileage—in many cars as much as 20 more miles from a tankful of gas!

(2) A new clean-fuel filter is now standard equipment on all Sunoco Pumps. It traps impurities so small you can't see them with the naked eye... makes Blue Sunoco the purest gasoline sold today.

CUSTOM-CLEAN GASOLINE

Petroleum scientists say that the perfect gasoline is one that would produce 100% power. Free from any impurities. It would burn with no combustion by-products.

Committee Will Report Within Two Weeks

OTTAWA (CP)—A joint federal - provincial committee has been formed to tackle central Canada's record drought and report possible solutions within two weeks.

The agriculture ministers for Ontario and Quebec discussed the parched-crop situation with fed e r a l Agriculture Minister Hays for two hours here Monday.

"We told the groundwork in so far as some of the things we hope to do", Mr. Hays told reporters afterwards.

Alcide Courcy, Quebec agriculture minister, said a committee has been formed to study the situation . . . and report back to the three ministers, then to our agriculture cabinets."

His said the committee will include agriculture officials of the federal, Ontario and Quebec governments.

William Stewart, Ontario agriculture minister, said in answer to a reporter's question that his government "still plans to go ahead with rain-making."

"If rain can be brought on by any means—we hope by nature —including the introduction of silver iodide crystals (used in the rain-making attempts), then we'll go ahead."

Mr. Stewart said reports the Ontario government is spending some $200,000 on a rain-making project in the Ottawa Valley "were way out of line; it's not quite $100,000."

Mr. Hays said the details now would be worked out at the deputy — ministerial level "then we'll take it to our respective cabinets."

All three men declined to elaborate on just what steps, including cost - sharing arrangements, they discussed.

Ontario now has some 1,600 farmers in 14 counties affected by the drought, Mr. Stewart said. Mr. Courcy said Quebec has 10 counties and some 10,000 farmers affected.

Diefenbaker Likely Leader In Next Vote

EDMONTON (CP) — John Diefenbaker will lead the Progressive Conservatives in the next election campaign, even if it is two years away, Dalton Camp said in an interview here Monday.

The national president of the Conservative party said there is a general feeling in the party that Mr. Diefenbaker has "been more sinned against than sinning."

A recent survey conducted by the party revealed a strong anti-government feeling in Canada, Mr. Camp said.

"An election fought along an a n t i - government platform would be just the kind Mr. Diefenbaker would be good at."

The Progressive Conservative president had no comment to make about talks held recently between Manitoba's Pre m i e r Roblin and himself.

Feud Between Actresses Failed to Materialize

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—The interview with French director Louis Malle got off to an unsettling start.

Just as we started to chat, the doorbell of his hotel suite rang. A stately beauty materialized from the bedroom and received some laundry. Her attire, in the tradition of French movies, was a towel—period.

"That was my wife," said Malle offhandedly, and he continued with the discussion. He is accustomed to such things, having directed not only Brigitte Bardot (A Very Private Affair) and Jeanne Moreau (The Lovers) separately, but also Brigitte Bardot and Jeanne Moreau together in Vive Maria.

He had just returned from Mexico with the two French film stars and his aplomb seemed unshaken by the experience. He is an impeccably groomed man, young (32) for a director, and handsome enough to fill in as leading man.

WAS TOUGH

"It was an extremely difficult picture," he said. "There were all kinds of complicated things to do—western scenes, special effects, battle scenes—all this with two girls doing what John Wayne and Gary Cooper might have done in an American film.

"We shot for 17 weeks with the girls, 2½ weeks without them, but we lost three weeks during that time because of illness. We went three weeks over schedule, but the picture came in about $2,000,000, which is not bad for a film of such scope."

Bardot and Moreau hadn't met before Vive Maria, and the prospect of a raging feud was savored by journalists everywhere. It didn't happen, said Malle.

He said the ladies went through three stages which precluded any blastoff:

1. A period of watching each other stealthily...

AT THE PARK — Dynamic Lotis Lenya as mature planner does not accept many film roles, but each one is unique. In her most memorable role, she plays a master numbers runner for an international crime syndicate in the James Bond adventure film, "From Russia With Love" opening Thursday evening at the Park Theatre. On the same program is the second James Bond adventure film "Dr. No". Sean Connery stars in both his Fleming's features. Continuous shows from 2:00 p.m. Thursday. Doors open 1:30.

2. A time when both acknowledged the challenge and played together competitively, as in a tennis match.

3. A period of mutual respect.

REAR UP ALL RIGHT

Malle said the pair bore up better than he expected under the rigors of the location. The script, which concerns a central American revolution in the 1900s, called for them to use firearms. Bardot became especially proficient with the machine-guns, learning to unjam misfires so scenes didn't need to be halted.

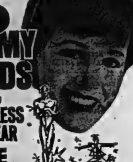
"One indoor scene required her to take the machine-gun and shoot out a doorway overhead," the director said. "There was terrible noise, but she did it perfectly."

Malle's analysis of the two stars:

Moreau — "a great actress, but more intriguing than that. She has an emotional, even sensual impact that goes beyond being an actress."

Bardot—"She is considered a sexpot, but is actually a first-rate actress. She would be considered so if she were less flashy, sexy and beautiful. If she keeps going on her present trend, she will be as good as Marilyn Monroe in some of her later comedies. Carole Lombard or Judy Holliday."

CHIEF RETIRES



STRATFORD (CP)—After 43 years' service in two departments of municipal government, Alfred T. Day, 58, is retiring as Stratford's chief constable, a position he has held for almost 30 years. His resignation, for health reasons, was accepted Monday by the Stratford police commission, effective July 31. Deputy Chief E. K. Anderson has been appointed acting chief.

Fuel Troubles Caused by Feast, Famine

By EUGENE B. MILMOE

When fuel troubles hurt engine performance, one of two conditions is responsible: either the engine is getting too much gas, or not enough.

Flooding — or too much fuel — is very often due to overwork. Jamming the gas pedal when starting. Other likely causes include an over-rich choke or carburetor adjustment a sticking needle valve, float level too high, or excessive fuel pump pressure.

Too lean a mixture, — not enough gas! — may be more difficult to trace. And, of course, there's always the possibility of a defective fuel guage which doesn't tell you when the tank is running dry. Don't assume that this is an extremely rare occurrence; it happens more often than you think.

More likely causes of fuel starvation are carburetor dirt, wear, or maladjustment, air leakage due to loose mountings at the carburetor or manifold, a failing fuel pump, clogged fuel lines or air leaks in the lines.

Finally, be on guard against the simplest trouble of all — a clogged gas tank vent.

From G.I.: "What's most often wrong when poor water circulation keeps causing the engine to overheat?" Rotted, soft, swollen, cracked or collapsing radiator hoses are usually at fault.

A. L. writes: "My engine oil pressure is O.K. for the first few miles, then gradually drops down to about 15 psi. I've been told this is a sure sign of worn bearings."

It is. Oil is thicker when cold, and cushions bearing clearances. Then, it thins out when hot and flows past worn bearings like water.

W. G. asks: "How come a diesel engine is able to run on oil rather than gasoline?"

Air compression in a diesel creates such excessive heat that a gasoline mixture would ignite much too soon.

From S.R.: "How can a clogged muffler affect the heat of the engine itself?"

It will prevent the escape of exhaust heat. This applies to the exhaust and tail pipes, too.

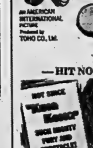
Plane Circles For Half Hour To Finish Film

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Steve Allen commutes between his home here and New York, where he is the master of ceremonies on the TV show I've Got a Secret, His transcontinental jet commuting is done mostly on airlines where they show movies.

"I know this sounds like something a comedy writer would dream up for Bob Hope or someone, but it actually happened.

"Last week, the jet made the trip a half-hour faster than usual. I was talking to the pilot about it afterwards and mentioned about the fast trip.



"'Heh,' he said, 'we could have made it even faster but we had to circle around for an hour for a half-hour because the movie hadn't finished.'"

Producer of Peyton Place Gives His Views of Series

By PAUL MONASH
Executive Producer
Peyton Place

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — In a magazine article recently, the writer stated that he would rather have a "son of mine marry a girl from Peyton Place than a daughter of the producer." Since, as I understand it, the writer of the article is a middle-aged bachelor, and since my daughters are still very young (and quite innocent), the chances of his having a scurry down an aisle to halt the wedding are very slight indeed.

However, you should ask and I must ask: Am I really involved in an insidious attack on the morals of our country in the Peyton Place, television program?

Certainly, there are definite implications in the novel by Grace Metalious, but when it was published today, this same novel would be regarded as very mild stuff indeed. We discussed with ABC-TV at length the advisability of using the Peyton Place title for a television series and were prepared to release the series under the hackle appellation of Eden Hill.

Why did we brave the storm? Obviously, because we wished to utilize the presold values of the title. We were, in effect, daring people to tune in and see how television would handle Peyton Place. Paradoxically, it was our faith in our ability to present a healthy series which allowed us to risk the criticism we would receive in an American small town, we would have disguised the town as Eden Hill.

Peyton Place does have its dark secret, and most likely our viewers have now detected it. So it is no act of courage to admit that the series has a basically sentimental and optimistic viewpoint, that Peyton Place is a story of people bound to each other, no matter how grave their problems, by ties of affection, that it is in essence a love story—the story of the love people have for each other and for the town in which they live. It seems obvious that the American audience would never take to their hearts a group of people whose lives were essentially immoral.

You can reduce Peyton Place to a low common denominator by examining the characters. Thus, Elliot Carson can be described as an "ex-con, father of Allison MacKenzie born out of wedlock to the supposedly widowed Constance MacKenzie." As can be sound degraded. Still, when Elliot Carson lay on what might have been his deathbed, he received an outpouring of petitions, letters and telegrams with a common theme: "Let Elliot Carson live!"

Canada Cautiously Begins Arctic Project With USSR

John Best, Canadian Press correspondent in Moscow, accompanied Northern Affairs Minister Arthur Laing on a 14,000-mile tour of Soviet Asia. In this story he describes the political aspect of moves toward northern co-operation between Canada and the Soviet Union.

By JOHN BEST

MOSCOW (CP)—The Soviet Union and Canada have taken a first, halting step toward mutual co-operation in northern development.

Canadian officials appear to believe a worth-while beginning was made with the recent two-week tour of a Canadian delegation led by Northern Affairs Minister Laing.

They are being careful, however, not to leap to any premature conclusions. It is recognized that the plan proposed is still far from implementation.

The idea of a common attack by the U.S.S.R. and Canada on the towering problems of Arctic and sub - Arctic development that have so far defied management had been made more than once in the past, usually by the Canadian side, but nothing ever came of them, basically because of the cold war.

From a defence standpoint, no geographical region of either country is more important than the north. It would be ironic if at times of acute international tension fliers and missiles from the two countries were permitted to look around each other's northern territory.

Early last year, however, the idea was taken up again by the Canada - U.S. committee on exploratory exchange of delegations was agreed upon.

STILL UNCOMMITTED

Looking for a reason, Canadian diplomats could only speculate that Moscow's decision never seems quite able to figure out how to deal with its transpolar neighbour, decided to give it a try for whatever it might be worth—political and practical.

The Canadians' chief objective here was to open the way for a formal agreement covering exchange of specialists. The program would be a comprehensive one, with perhaps 10 scientists and engineers moving each way each year in an uninterrupted flow.

Canadian specialists would do research work in Soviet laboratories and institutes and vice versa. There would be reciprocal inspection of specific projects. Then, specialists would return home and put their acquired knowledge to use.

Laing took every opportunity while in the U.S.S.R. to emphasize the need for a binding agreement. Soviet officials refused to commit themselves.

Georgiy Karavaev, deputy chairman of the state construction agency, Gosstroy, and the Canadians' chief host, spoke in general terms about Soviet-Canadian co-operation. But when Laing and his associates put forward definite proposals for an exchange of professional people, Karavaev replied that the matter could be discussed at the conclusion of a Soviet delegation's return visit to Canada in August.

DIDN'T ANSWER

When Laing proposed that a Northern affairs department officer be allowed to set up shop in Moscow as a liaison man, Karavaev didn't answer.

At the working level the response was more encouraging. Scientists and engineers all along Laing's 14,000-mile tour of Soviet Asia endorsed the idea of an exchange enthusiastically, an augury of working success if the program should ever be instituted.

The Canadians were treated to hospitality—a remarkable reception all the way through," Laing said—but things weren't always as smooth from the standpoint of itinerary.

Seeking a first-hand view of developments in as much of the Soviet Arctic as possible, they tried to get to Tiksi, a river port at the mouth of the Lena, but were turned down. The reason given was that the breakup posed a danger of flooding around Tiksi.

Instead, a Lena River port, was placed on the itinerary but later scratched. Instead the party suddenly learned permission had been granted for a visit to Norilsk, a booming industrial and mining centre 1,500 miles east of Moscow and within the Arctic Circle.

It involved flying all the way back to Moscow and then eastward again, a total distance of 6,000 miles for a one-day stop, but the Canadians counted the long haul a worth while.

In addition to Laing, the Canadian delegation comprised E. A. Cote, deputy minister of northern affairs, Jack Austin, Laing's executive secretary, John Turner, his parliamentary secretary, and two departmental specialists, Harry Rosenberg of the water resources branch and Graham Rowley, an expert on northern peoples.

An intriguing sidelight of the visit was the total lack of publicity given it in the Soviet national press.

One reason for the Russians' go-slow approach to the idea of an exchange with Canada may be a suspicion that it would be a one-way street. The Russians may feel they have little to learn from Canada while Canada can learn a lot from the Soviet Union, which has plowed far greater resources into northern development.

On the other hand Gosstroy is concerned with construction in the U.S.S.R. generally, not just in the north. Canadian construction techniques are, by and large, far superior to those employed in the Soviet Union.

The Russians may decide they can get their money's worth simply from the opportunity such a program would afford to study the broad range of Canadian building techniques.

FAVREAU QUITS JUSTICE MINISTRY AFTER BLISTERING DORION REPORT

CENTRE OF ATTENTION — Justice Minister Favreau is pressed by visitors to the Commons galleries and by reporters as he enters the House of Commons at Ottawa.

(CP Wirephoto)

Favreau To Get Another Post

OTTAWA (CP) — Guy Favreau, the political amateur who was supposed to be on his way to stardom, resigned as justice minister Tuesday.

In what he later agreed was the saddest day of his two years in the Commons, the 47-year-old Montreal lawyer nervously tapped his fingers on his desk as Prime Minister Pearson stood just to his right and announced Mr. Favreau's resignation from the prestige - laden justice portfolio.

Mr. Favreau told reporters later that he felt "the general interest of the cabinet and of the party stand before my personal feelings and my pride."

The report by Chief Justice Frederic Dorion of the Quebec Superior Court into allegations of bribery and influence-peddling by ministerial aides left Mr. Favreau's honesty and integrity unquestioned but criticized his handling of the affair.

"I wish to repeat that my resignation was rendered not out of a feeling of that I had done anything wrong, but because of the feeling that my usefulness as minister of justice had been impaired by the situation which has developed," Mr. Favreau said in his resignation letter to the prime minister.

Chief Justice Dorion said in his report that Mr. Favreau should have asked his department officers for an opinion instead of personally deciding there was insufficient evidence to lay charges against Raymond Denis, former executive assistant to Rene Tremblay, the former immigration minister.

The chief justice said, however, Mr. Favreau had insufficient evidence to lay criminal charges against Denis last September in the Lucien Rivard affair.

He said there was now evidence to establish a prima facie case to lay charges, but his report didn't specify them.

The prime minister praised Mr. Favreau as a "man of unimpeachable integrity and unsullied honor" and said he understood his reasons for wanting to resign.

Mr. Pearson said Mr. Favreau, once touted as a future prime minister, would continue as Quebec leader and had agreed to accept another position in the cabinet.

Mr. Favreau's resignation was considered necessary by opposition spokesmen, although they stressed that his popularity with opposition members was not dimmed and his honesty and integrity was unquestioned.

Chief Justice Dorion said Mr. Favreau should have sought the advice of his legal officers because—quoting a 1932 British inquiry into cabinet power—"to act in is to be before the cause in which he has an interest."

"What he was being called upon to do was to examine the conduct and steps taken by his own executive assistant, his special assistant, the executive assistant to a colleague of his, and by the parliamentary secretary to the prime minister."

Warkentin Inquest Opens

A Belleville surgeon today said fatal complications suffered by one of his patients were rare in medicine.

Dr. Henry Bateman was testifying at an inquest probing circumstances surrounding the death of Jacob Bernard Warkentin, 61-year-old florist.

Dr. Bateman was the last witness called before Ontario Supervising Coroner Dr. H. B. Cotnam — personally conducting the inquiry — adjourned the inquest for lunch shortly after 1 p.m.

Testimony showed Mr. Warkentin died in Kingston General Hospital June 2.

Dr. Bateman said he had operated three times on the man after he admitted him to Belleville General Hospital for hernia.

The original hernia operation was performed March 29. A second followed April 15 and a third May 11.

Subsequently, Mr. Warkentin was removed to

Dorion Highlights

OTTAWA (CP) — Highlights of the findings of Chief Justice Frederic Dorion's judicial inquiry into allegations of influence peddling in the government service:

Justice Minister Favreau's judgment is questioned for taking it upon himself to decide against prosecution in connection with bribery allegations last September.

* * *

Mr. Favreau was justified in thinking, on the basis of evidence available then but not followed up, that a charge would be difficult to prove.

Conduct of then immigration minister Rene Tremblay was "absolutely beyond reproach."

There "cannot be any doubt" that Raymond Denis, then executive assistant to Mr. Tremblay, offered a $20,000 bribe to "obstruct the course of justice" in the case of narcotics-smuggling suspect Lucien Rivard.

* * *

Guy Rouleau, Montreal Liberal MP and then parliamentary secretary to Prime Minister Pearson, committed a "reprehensible act" in trying to use his influence to get Rivard out of jail on bail, but his action was not criminal.

There is prima facia evidence of an offence under the Criminal Cole. Though the investigator does not say who might have committed it.

On credibility, there is no doubt statements of lawyer Pierre Lamontagne — who accused Denis of attempting to bribe him — must be accepted in preference to those of Denis.

Andre Letendre, then and still executive assistant to Mr. Favreau, was guilty of "reprehensible" but not "malicious" conduct in intervening with Lamontagne on behalf of bail for Rivard.

Guy Lord, special assistant to the justice minister at the time, acted imprudently but not reprehensibly in putting pressure on Mr. Lamontagne.

The RCMP's investigation methods and Commissioner George B. McClelland's methods of interpreting the evidence in conjunction with the justice minister are criticized.

The RCMP's use of English-language investigators to question French-speaking persons is described as "extraordinary."

There is no doubt that Rivard's wife and three associates — Eddy Lechasseur, an "importer" with a criminal record; Robert Gignac, a suspect in a murder case, and Guy Masson, a fringe Liberal politician at Montreal — conspired to obstruct the course of justice.

Finds Denis Offered Bribe, Two Other Liberal Members' Conduct Called Reprehensible

By JOHN LEBLANC

OTTAWA (CP) — Chief Justice Frederic Dorion has found criminality and ministerial bad judgment entangled in the Lucien Rivard affair, and the first result is that Guy Favreau is leaving the justice ministry.

But this bombshell is "only the first scene of the first act," Prime Minister Pearson promised Tuesday night as his 47-year-old chief Quebec lieutenant quit his prestige portfolio after the Dorion report roasted the minister, the RCMP and several political and non-political figures involved in efforts on behalf of narcotics suspect Rivard.

The burly Mr. Favreau will get a new portfolio—unnamed as yet—and keep his leadership of the federal Quebec Liberals.

The justice department will study possible criminal action growing out of the findings. It was Mr. Favreau's personal decision not to take such action—without the department's advice—that brought judicial criticism down on him.

After making these announcements, the prime minister also said the government wants to "deal with the sinister and growing involvement of crime in politics"—a statement on which he did not elaborate in talking to reporters.

Chief Justice Dorion's findings, reporting on an inquiry springing from allegations of attempted bribery and coercion in efforts to free Rivard last July, blasted political personalities and Rivard associates alike.

OFFERED BRIBE

He found that Raymond Denis, dismissed executive assistant to then immigration minister Rene Tremblay, had offered a $20,000 bribe to Pierre Lamontagne, the prosecuting counsel against the narcotic facilitate bail for him while he was being held for the United States authorities in a $56,000,000 dope-smuggling case. Rivard escaped March 2 from Montreal's Bordeaux Jail and is still at large.

The judge also found in his 149-page report that Rivard's 32-year-old wife and three associates engaged in finding uses for a $60,000 fund had been guilty of conspiracy to obstruct justice.

Guy Rouleau, 41-year-old Liberal MP for Montreal Dollard, had been guilty of reprehensible—but not criminal—conduct in trying to apply political muscle to get Rivard freed. He has already lost the job of parliamentary secretary to the prime minister and chairman of the Commons liberal caucus.

Andre Letendre, 35, executive assistant to the justice minister, was guilty of "reprehensible" though not "malicious" conduct in putting pressure on Mr. Lamontagne.

For similar action, the inquiry judge also reprimanded, though more mildly, Guy Lord, 25, former assistant to Mr. Favreau and now a student at Oxford. His action was called imprudent—not wilfully reprehensible.

There were immediate opposition demands in the Commons for action against Mr. Rouleau, Mr. Letendre and RCMP Commissioner G. B. McClellan.

TREMBLAY UNSCATHED

One top political figure who emerged unscathed was Mr. Tremblay, now postmaster-general. He fired Denis when he heard of the bribery allegation, and Chief Justice Dorion said the minister's conduct was "absolutely above reproach."

Without Mr. Tremblay's knowledge, Denis was alleged to have extended the bribe offer to Lamontagne in the minister's office July 14 of last year.

The commissioner was critical of Mr. Favreau both directly and by implication —

DORION REPORT IN HIS HANDS — Prime Minister Pearson, holding a copy of the Dorion report, enters cabinet meeting at Ottawa. The report, containing the findings of the royal commission which investigated charges of attempted bribery and coercion by ministerial aides, was studied by the cabinet before tabling in the House of Commons.

Pearson's Statement

OTTAWA (CP) — Text of Prime Minister Pearson's statement Tuesday night in the Commons, announcing the resignation of Guy Favreau as justice minister:

Mr. Speaker, I am grateful to the House for reverting to motions so I can make a short statement on the matter which I mentioned this afternoon in tabling what is now known as the Dorion report.

Normally, Mr. Speaker, after receipt of a report of a royal commission which has been examining matters involving questions of policy or controversy, a government may take some days or even weeks to examine the recommendations or conclusions before having the report publicly released so that the government at the time of release may give an indication of its own policy in respect of these, recommendations or conclusions when that policy has been decided.

In the case of the present report, however, it was not submitted to the government until my return from the conference of Commonwealth prime ministers at 7:40 last (Monday) night.

It was placed before the cabinet for its information at a meeting at 11 o'clock this morning.

Because of the very great interest in this matter and the degree to which Parliament very properly feels concerned over the conclusions that the commissioner has reached, the government felt that the report should be released immediately, and it was for that reason I tabled the report this afternoon.

Because of the speed with which action has been taken, the House will understand

Report Blasts RCMP

OTTAWA (CP)—RCMP brass hampered their chief investigator in the Lucien Rivard affair and gave Justice Minister Favreau legal advice they weren't qualified to give, Chief Justice Frederic Dorion has informed the government.

His report says that appointment of an officer who spoke only English to investigate a case involving mostly French-speaking persons "is so extraordinary that it is hard to believe it has happened in our times."

The Quebec Superior Court judge aimed critical comments at Commissioner G. B. McClellan, now retired deputy commissioner J. R. Lemieux, superintendent W. G. Fraser, inspector J. R. Carriere and inspector G. W. Reed.

But he said his comments related only to the investigation of allegations by Montreal lawyer Pierre Lamontagne that he was offered a $20,000 bribe and subjected to political pressure to agree to the release on bail of narcotics smuggler Lucien Rivard.

The efficiency of the RCMP, he said, "is beyond question." And he said, Commissioner McClellan and Deputy Commissioner Lemieux were excellent policemen.

LACKED KNOWLEDGE

But they lacked legal knowledge and their opinions carried too great weight when Mr. Favreau in deciding against prosecutions.

Commissioner McClellan declined comment on the report.

His removal as head of the force was demanded in the Commons Tuesday after Prime Minister Pearson tabled Chief Justice Dorion's report.

The report said that if Inspector J. P. Drapeau, chief investigator in the Rivard case, "had complete freedom of action . . . the results would have been quite different."

The report quoted Supt. Fraser as saying "I never gave it a thought" when asked whether he didn't think it would have been wiser to appoint a bilingual instead of English-speaking officer to assist Drapeau.

The report added:

"Not only the reply itself, but the manner in which it was given shows an offhand attitude which is certainly not to be expected from a senior officer of the RCMP.

BAD IMPRESSION

"He (Fraser) certainly gave the impression that he was a man to whom the French-speaking population of Canada are a negligible factor."

The report also criticized the fact that all RCMP reports are drafted in English even when interrogations are conducted in

No Publication On Dominion Day

Red Cross Training Centre For Quebec and Ontario Students to Be Held Here

Albert College here will be the scene of two Red Cross leadership training courses for high school students in July. The first, bilingual, will commence on Wednesday of next week and will run for a week. The second course, starting July 15, will be for Ontario students only, between the ages of 16 and 18. This second course is an annual event for the Ontario Junior Red Cross, but this is the first time the training centre has operated here. There will be approximately 40 to 70 boys and girls in attendance at this second course, the program of which will be similar to the first course, without the added challenge of the French language.

The bilingual course will be attended by 17 students from Quebec high schools and 30 students from Ontario. The purpose of this course is two - fold, to foster understanding between the French and English cultures by providing a mutual exchange of ideas, and to encourage a broader knowledge of Red Cross, its principles and its application to daily living.

This bilingual course will bring together students from Ontario and Quebec schools, from rural and city areas, from all types of communities. It is hoped they will learn to appreciate each other's viewpoints, exchange ideas on the international, provincial, community and high school levels, and make lasting friendships.

Well qualified staff members from the Ontario and Quebec Divisional of the Junior Red Cross will give lectures in English and French. The theme for the week will be, "Together We Serve Mankind." In addition there will be discussion periods on subjects such as "International Heritage," "Provincial Accomplishments," "Special Commanding Services," "High School Red Cross Clubs," and "Future Goals in Service."

Following the morning programs of lectures and discussions in both French and English, the students will engage in swimming, water safety and first aid activities, with planned social hours in the evening. The evening programs will again be conducted in both French and English.

Top quality for the leadership centre students of 16, 17 and 18 years of age must be recommended by their principal or teacher-sponsor. It is imperative that they have a good knowledge of French with a high academic standing.

They will live in residences at Albert College for the week. Transportation facilities, evidence on the days when French only is spoken. If the meal cannot be ordered in French there are apt to be some hungry teenagers.

Those planning for the final speakers and daily news broadcasts (simulated) will be done by the students themselves.

Many Plants To Close Last Weeks of July

A relaxed atmosphere will pervade this city during the last two weeks of July as the majority of Belleville's larger industries shut down their operations to send their employees on holidays. Among those doing so are: American Optical, Black Diamond, H. Corby Distillery, Deacon Bros., International Harvester, G. T. Lanning, Metal-Craft, Gordon Johnson, Stephens-Adamson, Stewart-Warner, and Vagden Mills.

Avon Jewellery will cease production for holidays between July 30 and August 23rd, while Shirt will vacation the last week in July and the first in August. Bakelite Division of Union Carbide will hit the holiday trail from July 10 to August 8.

Staggered holidays are the order of the day for Amalgamated, Canada Cement, Canadian National, Canadian Pacific and Bervie Steiltite. Wilson Concrete has already taken its holiday.

Fire Hydrants Being Replaced On Front Street

The Belleville Public Utilities is carrying out a fire hydrant replacement program along Front Street which is hoped will correct two problems in the area.

The hydrants are being moved from their present location in the street gutter and at the same time shut-off valves from the watermain are being installed. About 20 hydrants from Dundas St. to the Upper Bridge will be moved, according to E. H. Burnham, utilities manager.

Reason for setting the hydrants back from the gutter is to get them out of the way of city street cleaning and snowplowing equipment.

The shut-off valves are being installed so that if the hydrants happen to be damaged or broken, the hydrant can be replaced or repaired without shutting off the main, thus cutting water service in the entire area.

PROBABLE MAIN LEAK

The utilities' plan is to eventually put shut-off valves at all hydrants in the city, although this will be done over a period of years.

But the Front Street replacement program this week turned up still another possible benefit.

When PUC crews cut into the street opposite the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce they found a small river coursing through the underground rock, just above watermain level.

But overnight the water did not overflow the excavation and appears to be escaping through the rock fast as it comes into the hole.

We are a bit concerned about the water because it could be coming from a leak in the watermain," Mr. Burnham said this morning.

Tests are being made to determine if it is city water. If it is, engineering examination will be necessary to determine the location of the leak.

Ellis Sees Belleville as Toronto Suburb

KITCHENER (CP) —Belleville could become a dormitory suburb of Toronto within 30 years, Mayor Jack Ellis said here Tuesday.

He told the annual conference of the Association of Ontario Mayors and Reeves that regional government had come too late to Toronto, but other communities could benefit from it because much of their land is still vacant.

However, with trains that travel at 100 miles an hour now being planned, regional government is a pressing need in some still-rural areas.

"We need more development in the next 30 years than we have seen in the past 300," he said.

First World Veteran Home After 20th Trip Abroad

A 78-year-old Belleville man who rates high among the city's most travelled travellers is home again after his 20th trip across the Atlantic.

He is Charles W. Fisher, 14 Montgomery Blvd., World War I veteran and former 51d navy township farmer, who since 1954 has averaged a trip overseas every two years — all of them strictly for the sake of travel.

In the same period he has made a trip to the Canadian west coast, talked in the Calgary Stampede on his way home and also visited Canada's northland.

Most of his trips overseas have been a member of conducted tour parties, three of them being charter flights.

"It's the only way to travel," says Mr. Fisher speaking of conducted tours, "especially in foreign countries where you don't know the language."

MADE TRIP ALONE

He returned just this week from a four weeks trip to England. This time the trip was made on his own by way of jet flight to London, a flight that took seven hours from Toronto.

The seven-hour trip across the Atlantic was a way of contrast from his first trip over as a member of the 39th Battalion early in World War I.

Mr. Fisher almost enlisted as a bandsman and then at the last minute along with a few of his friends, volunteered as a machine gunner.

He is one of the few remaining veterans of the famed 39th who, 50 years ago last week, left Canada for England on the S. S. Missanabie. He served with the Allied armies in France and Belgium, was wounded and gassed at the battle of Vimy and in 1917 was invalided home on the hospital ship S. S. Letitia.

RE-VISITS BATTLE SCENES

Twice since the First World War, Mr. Fisher has re-visited battle scenes in France and in Belgium, and never ceases to marvel on how war graves are maintained. His last visit to war graves in Belgium was three years ago.

In all his trips across the Atlantic, Mr. Fisher has first stopped in the British Isles, and there when the tour package dictated has gone on for visits in m a m a tive towns, Nottingham, Leeds.

Among countries visited have been France, Belgium, Germany, Switzerland, Luxemburg, The Lowlands and Scandianavian countries.

Travelling helps to fill in the time," says the 78-year-old Belleville man, already looking forward to another tour.

Vast Changes in Education Envisioned by Speaker

Vast changes in Canada's school system and whole outlook towards education were envisioned by Edward J. Buckley, chairman of the Belleville Separate School Board, at the regular Kiwanis meeting yesterday.

"The average citizen on the street is not aware of the speed of change," he said. "North America, and in particular, Canada, has been slow to recognize the need for a new way thinking in this technological age."

"Canada has been an agrarian country for so long that it is finding it hard to change to meet the demands of the new society.

"We must be more radical in our concepts. The rule must have established for ourselves often become too comfortable and have come to get us out of them we fight against it."

He went on to say that all our old ideas about going to school and learning must be changed.

"The idea that we go to school and learn what knowledge that will serve us a lifetime is gone. We must keep up our studies today. Education is the key to survival in this technological age. In the future people must be prepared to change their work patterns possibly two or three times with periods of retraining to school in between and learning new skills.

ONLY THIRD NEEDED

"Our schools have been geared along academic lines, but only about one-third of the people are needed for academic jobs.

"Why should our schools operate on a 12-month basis? We should use the trimester system and operate 12 months of the year.

"Why must all students be graded according to age and why is there so little counselling in our schools?

"Selection of courses must be carefully planned so that we can discover and develop the talents of the students."

Mr. Buckley added that our lists of work will have to change. "We have been brought up under the Protestant Ethic which tells us that work is essential. We must change our attitudes here or else what will be left for people to get done in the 25-hour week.

"Government must increase its investment in education and must initiate new programs long before the ruin of the street even becomes aware of the necessity to do so.

"Industry too must share the cost and become increasingly aware of what their plans will do to society as a whole. They are not as free wheeling as they used to be."

Canada Cement Foremen Plan Gala Field Day

Most of the fun takes place in the morning when there will be games, contests, pony rides, a tug-of-war and a lot more attractions for the youngsters.

Try! Try! Try!
Most people like to try something that is strange to them before they will buy it. We think that this applies to sporting goods especially, such as golf clubs, tents, and camper trailers.
We, at Canadian Tire, have every size and type of these items to rent by the hour, day, weekend, or month. It makes sense that people who are not sure if they like this sport, would prefer to rent equipment rather than to buy it.
This applies to other rental lines of ours, such as mechanical tools, household equipment, such as Hoover Rug Shampooers, floor polishers, scrubbers, etc . . . recreation equipment, sporting goods, painting equipment, and plumbing tools.
Our motto is, "Try Before You Buy." We rent what we sell, and we sell what we rent. Call us at 968-6701, or visit our store at the corner of Coleman and Harriet Street.

NDP May Block Closing

By STUART LAKE

OTTAWA (CP) — This could be the last sitting day for the Commons before a summer recess.

It also could be the day that a New Democratic Party MP starts a filibuster that could keep the House in session for a few more days — or a few more weeks.

Arnold Peters (NDP—Timiskaming) said Tuesday night he would try to block adjournment of the Commons for the summer vacation unless the government makes certain parts of Ontario eligible for funds under its newly - proposed area development grants.

He said some depressed communities may not qualify as depressed areas because their true unemployment rate isn't reflected in National Employment Service figures. Workers in those places didn't register with the NES because they knew no jobs were available.

He mentioned Kirkland Lake and Renfrew as examples.

"Without some consideration for the areas I have mentioned, if I can stop it there will not be an adjournment for the summer recess for at least a month," said Mr. Peters.

Government House Leader George Hellyrath, who can earlier set Tuesday as the target for adjournment, said he still hopes today will be the actual day.

But he conceded that Mr. Peters could keep MPs in Ottawa for an extended period if he was able to persuade one or more of his NDP colleagues to join him in his threatened filibuster.

The $50,000,000 in development grants would go to industries that locate or expand in areas designated as depressed by the federal industry department.

Under a present government plan, industries are lured into areas of Canada where unemployment is rampant by accelerated capital cost allowances and remission of income tax.

Industry Minister Drury said the program has enjoyed substantial success. But some industries don't benefit under the plan so the government has hit upon a scheme to give them cash grants.

In this way it hoped to bring more employment and increased income levels to these less developed areas.

A condition of the grants is that the industry locating in depressed areas must keep the NHES informed of its manpower requirements for at least five years.

The plan also was knocked by other opposition speakers.

Alfred D. Hales (PC — Wellington South) said giving grants was an unusual way to encourage industry. Grants could be used for political patronage. Instead, the government should make loans to industries which would be repaid with interest.

Max Saltsman (NDP — Waterloo South) said isolating one community as eligible for the grants wasn't a good idea. Larger areas, even whole provinces, should be designated.

The area grants bill is one of the few remaining to be cleaned up before MPs head for home. Others deal with supplying government funds for the next four months and measures to provide for the second instalment of old age pensions and small auto parts firms affected by the new Canada-U.S. auto agreement.

New Addition To Erie Products Plant Started

TRENTON — Work on a $100,000, 7200 square foot addition to the Erie Technological Products plant on Fraser Ave., started this week. The newest addition to the 40,000 square foot factory will be built between the original Erie building and the former Essex plant, taken over by the Erie complex in 1962.

A contract was signed on Tuesday by George Kempf, general manager and vice president of Erie Technological Products of Canada, Ltd. and the principals of the construction firm of Miron-Wiggers.

The newest addition will house offices, quality control, shipping and a pilot production area and is designed to leave enough Erie building free for production purposes.

A company spokesman said today an increase in staff was indicated but declined to go into facts and figures. Several new engineers have been added to the staff in the past few weeks. Latest addition to the engineering staff is Radar Reshad, a Turkish Cypriot, who has spent the past eight years in England, completing his education and working in the electronic field. Due to arrive within a month is another English engineer, Clive Groom.

Found Guilty On Charge Of Assault

TRENTON — What was termed as the case of the "reluctant witness" was tried in Trenton court on Tuesday, before Magistrate T. Y. Wills. The descriptive phrase was supplied by defence lawyer Roderick Campbell, termed as "apt" by the magistrate and applied to a Crown witness, Wayne Nelson. The question was whether or not a bulky knit sweater and a pair of mocasins, belonging to Nelson, had been stolen by Joseph Chaisson of 251 King Street, Trenton. Nelson seemed to be reluctant to testify and Chaisson insisted the whole thing had been a "silly joke." The charge was dismissed.

The charge arose out of a visit by Nelson and Chaisson to a West Street home, occupied by Mrs. Donald Wilson and her children. Mrs. Wilson said Chaisson had thrown the door and shoot out the door. Chaisson said when they turned up later in his car, nobody could have been more surprised than he was.

Chaisson, who said he had drunk 12 pints of beer, two eight ounces of whisky before visiting the Wilson home on April 25, was fined $10 and ordered to pay $33 costs after he was found guilty on a charge of assaulting Mrs. Wilson.

THREE YOUTHS SIGNED

In magistrate's court at Trenton on Tuesday, Richard Walter Bobery, Gordon Webster and Roger Shaw, all in their teen, pleaded guilty to a charge of stealing a quantity of gasoline from a car parked on the 6 RD road on June 23, and were fined $25 each.

Webster and Shaw were given two weeks in which to pay their fines. Boberg was ordered by Magistrate T. Y. Wills to pay the fine immediately as the accused told the court he was leaving Canada for Germany with his parents next week.

Ex-councillor Says Offer Was 'Tgo Low'

TRENTON — Ex-councillor R. J. (Dick) Whitley has a "bone to pick" with town council.

Mr. Whitley says the town made a "ridiculously low" offer for his four small side lots, needed for approaches to the proposed new bridge across the Trent River, when he was asked this offer down in writing, and countered it with an offer of his own . . . which was never acted down in writing by the town.

Since then, says Mr. Whitley, the town has made no offer to meet him half-way on the price, but has recently instigated expropriation proceedings to acquire the four lots.

"They'll have the fight of their life if they try it," said Mr. Whitley in a telephone interview last night, adding, "and you can quote me."

Premier Robarts Not Interested In PC Contest

WINNIPEG (CP) — Premier Robarts of Ontario said Tuesday he is too involved in provincial affairs to become interested in contesting the national leadership of the Progressive Conservative party.

The premier, speaking at a press conference, said:

"I'm pretty deeply involved in things that interest me in my own province and it is my intent and desire to continue in provincial affairs."

Mr. Robarts arrived in Winnipeg amid speculation in some quarters that his acceptance of an invitation to address a Progressive Conservative student banquet here Tuesday signalled his entrance into the leadership race.

"As far as I'm concerned," he said, "Mr. Diefenbaker is still leader of the Conservative party."

"I have said it many times— I have no interest for being a contender for the leadership."

In his speech, Premier Robarts challenged Conservatives to tackle Canada's constitutional question and become the party of reconfederation in the 1960s.

He said change in the form and structure of Canada's federal system of government should not be made unless Canadians are convinced there is no alternative.

"It is the search for these alternatives that presents the challenge to Canada's political parties."

Kingston General Hospital where a fourth operation was performed by Dr. D. L. C. Bingham May 17.

Provincial pathologist Dr. Frederick A. Jaffe said the immediate cause of death could have been massive pulmonary embolism — blood clotting.

Dr. Bateman, at the conclusion of his testimony this afternoon described the blood-clotting developing after the hernia operation as presenting "a difficult problem — a rare, unusual case."

Mrs. Hilda Warkentin, the dead man's widow said her husband was admitted to hospital by Dr. Bateman for small hernias.

"Dr. Bateman told him he had small hernias and if he got them fixed up he would be a lot better."

Her son, Ronald, a 33-year-old College Street florist, told of attempting to phone Dr. Bateman after the third operation, to secure his father's release for surgery at Kingston General.

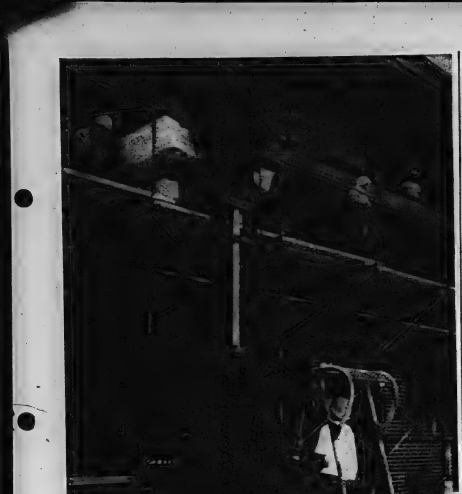
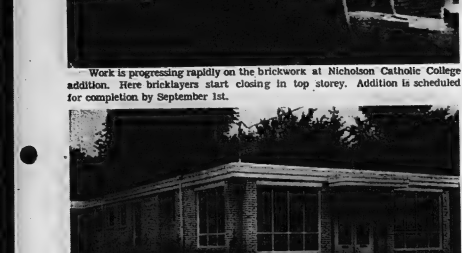
NEW LIMIT SET

The new temporary United States debt limit is $328,000,000,000. President Johnson signed a bill Monday establishing the new level just two days before the legal ceiling would have reverted to the permanent level of $285,000,000,000. Congress approved the new temporary one-year limit several weeks ago. It is $4,000,000,000 above the ceiling in effect this year.



PC Senators Take Potshots At Tax Act

OTTAWA (CP) — Conservative senators took several more potshots at the government's legislation amending the Income Tax Act Tuesday before the measure was given second reading and sent to the Senate banking committee for clause-by-clause study Tuesday night.



Senator Jacques Flynn of Quebec complained that the section of the act which disallows as a tax deduction a money spent on advertising in foreign - owned Canadian periodicals actually thwarted by exemption of the Canadian editions of Time and Reader's Digest.

"This will make the situation worse instead of better," Senator Flynn said.

Construction Round-up

By CLAIRE HOY

Work is now underway on the Warkworth medium security penitentiary in Warkworth. Wilson Concrete reports they will be starting on the job early in mid-July. Delays in approvals of projects and in construction due to labor strikes have held work up.

Other projects for which Wilson Concrete holds contracts are the High School of Commerce in Ottawa — a one-half million dollar pre-cast job; a sales and service building for for Trudeau Equipment in Ottawa; and a shop, office and warehouse in Oshawa for Jackson Supply Company.

There has been a slight delay in the steel work on the new Bank of Montreal and Medical Centre project across from the hospital on Dundas, but it is not expected to hold construction up for long. The bricking is now well under way. Realtor Frank Follwell reports that construction — by the firm of Hugh Murray Ltd. — is progressing rapidly.

Whalen's Real Estate reports the sale of 1,000 feet of bay frontage on Lake Bolton property east of the city. The firm says there is a trend for people to buy old property and recondition it. In keeping with this trend, the Old Mill in Lonsdale has been sold and is slated for reconditioning, though the old atmosphere will be kept.

H. J. McFarland Construction is working on a grading job between the new Quinte Skyway and Northport. The firm is also grading a road in Bloomfield and putting asphalt on it and building a new road across the sand banks in Wellington.

The Belleville and District Builders' Exchange reports the following plans on display: Water Supply and Sewage Treatment Plants, Warkworth institution, due July 6, Department of Defence, supply and installation of 205 metal windows at RCAF Station, Trenton, due July 15; Department of Public Works, grading drainage base course and supplementary, services and access road, Millhaven Penal Institution, due July 20; a fourth high school in Belleville, due July 15; Campbellford, Community Centre, due July 14; and the Belleville General Hospital addition, due August 12.

E. C. Woods, General Contractor, has started work on an addition to the Full Gospel Church at Frankford.

Re-modelling of the old weigh scales and the new scales building beside the arena began this week and is expected completed in three weeks, says William Belch, the contractor. Reports the building will be completely insulated and the old scale openings will be bricked up. The same company also is working on a new art Vice station and restaurant on the Marysville cutoff.

Builder Edgar H. Bell has nearly completed a small addition on the Ontario Cheese Producers' Marketing Board building on Wills Street.

Charles Lambert Limited reports seven houses under construction in West Park Village and several other houses around the city. The firm is also completing two swimming pools in Amelisburg Township.

With landscaping going on this week, work on the Moira Medical Clinic on William St. is now completed. The clinic has been in operation for the past few weeks and contains modern offices and other facilities for four doctors.

The four doctors with offices in the clinic are: Dr. J. S. Stock, owner; Dr. W. S. Tolsen, Dr. J. R. McSherry and Dr. Peter Scott.

West Park Construction (Belleville) were general contractors for the medical clinic with land assembly and tender call for the construction being carried out by McCormick Realty.

Nations in Search of a Purpose

What price the Commonwealth?

Every meeting of the prime ministers of the constituent nations makes it more obvious that it needs a new cohesive.

If Prime Minister Lester Pearson is right in saying that the relationship between the Commonwealth's member nations is better left undefined, it is because the association will only be viable if it is permitted to shape itself to fit today's needs.

If and when the reaction of its members to today's needs creates a new relationship, then it will become possible to define it.

The old bonds, however, are not merely severed but withered.

Once they were dressed in the trappings of Empire. Today, some of the member nations do not pay even token homage to the Crown. They are republics.

Once trade followed the flag. Now it is doubtful whether any special trade relationships between the member nations are desirable, even if it were possible.

Once there was British justice, wherever the Union Jack flew. But the flag has come down in country after country and not all of the member nations honor all the precepts of rule by law and the right to trial by one's peers.

The Commonwealth conference which led to the withdrawal of South Africa appeared to establish one essential rule for membership—the recognition of the races—and all races—but it is a rule honored as much in the breach as in the observance. We in the white countries who have always discriminated against the colored races may be forced to accept some measure of discrimination against the white man by those whose skins are black or brown or yellow.

The most useful purpose would be if we could transform the Commonwealth into a model for a workable league of nations—an association in which disputes between the members were always settled by arbitration, compromise or legal decisions by a recognized court.

Kashmir and the Rann of Kutch, though, remind us that we are still far from that ideal.

Meeting that attainable, perhaps, would be an association of states which would not brook foreign interference. There is some sign of this objective being embraced, an example, though perhaps a poor one, being provided by the manner in which Malaya has been pledged support in its "confrontation" with Sukarno's Indonesia. This, though, is an uncertain shield. Can any West Indian nation feel assured that the landing of a "peace-keeping" force of U.S. marines would be as adamantly opposed as would an invasion by the Red Army?

But if some easily defined relationship between the Commonwealth members is not shaped by their common reaction to today's problems, the Commonwealth relationship will eventually become permanently indefinable—and therefore meaningless.

Choir's Visit to U.K.

Young ambassadors for Canada are the 108 members of the Simcoe Composite School Choir. Now on a concert tour of Britain, the choir has made quite a name for itself since it was formed some years ago.

The Simcoe group has been planning the current visit to Britain for two years. Through various projects the boys and girls raised some $50,000 for the trip. During the tour a section of the choir will compete in the Welsh Eisteddfod.

Canadians may be proud as well as envious of the Simcoe youngsters. They have earned their trip and we are reminded of the Uister Girls' Choir which has made several trips to this country and to Europe on the strength of similar projects which have enabled them to pay their way.

Other communities in Ontario might take a leaf from the choir's book. Just as people associate the choir with Simcoe so are other communities known by the initiatives and projects they undertake. In Simcoe's initiative there is much food for thought here in Belleville. By what are we known in this city?

Proctoscope Is Invaluable In Examinations of Colon

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: What is a proctoscope and what can be determined by an examination with it? I understand it has saved many lives. — Mrs. C. R. L.

Indeed, the proctoscope has saved many lives. It is also invaluable in diagnosing conditions which, while not likely to be fatal, can cause a great deal of misery unless identified correctly and treated.

The proctoscope essentially is a smooth hollow tube, about ¾ of an inch in diameter, and varying in length from 6 to 10 inches or so.

The purpose is primarily to permit direct visual examination of the inside of the lower portion of the colon. The search primarily is for points at which there may be bleeding; polyps, cancer, ulceration, areas of inflammation.

It is also possible to obtain from any such affected areas samples which can be cultured to determine whether harmful bacteria are present, and if so what kind,) or tiny bits of tissue for microscopic examination — the most positive method, of course, of learning whether a suspicious area is or is not malignant.

Cancer is the most dangerous of colonic conditions generally speaking, and since about 80 per cent of all such cases occur within the area that can be observed with the proctoscope, the importance of such examination is obvious. Often a cancer can be detected before it has progressed much and is removed, cure is highly probable. But if it is not found until noticeable symptoms develop, then surgery is much more difficult and the danger much greater — not that such cancers have not been successfully removed, too.)

The examination is virtually painless (although in some cases there may be a few cramps) and can be done in the doctor's office. It should be part of a complete physical check-up.

Dear Dr. Molner: Enclosed are 20 cents in coin and a stamp ed, self-addressed envelope for a copy of your booklet, "How to Take Care of Your Heart." I have a pain in my chest and arms for a long time. Chest X-rays and EKG's revealed nothing. The doctor says it is a nervous condition and neuralgia. Can nerves cause this pain? — L. M. K.

Nerves certainly can — and it is either the hardest or the easiest thing to cure. Hardest if the patient is tensely "sure" that it is heart trouble even though no such trouble exists; easiest if you can persuade the patient to relax and enjoy life instead of worrying himself into chronic tension. I hope you will be one of the latter, and that the booklet will help you.

'Dear Dr. Molner: The last few months I have had spotting exactly in the middle of my 28-day cycle. I read that this requires immediate medical attention. I would like your opinion. — Mrs. D. V.

This can be a normal phenomenon if it occurs at the same time each month. But it is also something that has been occurring only fairly recently in your case. In short, it can be either normal or a sign of trouble, and I think there is only one sensible answer for you: Have the doctor examine you (including a "Pap smear test") so he can decide whether this is or isn't something significant. Knowing beats guessing always.

Note to Miss S. S.: These pimples on the posterior can be any of a variety of skin troubles. As with skin ailments in general, it is virtually impossible to diagnose sight unseen. I suggest that you subdue your embarrassment and ask for your doctor's help, instead of sitting on your trouble.

June 30, 1965 . . .

The "Night of the Long Knives" took place in Germany 31 years ago today—in 1934—when Hitler ordered the purging by murder of the radical wing of the Nazi party. Among the 77 prominent people killed were Ernst Roehm and Gregor Strasser, high Nazi officials, Erich Klausener, a prominent Catholic leader, and General von Schleicher, a former war minister, and his wife (later said to have been shot by mistake.) Two weeks later Hitler publicly acknowledged the murders and claimed the right to kill for the benefit of the German Reich.

1906—Following the agitation of the "muckrakers," the first Pure Food Act of the U.S. became law.

First World War

Fifty years ago today—in 1915 — Prime Minister Sir Robert Borden left New York for conferences with the British government; German attacks in the Argonne were sustained; Italian captured three passes in the Carnic Alps.

Second World War

Twenty-five years ago today—in 1940—airborne Russian armored units took over Resa, the town controlling the Danube's mouth, and claimed with Rumanian forces; Russia asked to cooperate with Turkey in the fortification of the Dardanelles; the British submarine Grampus was presumed lost.

Giving Words Right Sound Is Helpful

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

I am swamped with hundreds of letters in response to my columns on pronunciation.

These letters are, chiefly, divided into two sorts: those applauding the attempt to maintain a standard against the sloppy, blurred, and illiterate pronunciations of words; and those castigating me as a prig, a pedant, and an arrogant ass in general for presuming that there is only one "correct" way to pronounce many words.

Actually, I presume no such thing. I realize that there may be several equally acceptable ways to pronounce many words; that style and custom change in such matters; that what is "right" in Texas is absurd in Oxford, and vice versa. All language is perpetually in flux.

On the other hand, must we not draw the line somewhere. If our language is not to degenerate into anarchy, idiosyncracy, and indifference? Do we not require some standards of articulation that are common to agreed upon? If we wholly give way to permissiveness in speech then do we not lose more in precision and intelligibility than we gain in any other area?

It is noteworthy that even the readers who most violently objected to my lists of "preferred" pronunciations, nevertheless appended their own lists of mispronounced words they found offensive. Now, for instance, can tolerate "ladies and gennemen," which is often heard? Or "illbrery" for "library," and "drownded" for "drowned."

Everybody privately draws the line somewhere, with the feeling that some pronunciations are beyond the pale. My lists are not designed to set up a royal edict rather, to encourage us to re-examine such words, and to recognize that even pronunciations have the sanction of tradition and pedigree, and others are gross corruptions.

Pedigree is important because it tells us where a word came from and what it means. It is wrong to elide the "gentle" in "gentlemen," for then we lose the original connotation of that word. And if "illberry" becomes the accepted usage, then it sounds like "illegitimate" or "illogaberry," and we have obscured the Latin root meaning "a collection of books."

Knowing the background of words helps us to define and use them accurately and forcefully. If, however, we mangle the pronunciation, they soon cease to reveal their origins or their cognates, and we have lost a valuable clue to their true meaning. Words cease to reveal their ancestral roots.

'Oom Paul' Martin Pours Oil on Troubled Waters

By RICHARD JACKSON
From The Intelligencer's Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — The Grits, rumbled Old Tory Chief Diefmatter-of-factly the other day, should skip the PM out of the country more often.

In taking this jab, he obviously thought he was needling Prime Minister Pearson.

And perhaps he was.

But at the same time, and perhaps not quite unintentionally, he was complimenting his old House of Commons friendly-enemy External Affairs Minister Martin.

Apart from dispensing the Parliamentary brickbats and bouquets, though, what Dief was really getting at was this:

In the two weeks or so that the Prime Minister was over in London at the Commonwealth Conference, Parliament got more real, good, hard and productive work done than in perhaps a month of ordinarily routine fumbling and stumbling.

Even the atmosphere of the House was different.

There was an incredibly sociable air about it.

Instead of the usual snarls, unusual smiles.

And at times the Opposition — all four sections of it, Tory, Newdem, Socred, Creditiste — seemed in danger of falling over itself in the co - operative rush to "Me-Too" the Administration.

So how come? What happened?

THE OLD PRO

Paul Martin happened, that is what.

That old smooth-as-countercream "Oom Paul" was in charge and with his political and personal expertise transformed the place.

The contrast has been so marked — not just this most recent time, but on couple of previous occasions, too — a whisper of gossip made the Common smell of Paul as the master-minding a campaign of what they were calling "Co-Operative Parliamentarianism" to undermine the P.M.

The idea was to make "Oom Paul" look so good the PM would look bad.

But while it might have been an intriguing entertaining possibility, it simply was not so.

They didn't have to conspire to make Paul Martin shine.

For he hasn't become the Old Pro of all Parliamentary Pros in his 30 years in the Commons because he didn't know how to learn the finer tricks of the political trade as it is plied here on The Hill.

As Acting Prime Minister he gets things done in the House simply because he knows best how to do them.

Knows instinctively how, when, to make concessions to apply the old butter oil to whom.

And when to spread a little horseradish into the Parliamentary mix.

He cooperates with the Opposition — even appears to, when, in fact, he really is not being understanding and helpful at all.

But he has the infinitely skilful knack of making it look as if he is.

And when he answers it's with studied care and consummate politeness.

Never-flustered, never panicked, always calm, invariably considerate, he has done discovered, human nature being what it is, most appreciatively, the Opposition's response to his silken glove treatment with respect often approaching affection.

He warms the cockles of the House heart with intimate little reminiscing references to MPs who question him, thrown in the odd "ia" Parliamentary joke and conducts the Commons in the pleasantly knowing manner of a gifted professor presiding over and sharing in the discussions of a senior university class.

And what a switch from a couple of years ago, that is.

Then, "Oom Paul" in Opposition was bombing the Conservative Government with all sorts of outrageous questions and daily kicking up such a considerable commotion in the Commons as to contribute, perhaps more than any other Liberal MP, to the downfall of Dief.

He made an art of infuriating the Prime Minister, irritating the Cabinet collectively and sand - papering the nerve - ends of the Ministers individually — just as he anoints these same men, now in Opposition, with a gently soothing touch of sweetly smooth verbal oil.

What an operator!

Canadian Water Policy

The Financial Post

Once again the Americans are gearing up for a great splash at Canada's water resources.

It's not just the usual call for help in washing their sewerage out to sea.

Canada, so the new argument goes, should join the U.S. in "a continental rather than national approach" to water management. That, of course, supposes, for instance, to siphon Canadian waters from the Rocky Mountain Trench straight into the U.S.

The resulting resection in Canada, it is argued, would be softened by a U.S. offer to pay Canada 50 per cent of the revenues generated by Canadian waters.

The pertinent rebuttal to that bit of dreaming comes from General A. G. L. McNaughton, until recently chairman of the Canadian section of the International Joint Commission. He says:

"If the U.S. regards a 50-50 split of purely Canadian resources as equitable, it is indeed wrong. Shared benefits are quite proper on an international river like the Columbia or a boundary river like the St. Lawrence. But the suggestion of splitting a resource owned entirely by Canada smacks more of plunder than cooperative development. It would be the equivalent of selling a bushel of wheat and accepting payment 'for only half a bushel.'"

The hard truth is that Americans don't really have a water shortage.

They have a shortage of CHEAP water brought about by their own pollution of their own waters. No country should be asked to share its vital supplies of fresh water to save another country from the cost and bother of keeping its own supplies clean.

Canadians can count on a mounting barrage of U.S. propaganda aimed at winning an interest in our water resources. But M, in fact, Canada is to be the watering hole of North America, there are very good reasons to hold out for the best of all possible deals.

Water is the ultimate resource. Unlike hydro-electric power it cannot be replaced with an alternative. Once U.S. communities became dependent upon Canadian water, Canada could never hope to shut off the taps.

We urgently need, as McNaughton suggests, new agencies to guide the development of our waters. We should ensure that the behemoth of U.S. industry comes to the mountain of Canadian resources, not the reverse.

Meteoric Favreau Career Suffers Severe Setback By Chief Justice Dorion

By STEWART MacLEOD

OTTAWA (CP)—Guy Favreau had soared up the political ladder so fast he scarcely had time to plant his feet firmly on any rung. His fall Tuesday night hurt him badly.

"He was desperately anxious to succeed," said a Commons colleague. "This must be a crushing blow."

The colleague had just listened to Prime Minister Pearson announce he had accepted the resignation of Mr. Favreau from the portfolio of justice minister. Although Mr. Favreau's personal integrity and honesty were not questioned in the Dorion report, his judgment was.

As a result, the 47-year-old minister submitted his resignation. . . . My usefulness as minister of justice had been impaired by the situation which has developed," he told Mr. Pearson in a letter.

This marked the end—temporarily at least—of a remarkable climb in federal politics, a climb that included holding three major jobs when Mr. Favreau was still a novice in the art of parliamentary warfare.

MOVES UP FAST

Mr. Favreau had to be persuaded to enter federal politics in 1963. But once convinced, the Montreal lawyer moved with dizzying speed.

Key to the be was touted as a likely successor to the prime minister. Despite constant parliamentary difficulties — due partly to being in a senior portfolio while a political novice—he appeared to be churning steadily forward, until the Dorion inquiry.

Now, no one is guessing what the future holds until Mr. Pearson announces Mr. Favreau's new portfolio. The prime minister is known to be anxious to maintain the Quebec lieutenant as a close political partner.

For much of his brief political life, Mr. Favreau has shouldered unusually heavy burdens.

Before ever sitting in the Commons, he was appointed to the sensitive post of immigration minister—the first French-speaking Canadian to hold the portfolio. He also became the party's Quebec chief and the government House leader, along with the justice portfolio, which he took over in February, 1964.

TAKES BIG WORKLOAD

He is credited with a massive capacity for work. Aides say his daily schedule often called for 18 hours in the office and the Commons.

The eldest of seven children, Guy Favreau had set out in life to become a doctor, but early at university switched to law. "I put up my medical books and read the whole damn Civil Code," he once said.

After graduating from law school, Mr. Favreau tried to join the army but was rejected because of an attack of pleurisy. So he went into practice.

At 27, he became secretary of the Montreal Bar Association. At the same time, in 1944, he met Francoise Lafiamme, also of Montreal, whom he married two years later. They have four children.

After acting for federal departments in various legal actions, Mr. Favreau came to Ottawa in 1951 as a member of the restrictive trade practices commission. Three years later he became assistant deputy minister of justice.

JOINS LAW FIRM

He remained there until 1960, when a big Montreal law firm sought his services. It has been reported that when E. Davis Fulton, then Conservative justice minister, heard of this he told the firm to withdraw its offer "for the good of Canada."

But Mr. Favreau, by then associate deputy minister, went, and he remained with the firm until 1963, when pressure was applied to him to try for a federal seat.

He was quoted at the time as saying: "I felt something had to be done to save Confederation and that I could help." His election victory in Montreal Papineau was relatively easy.

As minister of immigration, officials said Mr. Favreau was an able administrator. He made decisions and streamlined immigration matters and cut through red tape.

The House leadership followed, along with the switch in portfolios. For eight months he held both jobs. He asked to be relieved of the leadership.

Since last October, Mr. Favreau was also concerned on the justice department and Quebec party organization.

Y's Activities

SPEED SWIMMING REPORT

A favorite swim coach, Mr. Pat Weir of Australia is leaving for home soon, but this man will not be forgotten by eighteen young girls and boys of the Belleville Family YMCA. A special evening was held last Saturday evening in the auditorium of the "Y." A program of films and games was enjoyed with two presentations to Mr. Weir, one by Miss Debbie Ward, a member of the Speed Skills Club and one by Mr. Robert Geldart, "Y" program secretary, on behalf of the Board of Directors and the physical education committee.

Nine boys and two girls will be competing against other swim clubs in a C.A.S.A. sponsored Ontario outdoor novice swim meet tomorrow in Toronto.

Two Brothers Re-united After Almost Sixty Years

Two elderly brothers who hadn't seen each other since 1907, and the intervening years had simply "lost track", had a re-union in Belleville this week.

They are George "Bill" Carr, 82, of Canniffon, and his brother Joseph Carr, 76 of Saskatoon, Sask.

But a mix - up in the first name of the Canniffon brother almost made the re - union impossible.

The Saskatoon man knew that his older brother at one time worked at Corbyville and, on the assumption that he might still be living in the general area he last left wrote to the "postmaster" at Corbyville.

His letter asked if the postmaster knew or knew the whereabouts of George Carr.

That is where the mix - up almost occurred.

Everyone in the Corbyville - Canniffon area knew "Bill" Carr and it was only after comparing ages that it was decided that George and "Bill" Carr might be the same man.

CHANGE NAME

Born in Manchester, England, the brothers came to Canada just before the turn of the century. Joseph stopped off in Glengarry county while George went on to Belleville where he went to work for a Thurlow township farmer.

It just happened that there were several men and boys named George in the area so to simplify matter the Thurlow family starting calling their young English hired hand "Bill".

So George grew up known as "Bill" and even George himself almost forgot that his given name was anything else.

Both brothers finally went their separate ways to the Canadian West on harvest excursions. "Bill" in 1907 and Joseph in 1910. Joseph remained in the West whereas "Bill" returned to the Corbyville area.

Joseph pounded cows in the Alberta ranchlands, then in 1915 joined the Mounted Rifles. On his return to Canada he went farming in Saskatchewan, got married and is now living retired in Saskatoon.

Meanwhile "Bill" Carr continued to work on farms in the Corbyville area and for many years was with Mr. and Mrs. Clarence McPherson.

"Bill" never married but he was close to the McPherson children who accepted him as an "uncle."

HOLD REUNION

Yesterday the Carr brothers met at the home of Mrs. R. E. Calder, 61 Pine Street, one of the McPherson children who as a youngster got to know Mr. Carr well. Last evening the brothers continued their visit at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Howe of Canniffon, where "Bill" Carr is now staying.

Only one thing marred yesterday's reunion of the Carr brothers. That was the absence of their sister, Miss Louise Carr who lives in Montreal. "Bill" Carr had also lost touch with his sister and until early this year had not seen her since 1917.

Special Agency May Handle Drought Relief

OTTAWA (CP)—The Ontario, Quebec and federal governments are considering a special agency to handle relief help for drought - stricken Ottawa Valley farmers, Bruce Beer, parliamentary secretary to Agriculture Minister Hays, said in the Commons Tuesday.

Mayors and Reeves Ask Ontario Pay 80 Per Cent Of Costs of Education

KITCHENER (CP)—The Association of Ontario Mayors and Reeves passed a resolution Tuesday calling on the Ontario government to assume 80 per cent of the cost of secondary and elementary school education.

An amendment that would have boosted the 80 per cent figure to 100 per cent was only narrowly defeated.

Mayor Gordon Stronach of London, association president, said property taxes were not conceived to bear education costs.

An earlier resolution urged adoption of an instalment system of paying fines as a way to reduce the number of jail sentences handed out and therefore a way to reduce the cost of keeping jails.

Supporters claimed there was evidence jail terms actually increased the chance that offenders would repeat crimes.

EASE PAROLE

Conditional sentencing and easier probation and parole was also urged by the resolution.

The association also called on senior levels of government to allow municipal taxes as tax deductions. It contended that non-property owners were allowing their property to deteriorate to lower their assessment.

U.S. Sculling Champ Wins In Record Time

Spero won by two lengths for the mile, 550 yard course on the Thames. The former Cornell oarsman clipped eight seconds from the record set by fellow New Yorker Seymour Cromwell last year.

The battle between Hill and Spero was regarded as the key race of the Diamond Sculls event and the big American became a favorite for the title.

Hill sprang into the lead at the start and was half a length up after the first half mile.

Rowing beautifully, Spero kept the East German in his sights and came through with a tremendous burst just before the mile. Suddenly it was the American who was by two lengths ahead.

Hill hung on grimly but was unable to make up the leeway. Spero came past the packed enclosure before the finish still going away.

P.E.I. Centenary Memorial Leading Tourist Attraction

By DON ANGUS

CHARLOTTETOWN (CP) — Life moves at a slow, quiet pace on Prince Edward Island, but islanders have a burning sense of their heritage and a determination to share their province's history and natural beauty.

Canada's smallest province, nestled between the currents of the Gulf of St. Lawrence and Northumberland Strait, last year celebrated the centenary of a political conference that led to creation of a new nation. The island paid tribute to the Fathers of Confederation by erecting a massive concrete and glass memorial centre here, and staged a series of attractions that ranged $121,621,575 in tourist revenue.

For a province that delayed joining Confederation until 1873, observance of the 1864 meeting in an upper chamber of the historic Legislative Building there was a success unexpected by many islanders. More than 320,000 people visited Prince Edward Island last summer and expectations are for a bigger influx this year.

Mayor Walter Cox of Charlottetown says the 1965 tourist trade "is going to be a bonanza," while Robert LeClair, acting director of the province's travel bureau, conservatively estimates the tourist population will be "at least as good" as last season.

SKEPTICS PIP'S DOWN

The $7,000,000 Confederation Centre is the hub of activities and likely to remain so. A farmer's quip last July that the unique rectangular buildings of the centre "would make a great potato bin" facetiously expressed the doubts of many islanders a year ago. The centre's remarkable success to date has altered most skeptical attitudes.

Lt.-Col. Frank Storey, general manager of the centre, says there was some concern early last summer that local people "wouldn't take" to a cultural oasis in an insular environment where the arts have been neglected if not ignored.

"I don't think you will hear any of that skepticism just one year later," he says.

More than 300,000 people visited the facilities in 1964, and of this number about 84,000 went through the art gallery and another 40,000 attended various performances in the Confederation theatre. More than 50,000 persons used the centre's facilities "for one purpose or another" from January to April this year.

"And that is in the dead season," Col. Storey says. "Everybody thought we would have to close the place down in wintertime."

Col. Storey wants the centre to be "a living national shrine" and the austere monument will be bustling with activity this summer from July 1, Dominion Day, to the end of August. More than 300,000 visitors are expected to pass through the plush red-carpeted foyer before the season ends.

MUST PAY OWN WAY

The second summer festival will undoubtedly dispel the images of the centre as a concrete cairn. Theatrical performances include Wayne and Shuster in Charlottetown; John Drainie in a portrayal of Canadian humorist Stephen Leacock; Spring Thaw with Dave Broadfoot and Barbara Hamilton; Les Feux Follets, and a musical production of Lucy Maud Montgomery's novel Anne of Green Gables. Sunday concerts will feature Alan Mills, Felix Leclerc, Jan Rubes, the Harmony Harbor quartet, Joyce Sullivan and Jack Scott, Sheila Piercy and John Arab.

In planning the theatre program, Col. Storey says Festival Director Mavor Moore and the directors of the Confederation Foundation realized it "had to be a good professional theatre, Canada - wide and had to fit within the centre's budget," although he says the performance budget is actually stretched to meet the theatre program.

The theatre budget of about $150,000-$200,000 annually must be balanced, he says. If one production "goes in the hole," a better box-office draw must be staged to make up the deficit. And with the exception of grants from the city and the Canada Council, a total of about $30,000 this year, the theatre must support itself on box-office receipts.

Moncrieff Williamson, director of the Confederation Art Gallery and Museum, says islanders "know a cultural empire when they see it," and are taking full advantage of the centre.

though that minister himself in his resignation letter stated he considered he had done nothing wrong and was resigning mainly because the report impaired his usefulness in the judicial post.

While the inquiry judge agreed Mr. Favreau was justified in the public response has been an unrealistic. Two major art exhibitions were held last summer and there was exhibitions a month during the winter to show "we are not just interested in tourists here, but are also responsible to the people of Prince Edward Island."

The Poole collection of Canadian paintings opened a four-month exhibition June 1 and the CIL exhibit of contemporary Canadian works opened June 15. Both will be on continuous display in the gallery until Sept. 6. Because the centre has "obligations to the other provinces of Canada," the gallery attempts to exhibit representative works from each province.

And membership in the Confederation Centre Film Society, housed in the building that was a success unexpected by many islanders. More than 320,000 people visited Prince Edward Island last summer and expectations are for a bigger influx this year.

Mayor Walter Cox of Charlottetown says the 1965 tourist trade "is going to be a bonanza," while Robert LeClair, acting director of the province's travel bureau, conservatively estimates the tourist population will be "at least as good" as last season.

had received a vote of confidence from the cabinet and he was accepting Mr. Favreau's resignation with regret. The minister's integrity remained unimpaired.

Mr. Pearson said he has asked Mr. Favreau to accept another portfolio, and a letter from the former minister which he read said this would be acceptable.

Mr. Favreau—central figure in a moment which has never been the parallel of a Canadian history—said nothing in the House. He leaned back in his chair, yawned occasionally and read notes from colleagues as his conduct was discussed, as he listened fellow ministers.

Later, he told reporters he had just spent the toughest hour of the longest day of a career that brought him through the civil service to deputy minister and then—at Mr. Pearson's call—to the ministry.

His successor as deputy minister, E. A. Driedger, will take up the job of determining action concerning the recommendings arriving from the bribery issue—which is where political opponents had intended it should be done in the first place.

ACTION AWAITS STUDY

Further actions by the government arising out of the report await further study, Mr. Pearson told the House.

Mr. Favreau resigned Tuesday night after less than 24 hours before the tabling. It apparently was discussed at two cabinet meetings that preceded the afternoon opening of the House, though the news was kept well under wraps until Mr. Pearson sprang it in the evening.

There was no immediate reaction from RCMP Commissioner McClellan.

Chief Justice Dorion made only a passing reference to one phase of the case that brought much opposition criticism in the Commons—the fact that Mr. Favreau learned of the Lamontagne bribe accusation Aug. 16 did not tell the prime minister about it until Sept. 2, and did not tell Mr. Tremblay, Denis' boss, at all.

This delay might be important from the administrative viewpoint and might "not be in conformity with the rules governing relations among members of the cabinet," but it did not come within the judge's terms of reference.

Burnaby Reeve Tweaks Nose Of Neighboring Victoria

By JACK BRAUCKMANN

BURNABY, B.C. (CP)—Burnaby is a bedroom outgrowing its home.

Once a sleepy community of farms and scattered homes, it now is Canada's largest district municipality—115,000 strong.

Its major growth has been due to a spiralling industrial economy who has occupied the reeve's chair for eight years and who refers to Burnaby as "downtown lower mainland."

Reeve Alan Emmott, who prefers to treat his massive neighbor, Vancouver, as a junior partner in the expansion of British Columbia's economically rich south coastal area, has virtually removed what he regards as the stigma of being a "bedroom municipality."

In the reeve's eyes, Burnaby has become "the industrial and commercial heart of the lower mainland."

Vancouver still clings to the concept of Burnaby as a bedroom suburb and proposed to annex the neighbor community.

But under Reeve Emmott, Burnaby is becoming the tail that wags the dog.

SEEKS SPORTS STATUS

It is snatching profitable industry from under Vancouver's nose—now the horribly disarming Emmott loves to tweak.

It almost stole a National Hockey League arena that Stafford Smythe, president of Maple Leaf Gardens in Toronto, proposed to build in B.C.

It almost had its own racetrack, when Vancouver city council, the Pacific National Exhibition and the B.C. Jockey Club couldn't get together on rebuilding plans for Exhibition Park.

It is in the process of trying to take the Grey Cup champion B.C. Lions out of Empire Stadium in Vancouver.

And it had wrapped facilities for almost every sport into a Pacific Sport Centre plan, a plan in which NHL hockey, B.C. Lions and the fledgling Simon Fraser University all have a part.

The community has been highly successful in its efforts to attract major companies to establish in Burnaby. A list of the companies reads like the industrials section of the stock exchange: Ford Motor Co., B.C. Telephone, Canadian Kenworth, Continental Can, Shell Oil, Standard Oil, Volkswagen, Kelly-Douglas and General Telephone's Lenkurt Electric, to name a handful.

Smaller retail and service companies have also flocked to Burnaby to obtain their share of the expanding population's business.

But it is in the realm of support that Burnaby has put its most polished boot forward.

BECKONS TO LIONS

When Smythe surge^d building an NHL arena in Vancouver, Reeve Emmott and chamber of commerce members grabbed the first plane east. The tall, soft-spoken reeve with the boat-builders, slim hips and like walk of an athlete carried with him a polished proposal that for Burnaby, Burnaby is "A Site to See."

URBAN BOOM — Map shows why Vancouver, surrounded by water on three sides, needs to annex the suburb of Burnaby in order to expand. Vancouver's aspirations are opposed by Burnaby where Reeve Alan Emmot claims his municipality is the industrial and commercial heart of the lower mainland of B.C. Once a sleepy community of farms and scattered homes, its new industry and population put it at the top of B.C.'s urban growth. (CP Newsmap)

It turned out that the boss of the Toronto Maple Leafs wanted two blocks of downtown Vancouver — nothing else — and no strings attached.

Undaunted, the Burnaby leaders tuned an ear to the woes of the B.C. Lions, who said the PNE's Empire Stadium was no longer big enough to handle the overflow hometown crowds.

Up jumped Reeve Emmott with a come-settle-here proposition.

That proposal is hanging fire while PNE officials manoeuvre in an attempt to keep the Lions in the same cage by enlarging the stadium.

"If they don't," says Lions' general manage- Herb Capozzi, "we'll be sitting down for some interesting discussions in Burnaby."

Capozzi already has held preliminary discussions with the Texas company which built the 42,000-seat Houston Astrodome.

James F. Delaney of Houston said his company would build an astrodome—with the added feature of a hockey rink—for a bargain-basement cost of $15,-000,000.

The site of this sport centre, of course, would be "downtown lower mainland, a Site to See—Burnaby, B.C."

that the government has not had an opportunity fully to consider what action it should take with regard to all the conclusions that have been reached by the commissioner.

Pending this further consideration, after which an announcement will be made, I should like to remind the House at once that the commissioner in his report has given the opinion that there is prima facie evidence of an offence under the Criminal Code in one case; and conspiracy to obstruct the course of justice in certain others.

The government has today referred these conclusions to the deputy minister of justice with instructions to examine them at once and advise what action with respect to recimmal proceedings should be taken.

There is one other matter arising out of these developments which I wish to announce to the House. The minister of justice (Mr. Favreau) this morning submitted his resignation to me.

MUSY ADDEPT

After discussing the matter twice with him, I have no course but to advise His Excellency to accept it. I do so with very deep regret.

My Hon. friend remains a man and a minister of unimpeachable integrity and unsullied honor. He is a devoted and unselfish servant of Canada and of his own province.

He conducted his office in that because he was persuaded—and I had something to do with the persuasion—that he could make a contribution to his country's unity and welfare.

I have, therefore, asked him to continue that contribution by reconsidering the acceptance of another post in the administration which would be offered by him. He has written to me on this point as follows and perhaps, Mr. Speaker, I may conclude by reading his letter which I received just a few moments ago:

"My Dear Prime Minister:

"Since our talk this morning when my offer of resignation was discussed, I have given very serious consideration to your request, supported by our colleagues, that I continue in the government.

"As I have already stated to you, it is my view that the conclusions of the report, so far as I am concerned, are tantamount to no more than a statement on the part of the commissioner that, had he been in my place, he would have exercised his discretion in a different fashion.

"I wish to repeat that my resignation was tendered, not out of a feeling that I had done anything wrong, but because of the feeling that my usefulness as minister of justice had been impaired by the situation which has developed.

"I need not say how deeply moved I am at the confidence which you, Mr. Prime Minister, and my colleagues have shown me in suggesting that I carry on.

"Therefore, while I must insist that my resignation be accepted as minister of justice, I would be willing to continue to serve in some other capacity.

"May I take this occasion to say how very grateful I am for your kindness and consideration and for your unfailing support during difficult and, at times, even cruel days.

"Yours faithfully,

"Guy Favreau"

Mr. Speaker, that is the statement which I wish to make to the House at this time on motions, and after further consideration has been given to the conclusions of the report, as I have said there will be further statements to be made by the government.

Fulton Thinks Favreau Victim Of Poor Control

HALIFAX (CP)—Former federal justice minister E. Davis Fulton says that Liberal Guy Favreau, who resigned from the justice portfolio Tuesday after tabling of the Dorion royal commission report in the Commons, is a victim of poor government control.

Mr. Fulton said in an interview Tuesday that Prime Minister Pearson's administration is "loose" and "shambling" and that Mr. Favreau was a newcomer who found himself a victim of lack of control" by his colleagues.

Eskimo Infant Mortality Rate Seven Times Average

OTTAWA (CP)—High mortality rates among northern Indians and Eskimos are a source of "increasing concern," a federal doctor said Monday.

Dr. David Wilkinson, pediatrics chief at the Charles Camsell Hospital in Edmonton, told the annual meeting of the Canadian Pediatric Society the death rates are far higher than the Canadian average.

Among Eskimos, he said, one-fifth of all those born died by their first birthday in six of the last 10 years. That rate is seven times the national average.

The infant mortality rate last year dropped to one-tenth of those born.

The situation on the Indian and Eskimo fan from medical help contributes, in my opinion, to the development of disease by preventing early treatment for simple infections," he said.

BLAME CROWDING

Dr. Wilkinson, an official of the health and welfare department, said conditions contributing to high mortality of Eskimos and Indians "are overcrowding with ready transmission of infection in the household, and lack of early care of much of the respiratory and intestinal illnesses that causes the mortality."

Talking to reporters, Dr. Wilkinson said the Indian death rate is lower than the Eskimo.

Dr. A. M. Bryans, a pediatrics professor at Queen's University, Kingston, said he had made a trip to the northern settlements of Port Harrison, Que., on Hudson Bay and Moose Factory, Ont., on James Bay. He found high infant mortality, presence of many infectious, bed teeth, bad housing. At Moose Factory, the Indians lived in a "horrible" shacktown. There was no pavement.

Despite that the government health service is exceptionally good, he said.

Report

French. This method had serious consequences which lead to "a wide margin of error."

"It is absolutely essential that the report of an interrogation be drafted in the language in which the interrogation was held."

Chief Justice Dorion said it isn't the responsibility of RCMP officers, no matter how great their experience, to advise the justice minister on whether to prosecute or on the probable result of charges.

"Their duty is rather to seek out all the facts and leave the decision to the minister."

McLELLAN REMISS

Commissioner R. G. McClellan should have drawn Mr. Favreau's attention to conflicts in two statements by Raymond Denis, then executive assistant to the immigration minister and accused of offering the $20,000.

"This was a regrettable omission because the minister might then have found that credibility of Mr. Denis was markedly weakened in regard to Mr. Lamontagne's statements."

Reasons had been found in question the credibility of Mr. Lamontagne but there seemed to have been no concern whether Denis' credibility was impregnable.

Inspector Reed had drafted a memorandum which overlooked "important facts" and made suggested approaches to Mr. Lamontagne were not explained in political circles.

"If it is true that representations such as these made to Mr. Lamontagne are not exceptional in political circles, it is impossible to admit that what such representations are made with a view to obstruct the course of justice, they should be either permitted or tolerated."

Dorion Leaves Some Queries Unanswered

OTTAWA (CP) — Chief Justice Frederic Dorion answered some questions about the Lucien Rivard affair in his report to the government but he left a string of unanswered ones on the political horizon.

It seemed likely to be months before a clear picture emerges of the report's effects on the Liberal party's political future.

A reaction against the minority government among the voters would arise from the fact Liberals in an early election. And until the report was made public Tuesday there was no strong support among Liberals here for a fall vote.

Prime Minister Pearson raised one question in announcing Justice Minister Favreau's resignation.

Would the resignation and the judge's criticisms of Mr. Favreau affect his political standparty's Quebec chieftain? Not as far as the prime minister was concerned.

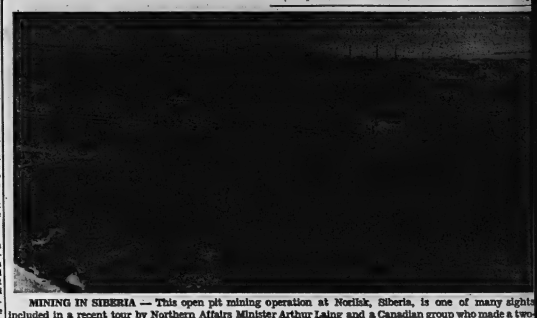
OFFERED POST

Mr. Favreau has been offered another cabinet post and his resignation letter said he was willing to accept one.

But several could be looked to as Quebec leader and a possible successor to Mr. Pearson?

The minority government's position in the Commons does not appear to have been affected, if the initial reaction of minority parties remains unchanged.

Social Credit spokesman Gerald Chapdelaine (Shefford) told the Commons his party is satisfied with the government's initial response to the report.



But the futures of Liberal MP Guy Rouleau (Montreal Dollard) and RCMP Commissioner G. B. McClellan were called in question.

New Democratic spokesman Andrew Brewin (Toronto Green Wood) asked what steps the government will take against Mr. Rouleau whose involvement in the Rivard affair was described as reprehensible but not criminal in conflicting with the administration of justice.

RESIGNATION ASKED

Mr. Chapdelaine demanded the resignation of Commissioner McClellan. Mr. Brewin said the report raises the question of whether all is well in higher RCMP echelons, adding that Mr. Favreau's resignation will not satisfy the country.

Erik Nielsen (PC — Yukon) said on behalf of the official opposition that he imagines other government steps will deal with Mr. Rouleau, who resigned as parliamentary secretary to Mr. Pearson when the Rivard case was first made public.

MINING IN SIBERIA — This open pit mining operation at Norilsk, Siberia, is one of many sights included in a recent tour by Northern Affairs Minister Arthur Laing and a Canadian group who made a two-week visit to Soviet Asia. Norilsk, a booming industrial and mining centre located at latitude 69 inside the Arctic Circle, has a population of 120,000 and is the most northerly city of its size in the world.

Siberia Scene, Climate Like Home to Canadian

John Best, Canadian Press correspondent in Moscow, found many similarities between Canada's North and northern Siberia during a two-week tour of Soviet Asia with Northern Affairs Minister Arthur Laing. He describes some of them, along with geographical advantages Russia has, in this story.

By JOHN BEST

MOSCOW (CP)—A Canadian can get quite homesick in northern Russia.

Those who have been in Canada's North find endless points of similarity between the sub-Arctic and Arctic regions of the two countries. They range from topography to climate to native peoples.

But nature has smiled more benignly on the Soviet northland than on Canada's in two important respects. It has a system of great, northward-flowing rivers to help sustain the region and in its development. These include the Pechora, the Ob, the Lena, the Indigurka, the Kalima and the mighty Yenisei.

By contrast, Canada as only one great river up north, the Mackenzie.

And the tree-line is 500 miles farther north in Russia, allowing it possible to grow crops at higher latitudes. Largely because of the warming influence of Soviet Siberia north of the 60th parallel is 800,000 compared to 45,000 in Canada.

Counting European Russia, the Soviet population north of the 60th parallel is 3,000,000 or more.

FACE SAME PROBLEMS

But basically the two vast northern areas are similar and they face the same formidable problems. "We have the same problems in addition to Canada's," "We have the very same problems." On countless occasions northern Affairs Minister Laing made observations such as these during his recent two-week tour of Siberia.

Hence the current Canadian effort to institute a program of collaboration between the two countries on northern development. The program would be built around an exchange of specialists in the field.

Laing is interested in studying Soviet techniques in mineral exploitation, construction, treatment of native peoples and communications.

In turn, it feels it has something to show the Russians in civic development — principally the $20,000 "miracle city" of Inuvik—and building experience.

More and more minerals are being found in Canada's northland but, with rare exceptions, they are not being extracted because of perpetual, rock - like frost which in some areas goes down to a depth of 2,300 feet.

PERMAFROST NO BARRIER

Siberian Russia has numerous mines in the permafrost zone, including the anthracite coal mine 250 miles east of Yakutsk at which Laing's party obtained a pass.

In one city alone—Norilsk, inside the Arctic Circle—there are 15 operating mines.

Canadian authorities would like to learn more about the blasting and recovery techniques used in such operations.

Building in the permafrost zone poses this problem: Heat given off by a building tends to melt the upper layers of frost, making for instability in what should be an ideal foundation.

Both countries have hit upon similar methods to cope with this. They use concrete piles sunk into the permafrost and bearing the full weight of the building. Sometimes a forced-air ventilation is added to keep the permafrost surface at a constant temperature.

In Russia's northland, five-storey buildings set on such concrete piles are not uncommon. Soviet authorities are confident they can put up seven- and even nine-storey buildings.

In Canada, where population pressure is small in the north, the highest building on permafrost is two storeys.

SOME BUILDINGS SHODDY

The northern affairs department would like to study Soviet high-rise methods against the day when they might be needed in Northern Canada.

On the other hand Canada has a few things to show the Russians on the finer points of construction. Structures in the Soviet north, though well constructed, are often thrown together with shoddy workmanship.

In their treatment of northern peoples, Canada and the Soviet Union appear to be moving along parallel lines. While providing educational opportunities and health and welfare services, they also try to preserve native language and culture.

A member of the Laing delegation, Graham Rowley, tickled the fancy of his Russian hosts on a couple of occasions by singing Eskimo songs at dinner gatherings. That was in Yakutia, a vast region in northern Siberia largely peopled by Yakuts, most numerous of all minority groups in the Soviet north.

Communication in the Soviet north, as in Canada, is largely by airplane. Airfields, some capable of handling four - engine planes, dot the region.

A much - used plane is the AN-2, a double-wing bushcraft which resembles the Otter, widely used in Canada's northland. It can take off in a space of 50 yards.

Highway building tends to be localized, although one dirt road stretches eastward from Yakutsk to Magadan, on the Sea of Okhotsk, a distance of 750 miles.

Though a railroad operates as far north as latitude 69 in the Soviet Union, it does not connect with Russia's transcontinental system. Canada is building a railway to serve Slave Lake at latitude 61, but it will connect directly with the transcontinental system.

For Canada, the most important gain from any program of co-operation with Russia may well be intangible: some badly needed inspiration giving new hope to a country of slower development.

As Laing put it before leaving Moscow for home, Russia thinks in positive terms about its north. Canadians in less positive, almost fearful terms. "I think we should change our approach."

MR. AND MRS. TERRENCE LYNN SHORE

Shore – Valyear

Arrangements of pink gladioli and white Shastas formed the setting in Holloway United Church on Saturday June 26, at 2 p.m. for the wedding of Vonetta Veronica Violet Valyear, daughter of Mr. Maxwell Endicott and the late Mr. Howard Valyear of Belleville, to Terrence Lynn Shore, Belleville, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Shore of Ottawa. Rev. C. W. Coleman officiated at the ceremony and traditional wedding music was provided by Mrs. E. M. Hubbs.

The bride, given in marriage by her step-father Mr. Maxwell Endicott, was gowned in silk organza over taffeta in Empire style with long lily point sleeves. Lace appliques highlighted the bell skirt as well as the train which was caught with a bow at waist. A four-tier veil of tulle illusion flowed from a headpiece of forget-me-nots surrounding a single organza rose. She carried a bouquet of pink Sweetheart roses with white stephanotis and trailing ivy.

The bride's only attendant was Mrs. James Jones of Whitby, who wore a gown of "merry moment" silk in a pale pink shade in sheath style enhanced with a gathered overskirt of lace. She wore a wedding headpiece of the same material and carried a bouquet of white and daisies, pink Sweetheart roses and ivy.

Mr. J. Bernard Dumond of Emerald was groomsman, while Mr. Maxwell Valyear, brother of the bride, and John (Ted) Spring, both of Belleville, were the ushers.

A reception was held at the home of the bride's parents where a buffet style lunch was served. The bride's table was highlighted with a three-layer wedding cake flanked with tall pink candles and vases of pink Sweetheart rosebuds.

The bride's mother received the guests, wearing a sleeveless sheath and matching jacket of sculptured brocade in an aqua shade with white accessories and a corsage of pink Sweetheart roses centred with a single gardenia.

The bridegroom's mother, who assisted, wore a pink silk shantung dress with matching accessories and a corsage of pink Sweetheart roses.

For the wedding trip to eastern Ontario and Quebec the bride chose a sleeveless duster of pastel pink lace worn over a fitted sheath of the same color, with white accessories and a corsage of white feathered carnations centred with a white gardenia.

Therefore her marriage, the bride was honored at miscellaneous showers at the home of Mrs. S. McCauley with Helen and Anne McCauley as co-hostesses, and at the home of Mrs. L. Lamphier with Mrs. Jim Jones of Whitby as co-hostess. Quinte Rebekah Lodge, of which the bride is a member, presented her with a cake plate, and the bridegroom's parents entertained the bridal party at dinner at Tops Motor Motel before the rehearsal on Friday evening.

Guests were present at the wedding from Ottawa, Stirling, Trenton, Cookville and Madoc.

On their return, Mr. and Mrs. Shore will live in Belleville.

BUENOS AIRES (AP) — A party of four French girls, led by 26-year-old fashion model Michele Ray, plan to drive two small European cars from Tierra del Fuego, the southern tip of South America, to Anchorage, Alaska. Sunburn Common During First Week of Holidays Says Sick Children's

By JEAN SHARP
CP Women's Editor

More children are admitted to hospital with cases of severe sunburn during the first week of school holidays than at any other time during the summer, say officials at Toronto's Hospital for Sick Children.

Their records show that last year, seven children were taken to hospital with sunburns worse than first-degree burns over extensive areas of their bodies.

Unfortunately, either adults or children can burn again and again, especially if they are only in the sun occasionally—on weekends, for instance.

This is because the top layer of your skin is constantly changing, being replaced from layers beneath. You are, in a sense, constantly growing a new skin. It has four layers—the outer, protective layer, the one directly beneath it where a final change in colour takes place, the third one down which is made up of living cells, and the deepest, the basal layer where cells, including pigment or color cells, are formed.

DOESN'T SHOW

When the sun's rays touch your skin, some are reflected, but some penetrate. The harmful effects are localized largely in the third layer. Some of the rays reach the basal layer, where they stimulate the formation of tan pigment in granules which work their way slowly to the top to show as tan after three or four days, says Dr. Arnold Black of Coppertone Research laboratories, Memphis, Tenn.

Unless the exposure to the sun is continued, the tan pigment will be lost in the normal process of skin growth or by being reduced to a colorless form. The colorless form can be converted into pigment again by exposure to sunlight, Dr. Black says.

Freckles are due to an uneven distribution of tan pigment in skin granules.

Tan pigmentation is one natural protective mechanism against the harmful effects of the sun. Another is the gradual thickening of the skin's outer layer, which becomes less transparent to the sun.

People with dark complexions generally tan better than fair people, Dr. Black says, because they are able to produce more pigment, and because they apparently have a thicker outer skin layer to start with.

EXPOSE GRADUALLY

Most people can develop a resistance to the sun by going about it carefully. A few minutes exposure to the sun on the first day out, gradually and cautiously increased, should safely tan you unless you are one of the unfortunates who cannot tan. If your exposure program is interrupted for any appreciable length of time, Dr. Black says, start again.

You don't have to bring children indoors. Clothing will usually filter burning rays, although light clothing will let some of them through. Suntan oils and creams will also help. If you apply them carefully and thoroughly to exposed areas, says Dr. Black.

Shade won't necessarily completely protect you, because the reflection from sand and water can burn.

Clouds and haze may decrease the sun's intensity, but won't cut it entirely. You can be burned on overcast days.

You can go outdoors with safety about 4:30 p.m. because the sun's intensity has weakened by then. It is at its height at noon, and only about half as strong by three o'clock.

Peony Garden Opened for Hospital Tea

NAPANEE — Mr. and Mrs. Hannes Ruuth, Dorland, opened their home and gardens to the public June 23, 26, 27, at a garden party for the purpose of raising funds for the Lennox and Addington Hospital Auxiliary.

The guests were served tea on the spacious lawns under lovely old shade trees which form a background for the rows of beautiful peonies of which there are 30 different varieties and over 1000 plants ranging in color from white to deep wine.

Flowers grow everywhere here, a peony can be found growing in a hollow stump, while an old iron kettle holds a mass of petunias and poppies blaze here and there. This beautiful collection was started by a former owner of the farm, Mr. Charles Wolfe, who was a member of the American Peony Society. Mrs. Wolfe imported plants from other lands including England, France, Japan, and the United States.

Among the many guests present were Mr. Douglas Aikenhead, M.P., for Prince Edward-Lennox; Reeve Gordon Mack, Mr. G. Scott, past president of the Kingston Horticultural Society; Mr. H. A. Dunlop, past vice-president and director of the Kingston Horticultural Society, and Mrs. Charles Wolfe, former owner of the gardens.

The guests on Sunday were received by Miss Kay McFarland, past president of the L. and A. Hospital Association, and Mr. Cecil Baker, public relations director, and Mr. Godfrey Barr, president of the auxiliary.

The tea was convened by Mrs. G. Barr and the young ladies serving were from a group formed by Mrs. Barr, the Junior Auxiliary Volunteer girls.

The ladies chosen to pour tea were members of the auxiliary from each township in the county, since this is a county hospital, ladies were also asked from Deseronto, a neighboring town.

Beatlemania Costs Girls Their Special Boy Friends

DEAR DORIS — My girl friends and I need your help badly. Last year we went out with these guys who we really liked. We were Beatlemaniacs then, and all we talked about was the Beatles. Because of this, they never asked us out again.

We still like these guys but all they ever say to us is stuff like, "How come the Beatles" and this makes us feel terrible because we don't even like them any more.

DORIS CLARK

Another thing is that we all have long, straight hair (with, of course, Beatle bangs.) We only wear our hair like this because it is style but these guys think it's because of the Beatles.

If they liked us once, maybe if they know what we're like now they could like us again. Please help us, Doris. — OVER THE BEATLES.

DEAR OVER — Do you care enough to change the hair styles? This might show a suspicion in "these guys" "much-admired minds that you've outgrown Beatle fashions.

Then when one remarks about it, you can say, innocent-like, "Oh shucks, we got over that years ago." They may be greatly relieved that their rivals are no more.

DEAR DORIS — Will you tell me, please, what the relationship of an illegitimate person is to the mother's husband (now deceased) and to his children? When the person shares in the family activities, attends weddings and so on as a member of the family, how should said person be introduced?

When said person is introduced simply as Miss or Mr. So-and-So without comment, and when a guest asks, "What relation are you to the bride?" and asks it in all kindness and sincerity, just what should be the response?

I would like to think that one would be called a sister or even a half-sister. Is that just wishful thinking? — A FRIEND.

DEAR FRIEND — Was the illegitimate one bearing the maiden name of the mother or of the natural father? Then he or she could surely be introduced as a half-sister (which is the truth, with or without the blessing of the church on the original union.)

It's a great pity that such a girl or boy was allowed to grow up without ever being adopted by the mother's husband and taking the same name as his children. This would have eliminated any such questions. Now she has no legal status at all.

DEAR DORIS — I never had a friend all my life. Many times I've thought that life wasn't worth living and now that I am 40 years old I think it's getting worse. I've tried to make friends but I seem to make people ill at ease.

Because I worry about this I am always tired and find the competition very tough when working. I don't drink, smoke, and don't go to church either. About the only thing I like is outdoors and animals. I've tried to know myself but I don't think I do yet. About the only two qualities I can find in me is honesty and cleanliness. Most of my faults are nervousness and emotions.

Do you think that a social worker or other profesional people could help me to improve myself? — BOB.

DEAR BOB — It's never too late. You've opened up the subject on paper; now follow through by seeking personal help. A counsellor can help you see that your poor beginning can be remedied. Your fatigue suggests to me that your native energy is being drained by a tense emotional state.

Confidential to IN LOVE — The argument that you need to know before marriage whether you are compatible is no good. Married couples may take months or years to achieve complete mutual satisfaction in marriage.

What's more, physical harmony can improve with a growing regard for one's mate — a phenomenon which develops regularly in our Grade A marriages!

VEAL DISH WITH NOODLES

The price of veal seems to be coming down to a fairly reasonable level. Even in high-priced New York Margaret paid 89c per lb. for a boned - out veal shoulder. For a guest dinner she made the Veal Ragout with noodles I am describing for you today. It was so pretty and delicious that I am adding it to my great dinner file and hope you will find it just as desirable.

WEDNESDAY
Dinner Menu

by Mary Moore

Barbecued Hamburg Cakes; Scalloped Potatoes; Buttered Baby Limas; Combination Salad; Strawberries and Cream; Summer Fruit Cake (see Monday); Tea.

VEAL RAGOUT WITH NOODLES (serves 6) 2½ lbs. boneless veal shoulder,
2/3 cup flour,
½ teaspoon pepper,
4 tablespoons cooking or salad oil,
6 medium onions, sliced,
⅛ teaspoon garlic powder (or 1 clove garlic, finely chopped),
½ teaspoon rosemary,
1 teaspoon salt,
½ cup canned tomato sauce,
1 cup water,
1 chicken bouillon cube,
½ cup white cooking wine (optional),
1/3 cup finely chopped parsley,
about ⅔ cup sliced green or ripe olives or salad olives, buttered noodles with poppy seeds (see below).

Cut the boneless veal into 1" cubes. Put the flour and pepper in a strong paper bag and shake the veal cubes in them to dredge. In very large frying pan heat the oil and brown the floured veal in it until golden. Add the garlic powder (or chopped garlic) and onions and saute until onions are limp but not brown. Add all remaining ingredients except olives and parsley. Cover and simmer about 1 hours, or until veal is tender. (Note: If you do not wish to add the wine you will have to add a little additional water to the ragout as it cooks, for it should be fairly moist when finished.) Ten minutes before serving time add the sliced olives. Two minutes before serving time add the parsley. To Prepare Noodles: Cook about half of a 12-oz. package of the narrowest noodles (or broad if you like them better) in about 2 qts. boiling water to which you have added 1 teaspoon salt, until tender - about 10 to 12 minutes. Drain through colander. Return to saucepan and add at least ¼ cup butter and 2 to 4 tablespoons poppy seeds. Mix gently to coat all noodles with butter and seeds, but be gentle to avoid breaking them.

Turn into centre of large pre-heated platter and surround with the beautiful rosy pink border of boiling hot Veal Ragout. Marvellous.

Susanna's Family Fare

YOU'RE SO RIGHT DEAR!

Dear Susanna: My husband gave me the dickens for watering our lawn in the middle of the day when the hot sun was beating down — he said it was a good way to burn up the grass. When I argued with him about it he only got mad. Does he really know what he's talking about? — "Indignant"

No. But he a good wife and don't tell him in so many words. No gal ever got anywhere with her guy by winning an argument — this is one field in which we really lose if we win! After about 2 to 4 lashings let's see what the scientific boys tell us about keeping our lawns green.

"Water may be applied to lawns safely at any time. The only reason mornings and evenings are best is because evaporation is slower than during mid-day heat.

"Each time the lawn is watered, about 1 to 1¼ inches should be applied to average soils. This amount can be judged fairly well by placing a pan under the sprayer to collect water.

"A regular program of watering is needed to maintain a green lawn. Each time you water, soak the grass thoroughly to encourage the development of a deep healthy root system that is better able to withstand hot weather. Never give lawns a light sprinkling. Light watering encourages shallow rooting and does not prevent grass burning brown during hot, dry periods. Shallow rooted weeds derive the most benefit from these light applications.

"During summer, the mowing blades should be raised to a height of 1¼ to 2½ inches to keep the grass green." — SUSANNA

PRETTY PRESSED POSIES

Dear Susanna: A pretty idea for a glass-top coffee table or dresser is to arrange dried pressed flowers or weeds beneath the glass. This makes an interesting decoration and creates a bit of a conversation piece. — Jean S.

COMMANDS RUSSIAN SHIP — Valentina Orelcova, captain of the 3,300-ton water tanker Pirjatin, is shown at the bridge of the ship. She has had 25 years service on Russian merchant ships in the Murmansk run during the Second World War.

Russian Woman Enjoys Confidence of Crew as Captain of Water Ship

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP)—During the Second World War, while most women were selling victory bonds or knitting sweaters for boy friends or husbands overseas, diminutive Valentina Orelcova was ordering tough seamen around on a Russian merchant ship between Murmansk and Western ports.

Valentina, in her mid-50s and with traces of grey in her light brown hair, now is captain of the 3,300 - ton Russian water tanker Pirjatin, one of 17 water-carrying ships that service the huge Soviet fishing fleet on the Grand Banks.

Her crew call her Mama and obey her simplest order without question or hesitation. Interviewed during one of her visits to this port while the ship was loading fresh water, she said her job is no more difficult for a woman than a man.

"My boys are good," she said. "They are all well-educated." Russian seamen, who visit this port almost daily from the more than 200 Russian ships carrying out fishing operations on the Grand Banks, are strikingly different from seamen of other nationalities. They are, almost without exception, well-dressed, quiet and courteous.

Born in a small Siberian seaport on the Barents Sea, Capt. Orelcova says she prepared for a life at sea, almost from early childhood. "When I was first high enough to see out of my window," she remembers, "I saw the beautiful picture of the clear blue sea and tiny ships sailing."

SERVED AS MATE

Her first real contact with the sea and ships was at he Leningrad Marine School where she enrolled after she graduated from the University of Leningrad. She spent six years at the school before being assigned a mate on a Russian merchant steamer that was to carry supplies to war-weary Russians on the treacherous Murmansk run.

After the war, she was appointed captain of a Russian merchant ship and served on several others before receiving her present appointment in 1960.

Although Valentina says she cannot understand why people think a woman commanding a ship is so outstanding, she admits that she is the only woman captain in the Soviet Union and that she has been awarded the Russian Gold Star for her achievement. She also admits that only about 2,000 persons have ever won the award for any reason.

Her gold star entitles her to be called a "Hiro of the Trade of the U.S.S.R."

"I'm always ready for action, because this is my job," she said in her easily understandable but broken English. She said she—and most of her crew—study English. Valentina also can converse in French, Spanish and "some Chinese."

Bundled in a heavy coat with her bemedalled tunic peeking through, the five-foot, 100-pound woman captain doesn't seem to command much authority through her appearance. But the white beret denotes a Russian sea captain and she has never had an order refused or disobeyed.

STANDS UP FOR WOMEN

On the bridge, she does the work of a man. In the ship's tidy but small lounge snugged in the great bow of the ship, she appears in casual skirt and blouse and sips tea. She reads a lot and enjoys Jack London, Ernest Hemingway and Longfellow's poetry.

She relaxes by listening to recorded classical music and describes Van Cliburn, whom she saw in Moscow in 1961, as "a simple fellow, very nice."

Her eyes flash when she is asked for her views on a woman's place in the world. She says emphatically that women, in all countries, should take "an active role in every phase of life." She says they should "work at everything they can."

Questioned by women reporters during the interview, Valentina carefully described American women as "very charming and pleasant."

She consumes cup after cup of tea, prefers strong Russian cigarettes and doesn't like caviar. She thinks bikinis and other scant clothes are "fine — for young people."

Valentina is the pride of her 41-member crew. One of the crew members, asked whether Russian men felt superior to women, said Russian men believe all people, men and women, have the right and opportunity to become superior.

"All but Captain Orelcova," he said laughingly. "She was born superior."

Recalls Surrender to Nazis Of Part of British Isles

By CAROL KENNEDY

ST. HELIER, Jersey (CP)— One of the strangest chapters of the Second World War opened June 30, 1940, when part of the British Isles surrendered to Hitler's invading forces.

In four brilliant blue summer days 25 years ago, the Channel Islands of Jersey, Guernsey, Alderney and Sark gave themselves up to German rule—first and only part of Britain to feel the imprint of the Nazi jackboot.

It happened swiftly, smoothly and almost unnoticed by the people of beleaguered Britain, breaking themselves with Churchillian defiance ag a i nst the possibility of their own invasion.

The first whiff of fear came to the Islands June 8, when a heavy pall of smoke drifted on from the French coast, blotting out the sun. The French were burning oil storage tanks as the panzers swept west on their inexorable advance.

Paris fell June 14 and five days later British withdrew her forces from the islands, declaring it impossible to defend them with the Germans holding Cherbourg.

Only Winston Churchill, it is said, argued passionately against giving the islands up without a fight. Evacuation of women, children and some British residents began. By June 21, about half the people of Guernsey, one-fifth of Jersey and the whole of isolated Alderney were on their way to England, including 5,000 children.

28 KILLED

Islanders in Sark followed the example of their indomitable ruler, Sibyl Hathaway, who declared she would not leave her land.

Alexander Coutanche, bailiff of Jersey, calmed the spreading sense of panic by announcing that the Union Jack would fly over St. Helier until he personally hauled it down.

The Germans announced their coming with an air raid, bombing tomato trucks in St. Peter Port, Guernsey, in the mistaken belief they were carrying ammunition, and machine-gunning the streets of St. Helier. Getting for the 28 dead, islanders braced themselves for the worst.

But in the end the conquerors came quietly, almost ill at ease, like trespassers. In Guernsey, Attorney-General Ambrose Sherwill asked the Luftwaffe officers to come in by the side door of his home to receive the surrender, so as not to wake the children. In Jersey the following day, July 1, German planes dropped orders on 37 Heiler to show white flags or risk severe bombardment.

Bailiff Coutanche, in the most agonizing moment of his career, held an emergency meeting of parliament and passed the order to show no resistance. St. Heiler blossomed white with fluttering sheets and pillow - cases as townspeople gathered in sullen silence to watch men painting a huge white cross on Royal Place, scene of Jersey's gallant repulse of the French invaders in 1781.

Then Coutanche, remembering his promise, pulled the flag down.

HITLER OVERJOYED

The invasion of tiny Sark came almost as a afterthought July 4. "This is one hell of a day to be captured," drawled Bob Hathaway, American-born husband of the Dame of Sark.

The capture of the Channel Islands sent Hitler into hysterical joy out of all proportion to their strategic value. After the early days of the Battle of Britain, when they became launching pads for German fighter squadrons, little use was made of them.

Hitler boasted about eating British tomatoes from Guernsey and even planned to set up Strength-Through-Joy camps on the Islands.

In what despairing underlings called "wishful thinking"—island madness — he poured endless men and money into making them into "impregnable fist of Western Wall."

The ancient island forts built against Napoleon became an ultra-modern shield against an Allied invasion of Europe. By 1944 the Channel Islands were fortified as heavily as the entire 1,000 kilometres of coast from Dieppe to St. Nazaire. At one time they were garrisoned by 30,000 men.

In their book Islands in Danger, Alan and Mary Wood wrote that even if the Germans had indulged in the most vigorous sabotage and resistance they could not have done more to tie down enemy forces than Hitler's private obsession.

In fact there was little active resistance. In the beginning, the islanders found the Germans surprisingly mild conquerors. The commandants were the old-school, aristocratic type of German officer and the islands never suffered the full Nazi Gestapo terror.

The Germans imposed a curfew, cut communications with Britain, took over the local press and set up swastika - draped portraits of Hiller everywhere. But at first the islanders were allowed to keep their radio sets and some Germans, trying to fraternize, even listened with them to Churchill's speeches.

The phrase "a model occupation" was coined. But many people deeply resented the way island officials seemed to lean over backwards to avoid annoying the Germans. Bitter feelings were sown that persisted long after the war, along with shameful memories of neighbors informing on one another to pay off petty grudges, and illegitimate babies borne by local girls to the invaders.

Hoping to reassure evacuees in Britain, Guernsey's Ambrose Sherwill broadcast a message over Bremen Radio, asking the BBC and British newspapers to relay it to the British public. With the Battle of Britain looming ahead, however, and the country keyed to its finest hour, Whitehall angrily suppressed it.

LANDED IN ERROR

Later in the war, German pale sightseed its grip on the islands. Jews were persecuted and then deported to Germany, along with "saboteurs" and English-born residents. As the Nazi forces were pushed back from Europe, the Channel Islanders suffered harsher treatment and near-starvation.

In a farce that turned to tragedy, a band of young Frenchmen heading for Britain to join the Free French forces landed on Guernsey thinking it was the Isle of Wight and lustily singing the Marseillaise. Their leader, 20 - year - old Francois Scornet, was executed in St. Helier.

In feudal Sark, which suffered least of all, Dame Sibyl Hathaway treated the 11 German occupiers as rather uncouth tourists, with a patronizing charm that intimidated them. German troops crossing to the adjoining islet of Brecehou to confiscate radio sets ended up sitting round a farmhouse table and singing. There'll Always Be An England.

A British commando raid on Sark, however, produced a voucher issued, and 1,376 Allied prisoners taken at Dieppe were chained as a reprisal. Canadian prisoner-of-war camps promptly counted by manacling 1,376 Germans.

Like the beginning, the end came almost as an anticlimax. On the night of May 8, 1945, after Churchill's victory speech, some German soldiers were seen in a Jersey garden celebrating their own defeat with champagne and blazing torches.

The next day, May 9—still observed as a public holiday in the islands—the German commandant surrendered to the British destroyer Bulldog.

Today tourists flock through the underground Occupation Museum with its Nazi relics and jars of improvised substitute foods, and peer curiously 8hout the dank corridors of the underground military hospital built with slave labor from Russia and Poland.

Islanders, generally reticent about their occupation experiences, scour the unspoken question that fascinates visitors from Britain: What if it had happened to us?

So-called Gang Member Given 14 Years

MONTREAL (CP) — Antonio Facchino, 38, a member of the so-called hooded gang that police say terrorized residents of Quebec and eastern Ontario in 1963, was sentenced Tuesday to 14 years in penitentiary.

Facchino pleaded guilty to four charges of armed robbery in private homes and to escaping from cells in the courthouse here in February, 1964. Three charges of rape were withdrawn by Crown Prosecutor Gerard Langanière.

Victor Levesque, 25, alleged leader of the gang, and four other members also escaped during the 1964 break. Levesque and three others were recaptured in hours, but Facchino and Jean Claude Messier made their way to New York where they were arrested some time later.

Facchino admitted an armed invasion of the Ottawa home of Ibert Plant of Nov. 9, 1963, in addition to two attacks on homes in Repentigny and one in Chambly, both in the Montreal area.

Facchino was sentenced to two years on the jail - break charge and to 14 years on each of the robberies. The sentences are to run concurrently. Facchino has already spent a year in jail awaiting trial. He is also serving a 10-year sentence imposed in nearby Ste. Hyacinthe for a house robbery.

Levesque has been sentenced to 25 years in penitentiary and 16 strokes of the lash in connection with the gang's activities. He is still before the court on other charges.

Special British Envoy Tries to Get Americans To Recognize Viet Cong

By BORIS MISKEW
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Prime Minister Wilson has sent a special envoy to the United States to try to convince President Johnson's administration of the important role of the rebel Viet Cong in the Vietnamese war.

The three-day visit by Patrick Gordon Walker—though he described it as only semi-official—may be a sign of U.S. willingness to accept the Viet Cong as a separate force and not merely an aggressive arm of the North Vietnamese or the Chinese.

The Americans have long blamed Communist North Viet Nam as well as China for keeping the pot boiling in South Viet Nam and have refused to accept the Viet Cong as an independent force.

Wilson obviously feels that his four - nation Commonwealth peace mission would have a better chance to see what's brewing in South Viet Nam if he could bring the U.S. to agree to accept the Viet Cong as a distant body.

The U.S. said it would not exclude Viet Cong leaders from a peace conference table provided they were part of the North Vietnamese delegation and, said Gordon Walker, "having come so far, what harm would there be going further and calling a Viet Cong spade a spade."

Gordon Walker's suggestion was somewhat muted by out-cries in Washington from such persons as Senate minority leader Everett Dirksen of Illinois that any Communist participation in a negotiated coalition government for South Viet Nam should be prevented.

But Gordon Walker feels that the U.S. cannot expect to win the war in Viet Nam so long as fighting is kept to the present limited scale—and he warned that it must be kept from breaking out into a world conflict.

The special envoy has clearly defined what appears to be the British position on Viet Nam: That the principal objective would be to keep South Viet Nam from Chinese control.

So far the Chinese have encouraged hostilities in South Viet Nam and have discouraged peace efforts but they have not sent in Chinese troops to back the rebel drive on Saigon. Gordon Walker has opened a possible avenue toward a settlement in Viet Nam provided the United States accepts the fact that there can be neither victory nor defeat. But it is doubtful the U.S. would be willing immediately to accept his proposal.

And yet apparently this is what Britain is hoping the U.S. will eventually agree to, some form of stalemate which will permit Viet Nam—both North and South—to band together as a bulwark against Chinese expansion in Southeast Asia.

Japanese Buy Holsteins at Record Price

OAKVILLE, Ont. (CP) — Japanese interests have purchased seven head of cattle valued at $80,000 from Hays Farm International Ltd., it was announced Tuesday.

The cattle, en route to San Francisco, will be joined by two bulls purchased in Washington and Wisconsin by a Japanese delegation which recently toured the United States and Canada.

The cattle — three Holstein bulls, three Holstein cows, and a Jersey bull—were purchased June 25.

Six of the seven head were purchased by provincial governments in Japan. The seventh, a bull, was bought by Japan's largest farm, Koiwai Farm, which has been importing Canadian-bred cattle since before the Second World War.

Since 1959, Japanese government delegations have been purchasing about 20 head of cattle annually at an average annual cost of $100,000.

PRINCIPAL RETIRES

TORONTO (CP)—A man who made headlines in 1954 when he told his students they would have to stop wearing blue jeans to class, retired Thursday after 13 years as principal of Malvern Collegiate Institute. James Leslie Kerr won his point and today calls it "one of the best things I ever did for the school. When you are not tidy in your appearance, you are not tidy in your thinking."

1,100 Copies Of Report Soon Sold

OTTAWA (CP) — About 1,100 copies of the Dorion report, were snapped up Tuesday after it was tabled in the Commons.

Roughly 4,000 copies were printed, including French and English versions, and will be sold in government bookstores.

The report contains Chief Justice Frederic Dorion's conclusions after an inquiry into allegations of attempted bribery and coercion by ministerial aides.

Queen's Printer Roger Duhamel said the furious buying probably will blow over in a few days.

"We don't think it will be a best-seller," he said.

Diefenbaker Thinks Wilson Should Not Be Chairman

OTTAWA (CP) — Opposition Leader Diefenbaker said Tuesday that Prime Minister Wilson of Britain should have discussed his proposal for a Commonwealth peace mission among member countries before taking it before the recent prime ministers' conference.

Mr. Diefenbaker, speaking after Prime Minister Pearson made a short statement on the recently-concluded London conference, said the peace mission should have been discussed through Commonwealth diplomatic channels. It was his understanding that only Prime Minister Menzies of Australia knew about it.

"That is not the way to make an effective, strong and positive Commonwealth initiative."

The opposition leader said that while Mr. Wilson deserves credit for his initiative, he should not be chairman of the mission. "I doubt very much whether he should even be a member in view of Mr. Wilson's strong stand in support of U.S. action in Viet Nam.

SAYS 'ALLIABLE'

Mr. Pearson said that the peace mission was a valuable and timely initiative for the Commonwealth to take even if it is unable to accomplish what it hopes. "I do believe the effort was well worth taking."

The prime minister said the conference was "very difficult" and it was an accomplishment to reach agreement on a communique. It involved long and vigorous discussion.

NDP Leader Douglas urged the prime minister to make a clear-cut statement soon supporting the communique, since it had gone further than the Canadian government in setting out the steps required for a peaceful solution in Viet Nam.

ASKS APPEAL

He said Canada should make a special appeal to the United States for a halt in its bombing operations against North Viet Nam.

Mr. Douglas and Social Credit Leader Thompson both praised the peace mission as a courageous initiative.

Later, when pressed by Mr. Douglas, the prime minister assured the House that Canada supports the guidelines laid down for the Viet Nam mission.

Regt. Officers Bearers at Troy Funeral

NORTH BAY, Ont. (CP) — Two former commanding officers and six other officers of the Algonquin Regiment Tuesday were pallbearers at the funeral of Martin Leo Troy, 71, Liberal member of the Ontario legislature for Nipissing. He died in Toronto Saturday.

Most Rev. Alexander Carter, bishop of the diocese of Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., celebrated pontifical requiem mass at the Pro-Cathedral of the Assumption. Mr. Troy's son, Rev. Richard Troy of Boston, assisted as deacon.

Wilfred Spooner, minister of municipal affairs, represented Premier Robarts as an honorary pallbearer. Other honorary pallbearers included Andrew Thompson, leader of the Ontario Liberal party, Allister Johnson, Progressive Conservative member of the legislature for Parry Sound, and Carl Legault, Liberal member of the House of Commons for Nipissing.

Active pallbearers were Lt.-Col. D. W. MacDonald, and Lt. Col. J. J. Sunstrum, former commanding officers of the regiment, Maj. R. P. Leonard, Maj. Ross Irwin, Maj. John Smith, Capt. J. E. Levis, Lieut. Thomas Baines and WOI J. E. T. Smith.

Mr. Troy had held the rank of honorary lieutenant colonel of the regiment and was commanding officer when the unit went overseas in 1943.

Born in Chatham, N.B., Mr. Troy was a school teacher at North Bay Collegiate from 1923 to 1939 when he was elected to the Ontario legislature.

S. Vietnamese Surrounded By Viet Cong

SAIGON (AP)—More than a regiment of Viet Cong guerrillas surrounded hundreds of government troops 200 miles northeast of Saigon and had them under heavy attack late today, a U.S. military spokesman reported.

A U.S. Air Force light spotting plane flew over the area and was shot down in the jungle. The fate of the pilot and his observer was not known, the spokesman said.

One of the three large government units was reported surrounded and fighting a desperate battle.

At least six Americans were participating in the action, along with advisers to the various South Vietnamese units, the spokesman said. He said their fate was not known.

The command post of one of the three units—presumably a battalion command post—also was reported surrounded and under heavy attack.

Fighter planes flew 14 sorties against the Viet Cong in the area, and more were planned.

Meanwhile, U.S. spokesmen announced that the first joint combat operation of the war involving South Vietnamese, American and Australian forces ended today with little result.

The huge three-day operation sent more than 1,000 paratroopers of the 173rd U.S. Airborne Brigade, about 800 South Vietnamese troops and about 300 Australians into the jungles of D zone, a major Viet Cong area north of Saigon.

The force never got into a direct fight with the Viet Cong, although there was Viet Cong sniping and mortar harassment.

No government losses were reported, American casualties, from mines, booby traps, sniping and several mortar barrages, were reported as one killed and 13 wounded, including four helicopter men hit when the initial landings were made. Four Australians also were wounded.

No Viet Cong losses were reported from ground action, although helicopter crews estimated they killed 17 guerrillas in the initial landings.

South Vietnamese authorities claimed 253 guerrillas were killed Tuesday during an operation 40 miles southwest of Saigon, in the Mekong River Delta. U.S. officials said they could not confirm the claim yet but believed it was fairly accurate.

Five U.S. marines were killed and six wounded in a clash Tuesday in central Viet Nam, a marine spokesman announced. He said 14 Viet Cong were killed and 43 suspects were picked up in a day-long search-and-destroy operation 53 miles south of Da Nang.

U.S. and South Vietnamese planes hit North Viet Nam with bombs and rockets today and again dropped propaganda leaflets, U.S. military spokesmen announced.

Ford Unhappy With Latest Govt. Program

TORONTO (CP)—Spokesmen for Ford Motor Co. of Canada Ltd., said Tuesday they were unhappy with the latest federal government plan to help auto workers adjust to the Canada-United States free trade agreement in auto parts.

The government plan announced Monday in the Commons extends the benefits of up to $74.89 a week — government unemployment benefits included — for workers temporarily laid off during plant reorganization.

Ford spokesmen said the major auto makers, by agreement with the unions, already provide supplementary unemployment benefit funds for payment to workers hit by layoffs.

The government plan proposed to bypass company funds and leave them intact, a spokesman said. It asks instead that the companies pay into a special government fund an amount equivalent to what they would have paid to workers through their regular unemployment benefit programs.

Coverage in the government plan amounts to 82 per cent of take - home pay plus an additional 2½ per cent for each dependent. This is about 22 or 23 more than is provided by the company funds.

The effect of the government plan, a Ford spokesman said, "is that we would continue to pay contributions to our own unemployment benefit programs, while at the same time reimbursing the government up to an equivalent amount of what we would have paid.

Spokesmen for General Motors of Canada Ltd. and Chrysler Canada Ltd. said they did not expect to be affected by the program since they anticipate no major changes in employment patterns.

Ford laid off 500 workers Monday at Windsor, Ont., the first of 1,200 to be laid off. The company said all the workers will be back on the job by early 1966.

This has been a year of upsets, the Anno Domini of the Big Wind. All us form students have taken a shellacking. I've been burned so often I'm shedding ashes off the cranial ash-tray instead of dandruff.

A double-crossing crystal ball cost me a bundle when it called Detroit for the Stanley Cup; Canada to win the world hockey and Chuvalo to conk Patterson.

Another gaggle of double-jar silver went down the drain when Bobby Hull failed to beat "56"; the Hawks fainted in the Stanley Cup series and Arnold Palmer played second fiddle to Jack Nicklaus in the Masters.

The bookie said he was doing me a favor when he took 10-1 that Dapper Dan would win the Kentucky Derby. Lucky Debonair robbed me of that. Another month's rent went when "Lucky" lost his horseshoes and finished seventh in the Preakness.

I had a bad cold and missed the pre-flight stench that miasma'd out of Lewiston, Maine, and forfeited my stakes when Sonny Liston fainted from Cassius Clay's butterfly-kiss punch.

A phony tip-off caused me to put a chattel mortgage on the furniture and put the chunk on "Meadow Court" in the Epsom Derby. A French filly Sea Bird gulled me in that one.

I sent a note to Meadow Court's owner who told me Bing Crosby had beaten me to the punch, and in a huff put the stake on an outsider. The outsider won.

My record thus far was won one—lost six. The only win came when I bet a neighbor's kid that Santa Claus was a phony and just his old man hiding behind a masquerade costume.

Jim Clarke eased me out of a few shekels when he bowed out at Mosport and Tony Lema increased my overdraft by winning the Buick.

Disloyalty cost me a slight package when Bill Crothers defeated the great Peter Snell and my Commonwealth coin went down the drain when Snell finished seventh in the 5,000.

Remember Nick Westlock? I had a small concession riding on his putter in the Best-Ball at the Bay of Quinte but a pair of Yams from the Pine Valley, McAllister and Westall, with a 69 wrote finale to that.

I was told the U.S. open would be a battle of the giants, Palmer and Nicklaus—so the second mortgage went on these behemoths of the links. It was a battle of the giants all right but Gary Player took an extra shower the night before and shrunk to a 5-6, 150-pound pygmy.

And the Queen's Plate taught me the only way you can beat the horses is with a whip. I get sentimental and backed E. P. Taylor's Native Victor, figuring the drink-pink dress-mink set would accept the colors as Plate from the Queen Mother.

The Victor didn't grab any spoils, his crew being glued on the swank-set in the terrace and when his jockey blew "reveille" he was looking at three sets of hoofs headed by a western Lochinvar, "Whistling Sea."

Closer to home I wouldn't venture a farthing on the outcome of the softball fiestas. Right now, Juniors, Bloomfield, Tweed, Treston and Trudeaux are banana-bunched for the top spots with an almost similar situation in the Connecticut League.

The "Working Man's League" can come up with almost anything. Take the case of Jack "Deacon" Whiting.

They tell me, the "Deac" used to be an addict of the game "Double or Nothing." Well, he came up with a lovely "double" the other day. I'm told homeless twins, a "Deacon and Deaconess" now beautify the Whiting home. Nice going, Pop—and congratulations from all.

Terry Topslots Tribe; Twins Nip Sox

★★★★★ Nats Stop Yankees

By DICK COUCH
Associated Press Sports Writer

A year ago Ralph Terry was trying to break out of New York Yankees' ballpen and Cleveland Indians were doing time in the second division.

Today Terry and the Indians are on the loose while the Yankees are where Cleveland was last June 30—fifth place.

The Indians took the American League lead for the first time Tuesday night by spanking Boston Red Sox 8-5 as Terry picked up his eighth victory of the season.

Terry, who had won a total of 40 games in the two previous seasons, wound up 7-11 for 1964 and was dealt to Cleveland last October.

The Indians' 16th victory in 18 games moved them a half-game ahead of Minnesota Twins, who edged Chicago White Sox to drop the White Sox from a first-place tie into third position, one game out.

Washington Senators broke the Yankees' five-game winning string with a 2-1 verdict over the defending AL champions, who fell 10 games off the pace and three under .500, while Baltimore Orioles topped Detroit Tigers 3-2 on Curt Blefary's two-run single in the eighth. Terry helped himself to a 7-4 lead with a two-run double in the second inning. The Indians struck for four more runs in the third. Max Alvis belting a two-run homer, Pedro Gonzalez, another former Yankee, knocked in two runs with a homer and sacrifice fly.

Minnesota pushed over the winning run in the last of the ninth on a double by pinch-hitter Bernie Allen, a sacrifice bunt and Zollo Versalles' scoring fly.

Frank Howard broke up New York southpaw Al Downing's no-hit bid in the seventh with a towering homer and the Senators won it in the eighth on an error by Clete Boyer, a wild pickoff throw by Downing, Bob Chance's single and Ed Brinkman's sacrifice fly.

John Orsino's single, Brooks Robinson's double and Blefary's two - base shot enabled Baltimore to end a three-game skid and take fourth place, one game ahead of the Tigers.

Homer Wins For Juniors

By GARRY ALEXANDER

Mike Chatland's big bat gave Ellis Juniors some breathing room at the top of the B. and D. Softball League standings here last night.

Chatland planted a solid home run in the eighth inning to snap a 2-2 deadlock as the Juniors nipped Bloomfield 3-2 before a good crowd at the Fairgrounds.

The victory gave Ellis' 4-1 point lead over Bloomfield but the boys from Prince Edward still have a game in hand. Tonight, Ellis' host Stirling here, Trudeaux meet Bloomfield in Picton and Madoc visits Trenton.

On Thursday, Trenton meets Trudeaux here, Ellis' go to Stirling and Tweed visits Madoc.

Bloomfield, tamed on one hit and down 2-0 after six innings, had plated single runs in the seventh and eighth frames when Chatland settled the issue.

The winner's initial run came in the third when Yorke's throwing error on Moon's two-out ball allowed him to circle the bases. It was a 2-0 game in the fourth when Ethier punched a hit, advanced on a passed ball and scored on Rutherford's single.

Ellis' turned in another errorless effort but a hit batter and DeMille's double put men on second and third with one out in the seventh. Lockwood grounded to short and the play at the plate was too late to get the lead runner. Alert play cut down DeMille at the plate on a double-steal attempt.

In the eighth, Carson led off with another double but the next two men were putouts. Weese slashed a ball that went for a bad-hop double and it was a 2-2 affair.

Bob Ethier bested Ken DeMille in the pitching department, allowing five hits in all, four in the final three frames. Ethier struck out 13 and walked three.

DeMille gave up eight hits, struck out nine and did not walk a man. The first of his mates' two errors put him in the hole but seven putouts turned in sparkling fielding plays.

In the hitting department, Chatland had his homer and a pop triple but Ethier led the field with two singles. Rutherford, Bob Moon and Wayne Woods added singles.

For Bloomfield, Ron Weese doubled twice, Eldon Carson and DeMille once each and Dave Lockwood got the loss pitcher.

Plate umpire Kelleher ejected Keith MacDonald of the losers in the top of the eighth and Wayne Woods of the winners in the bottom, both after third strikes.

Not A Yankee In Sight

'Rebels' Fill All-Star Spots

By JOE REICHLER

NEW YORK (AP) — Felix Mantilla was named today to the 1965 American League all-star team when for the first time in its 33-year history fielding to list a single New York Yankee.

Mantilla, the league's runs-batted - in leader, beat out Bobby Richardson of the Yankees for the second-base job on the opening lineup which will face the National League's best July 13 at St. Paul. The veteran Boston Red Sox infielder is the league's fifth leading batter with .317.

Third-baseman Brooks Robinson of Baltimore Orioles was the only repeater from the 1964 opening lineup.

Four players made the team for the first time—short-stop Dick McAuliffe and left-fielder Willie Horton of Detroit Tigers, centre-fielder Vic Davalillo of Cleveland Indians, and Mantilla.

Other starters, chosen by a vote of 280 league players, coaches and managers, were catcher Earl Battey of Minnesota Twins, first-base-man Bill Skowron of Chicago White Sox and right-fielder Rocky Colavito of the Indians.

Commissioner Ford Frick whose office conducted the balloting, said the National League starting lineup will be announced Sunday. The remainder of the squads, including the pitchers, will be picked by the managers later.

Al Lopez of the White Sox, will manage the AL all-stars and Gene Mauch of Philadelphia Phillies the NL team. Each squad will carry 25 players.

Battey, who received 303 votes the most by any player, made the starting team for the third time as did Skowron, Robinson and Colavito.

Skowron also made the team, as an alternate, on three other occasions. It was the sixth time on the squad for Robinson and the fifth for Colavito.

The NL has won six of the last seven all-star games.

Belvedere Scores Lightfoots

Belvedere Hotel upset Lightfoot Construction 4-1 last night to prevent the losers from sharing first place in the Commercial Softball League standings.

Lightfoots went into the game two points behind league-leading City Hotel while Belvedere remains in seventh place in the eight-team loop.

Belvedere never trailed, tallying a 2-0 lead with singletons in the fourth and fifth frames. Lightfoots cut the margin in half in the bottom of the sixth but a pair in the top of the seventh clinched the Hotelmen's triumph.

Joe King pitched the victory, touched for seven hits while whiffing none and walking a pair.

Joe Harvey also gave up seven hits in defeat, striking out five and passing two.

Each side erred twice. The game was played at Prince Charles School.

Joe King helped his own cause at the plate with a pair of Belvedere singles. Jack Lucas rapped a triple and George Cliff a double. Other base hits went to Richard Belch, "Swimmer" Brown and Cliff "Sonny" McGrimmon.

All Lightfoot hits were singles and no player got more than one. Hitting safely were: Rusty Garvin, Joe Clapp, Jack Lucas, Whalling, Don Smith, Ken Brooks, Jack Gilby and Joe Harvey.

Canadian Crews Ready To Go

HENLEY ON THAMES, England (CP) — Canadian crews took it easy Tuesday on the eve of the Henley Royal Regatta but coaches predicted good runs against their opposition in the opening heats of the world's top amateur rowing event.

George Hungerford and Roger Jackson, Canada's Olympic gold medallists in the pairs event at Tokyo last year, stayed away from the one-mile, 550-yard Thames course, spending the day resting. They hoped to return today with a fresh approach and "really hit it hard."

Pitted against a veteran Finnish crew in the first heat of the Silver Goblets, Hufgerford, 21, and Jackson, 23, plan to take off at a high rate—possibly 38 or 39 strokes a minute—and wear down the older Finns, V. Lehtela and T. Pitkanen, whom they beat at Tokyo.

"We want the Finns to run our race and struggle to keep up with us," Jackson, a six-foot, five-inch native of Toronto, explained. "They are both about 12 years older than we and we think we're in better condition."

In the Princess Elizabeth Challenge Cup for schoolboy eights, Canada has strong representatives in the St. Catharines Collegiate crew, winner of the Canadian scholastic championship at St. Catharines last month and the Shawnigan Lake School crew of British Columbia, runner - up to St. Catharines.

"I think we're in better shape physically than most of the English crews and they'll have to row like blazes to keep up with us," coach Jack Nicholson said Tuesday night, referring to his eights crew.

He declined comment on today's strategy against Tiffin Grammar School of Kingston, England, adding that he doesn't usually determine his plans until the day of the race because of weather and water conditions.

Regatta officials predicted sunny weather for the opening heats, but the narrow Thames course, with its heavy log-boom buoys and unmarked centre strip, poses a coach's nightmare, especially for the uncoxed pairs.

Emerson, Stolle Favorites To Repeat

THE ARNOLD Palmer Method

by GOLF'S 4-TIME MASTERS WINNER

IN SWING UNITY, THERE IS STRENGTH

I have often said that power and strength in the swing stems largely from the big muscles of the back and legs. To bring these muscles into play, the golfer must swing with the legs, body, shoulders and arms moving together in a unified manner. You will get little help from your back and leg muscles if your hands and arms move the club largely on their own.

Here is one very helpful tip to aid you in unifying your swing. At address, keep your upper arms fairly close to your body, as I am doing in No. 1. With the arms in tight, there is less tendency to start the swing solely with the hands. Instead the hands will move the club back in conjunction with the lifting and turning of the hips and shoulders (No. 2).

All this unification pays off in the hitting area as your legs and body thrust power through your arms and hands to the club itself (No. 3).

WIMBLEDON (CP)—Australian Roy Emerson and Fred Stolle are favorites to win their men's singles semi - final matches in the all - England tennis championships and set up a repeat of last year's final.

Emerson, the world's top amateur and the defending Wimbledon champion, plays Dennis Ralston today, mainstay of the United States' Davis Cup team, in the opening match on the centre court. Then Stolle, runner - up 12 months ago in the last two years, will meet Cliff Drysdale of South Africa.

Ralston, 22, took leave of absence from his studies at the University of Southern California this summer to concentrate on his challenge at Wimbledon. He has had solid grass-court preparation and it has paid dividends.

SERVICE WEAK

His one weakness here has been his service. He has sown a heavy crop of double faults on Wimbledon courts during the last nine days.

Ralston will have to have his service in top gear today if he is to have any chance of bringing down the champion, who at 28 is still among the fittest men in amateur tennis.

Stolle and Drysdale, both fair - haired six - footers, have contrasting styles. Stolle is an exponent of the big serve and volley. Drysdale, who has become the six-top boy of Wimbledon this year, shuns the forecourt and relies on his control from the ground to win him his points.

Drysdale's unorthodox double-handed backhand is a deadly weapon when working smoothly and it could cause Stolle trouble. But the South African does not appear to have quite enough all - round strength of stroke to defeat a man of Stolle's calibre.

MOSTLY DOUBLES

Except for the men's singles, the rest of today's program is given over to doubles.

In a women's doubles match, Vicki Berner of Vancouver and her American partner, Mary Habicht, will take on Glenda Swan of South Africa and Pat Walkden of Rhodesia.

The semi-finalists in women's singles were decided Tuesday. Christine Truman of Britain, Maria Bueno of Brazil, Billie Jean Moffitt of the U.S. and Margaret Smith of Australia all won in straight sets.

On Thursday, Miss Moffitt will face Miss Bueno, the defending champion, and Miss Truman will play the powerful Miss Smith.

Miss Truman, 24, defeated the top - ranked American woman, Nancy Richey, in what was regarded as an upset. The 6-4, 1-6, 7-5 victory delighted a partisan centre-court crowd of 16,000.

Miss Bueno, top-seeded, eliminated Jane Albert of the U.S. 6-2, 6-2, and Miss Moffitt crushed third - seeded Lesley Turner of Australia 6-2, 6-1.

Miss Smith downed Justina Bricka of the U.S. 6-3, 6-0.

Ladies Test

Sandra Post Tops Field

BRANTFORD (CP) — Sandra Post, 19-year-old Oakville golf champion, breezed around the Brantford Golf and Country Club's 5,836-yard course Tuesday with a one-over-par 75 to take the lead in the third round of the Ontario ladies test matches.

After a first nine of 41 she came back with birdies on the 10th, 14th and 18th holes for a three-under-par 34 on the back nine.

Club officials said it was a course record for women.

Miss Post is reigning Ontario ladies open champion, winner of the Canadian junior title in 1964 and the Ontario junior championship in 1963.

Gail Harvey of Toronto, Canadian closed champion who qualified automatically for a berth on the team that will compete in the Canadian closed and open champions hips at Kitchener-Westmount next month, paced out the string of matches for practice.

She scored 41 and 39 for an 80, a total of 28 match points, one point behind Miss Post.

Pam Miller of Oshawa shot a 40-38 for 78 Tuesday to put her firmly in third spot with a total of 76½ points.

Match play continues today at Burlington and moves to Hamilton next Monday.

Leafs Lose To Bisons, Wings Win

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Nobody seemed to be doing much to help pitcher Craig Anderson win his first International League baseball game with Buffalo Bisons this season, so he took matters into his own hands Tuesday night.

Anderson, loser of nine in a row, hurled the Bisons into a tie and defeated 19 consecutive times when he was with the parent New York Mets of the National League, finally won.

He downed Toronto Maple Leafs 4-3, ending a streak of victory by driving in three runs and scoring another himself.

Rochester Red Wings, meanwhile, outlasted Syracuse Chiefs 12-6 in a 31-bit shuffest. Jacksonville Suns nipped Atlanta Crackers 3-2 and Columbus Jets defeated Toledo Mud Hens 3-0 in a game shortened by rain to six innings.

Tony Curtis Advocates Psychiatrist for Actors

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Movie studios could save themselves a lot of grief, not to mention money, says Tony Curtis, if they would simply hire a resident psychiatrist for the actors.

"Is he kidding? You can't be sure. Curtis is so gifted with the gab that he could sell a red, white and blue toupee to Yul Brynner. And when he puts forth his argument about company-paid psychiatry for performers, as he did on the set of Boeing Boeing, you're inclined to see a crazy kind of logic.

"Ninety per cent of the problems caused by actors on a picture could be cured with the help of a competent headshrinker," he said.

"Allow me to give an example. When I was making Some Like It Hot, Marilyn Monroe was invariably late. Finally the miriches (the producers) could stand it no more and they called her agency and talked to her drama coach and insisted that she be more punctual.

CAME WITH VENGEANCE

"Okay, so the next day or so she showed up at 9 a.m. but she made life so miserable for everybody on the set that we were all glad when she went back to arriving at 11.

"The point here is that Marilyn at that time was too late to be saved. But if someone had tried to reason with her earlier in her career and tried to straighten her out on why she was late, she might not have had all that trouble."

Standen, he continued, presents constant pressures, and actors could use someone to help them over the rough spots. He cited his own example:

"What was I? A punk kid from the Bronx who was just a few steps ahead of the cops. Then suddenly I'm here in Hollywood and people are poking me out and asking my opinions on this and that. It was too much for me to handle.

SORTED OUT IDEAS

"For a period of three or four years I was in analysis, attempting to find a way to deal with what was happening to me. That treatment helped me greatly."

Vestiges of two traumas remain from his early days at Universal, he admitted:

1. He was buzzed by being herded with other young players to be put on public display for visiting theatre men. To this day he shuns being herded with actors "like a goldfish" at public events.

2. He disliked coming on a set and finding the camera already in place for the scene. "They did that to save time in all the crummy pictures I was in at first," he said. "Now if I find the camera in pre-set, I walk off. You can't tell how a scene should be shot until the actors rehearse it; that's the only way I'll work."

TV-Radio Column

Dick van Dyke Is Born Artist Claim of Miss Moore

The following column is written by Mary Tyler Moore of the The Dick Van Dyke Show for vacationing Cynthia Lowry.

By MARY TYLER MOORE

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—One of the questions I'm asked most often is what is it like to work with Dick Van Dyke.

And I've been feeling people don't believe what I tell them because it sounds too good to be true.

I just can't say that offstage, Dick Van Dyke is moody. Or temperamental. Or hard to get along with. I'm not sure he knows what those words mean.

The truth is that Dick doesn't lose his temper. He doesn't sulk. He doesn't throw his weight around.

He's so nice, in our hearts we know he don't deserve him.

Someone asked Dick once if he could ever be married to me in real life. And he answered very honestly—he said no. To kid him, I asked what was the matter with me. Dick said: "I'm a marshmallow type. I'm not forceful enough for you."

A STEEL CORE

I had to think that over. If Dick is a marshmallow type, it's over a steel core. He's one of the strongest men I've ever known. But he's quietly strong. (I probably need a loudly strong type.)

There are quite a few loud, strong types working to put The Dick Van Dyke Show together. We all sit around tossing in ideas, adding bits of action to the scripts as we go along. There's a lot of joking and laughing and general fooling around.

Dick will be in the middle of it all. But he sits in the middle—he doesn't stand up and take center stage.

If we're working out a camera move that doesn't concern him, Dick may wander off and play the stage piano. You know what he usually plays? Johann Sebastian Bach.

I've said this before and I'll keep on saying it. Dick is a born artist. He's so talented at things he's never had formal training for — dancing, playing the piano, juggling.

He makes it look as though things are easy for him. And because of this, he makes things easy for all of us who work with him. Who could ask for anything more?

One-Hitter Wins Over No-Hitter

Hits were almost non-existent in a B.A.S.A. Tyke division game, won by the Lions Club over C.N. Firemen 14, last night. The loss was the first of the year for the Firemen as the Lions battled back from a 4-3 deficit to push two runs across in the bottom of the seventh and last inning.

The game was a real pitchers' battle as five pitchers combined to throw a one-hitter. Apparently errors and walks accounted for the scoring.

The losers were Ted Eves and John Mulvihill. They gave up no hits, struck out 15 and walked eight. Danny Lapenette and John Nolan shared the catching.

Dan England, Blake Reeves and Ron McTaggart, combined for the one-hit win. They gave up seven walks and got 16 on strikes.

John Mulvihill collected the only hit of the game, a double in the seventh to give the Firemen their short-lived lead.

The losers got off to a fast start as they scored three runs in the first frame. The Lions battled back with two in the bottom of the same frame and tied it up in the fifth.

The Firemen took a one-run lead in the seventh, but lost it when two were scored against them in the same inning.

Computer Picks Filly To Win

DU QUOIN, ILL. (AP) — Silky experts took a back seat Monday to a computer, which predicted the 1963 Hambletonian winner to be the Canadian filly Armbro Flight.

Noble Victory, owned by E. D. Owen of Houston, was generally regarded as the pre-race favorite to take $125,000 premier stakes for three-year-old trotters Sept. 3.

But Southern Illinois University's computer, programmed by Ralph Ashworth, manager of the research and instruction division of the university's data processing department, picked Armbro Flight as the winner, with Noble Victory second.

A filly has not won the Hambletonian since Emilys Pride in 1958. Since the race was inaugurated in 1926, only 10 fillies have won.

Armbro Flight is owned by Joe O'Brien of Alberton, P.E.I., one of the all time great trotting owners with 26 races last year and $107,432 to become the only trotting filly in history racing history to reach the $100,000 plateau as a juvenile.

Leps Fails To Break Own Mile Record

HAMILTON (CP) — Ergas Leps of Toronto failed Tuesday night in a valiant attempt to break his own Canadian record for the mile in a race at a meet here between an Oxford-Cambridge track team and Hamilton Olympic Club.

Leps fell four seconds short of his record, turning in a 4:05.1 time for the run.

He had been keeping ahead of Jim Irons of Toronto but Irons tired in the third lap and Leps slid back with him, letting his time stretch to 3:03.

Later he commented: "I tried to go for it but couldn't make it. I'm not usually a front runner. I thought I would try it and see what I could do."

Irons, bushed by the early pace, dropped to fourth place behind Martin Henderson and David Roan of the Oxford-Cambridge team. Henderson made his best time, at 4:07.9.

For Oxford-Cambridge, Jeffery Archer stood out with two wins. The 20-year-old sprinter took the 100-yard event in 10 seconds and ran the 220 in 22.1 seconds.

Ray Trecker, Hamilton school boy runner, turned in a time of one minute, 51.1 seconds in the half mile. He burst out of the four-man pack at 400 yards and flashed home just ahead of Orford - Cambridge runner Hugh Pullan, who came in at 1:51.3, his best time on the English team's two-week tour.

Trecker also ran a swift 440-yard anchor leg to beat Graham Plews in the medley relay event. The Hamilton runner dropped the baton on the exchange, picked it up on the move, and surged from behind in the last 40 yards to pass Plews at the wire.

In the women's events, Abbie Hoffman of Toronto, in a rematch against Cecilia Carter of Hamilton, turned in a 56.6 second time on the 440. 9-10 second up on Miss Carter. The win turned the tables on the Hamilton runner, who last weekend beat Miss Hoffman in the Canadian championships.

Royal Henley Pairs

Canadians Defeat Finns

HENLEY - ON - THAMES (CP) — Canada's Olympic gold medallists, George Hungerford and Roger Jackson of Vancouver, comfortably defeated a strong pair from Finland in the first-round of the Henley Royal Regatta Silver Goblets for paired oars today, and became heavy favorites to win the event.

The two tall, powerful Canadians were clocked in seven minutes, 55 minutes for the 2,000-metre (1¼ - mile) course and always had the race in their pockets.

They led Finland's Veli Lehtela and Toini Pitkasen by two lengths after three-quarters of a mile and with the race seemingly won, the Canadians eased their rate of stroking.

But the Finns, who bowed to the same Canadian pair in the Tokyo Olympics, came on with a last-minute burst to close the gap.

Hungerford and Jackson pulled away slightly to hold off the challenge and won by three-quarters of a length.

The Olympic champions assumed the role of heavy favorites, because there isn't much tougher opposition in the event than the Finns provided today, and the Canadians handled them with comparative ease.

EXPECT HARDER FIGHT

Jackson, 23-year-old native of Toronto who is attending the University of British Columbia, said afterwards:

"We were ahead of them after 30 strokes and there was nothing in it after that. We were not worried about our time—we were just content to be in front."

Hungerford, 21, a fourth-year arts student at UBC, said he expects a hard fight later in the event, figuring the Germans are tougher than the Finns.

"We may have to race the Germans," he said, talking about the one-sided victory scored earlier today by East Germany's Peter Gorny and Ginter Bergau over a pair of Canadian schoolboys, Rick Crooker and John Ferguson of St. Catharines, Ont. The East Germans won by 150 yards.

Argos Sign Ron Brewer

AURORA, Ont. (CP) — All-star linebacker Ron Brewer signed his 1965 contract with Toronto Argonauts of the Eastern Football Conference Tuesday ending a two-day holdout.

Brewer is one of the most heavily-lined players in the Canadian Football League and was understood that his terms included compensation for any fines he may incurr for his aggressive play.

Also signed by the Argos was import end Jim Leo, formerly with New York Giants and Minnesota Vikings of the National Football League.

Still considered holdouts are Don Fuell, an outstanding defensive halfback in 1964 before a mid-season injury, guard Bob Streiter of the University of Miami, and quarterback Karl Sweetan from Wake Forest.

NAMATH MENDING

NEW YORK (CP) — Joe Namath, the $400,000 rookie quarterback of New York Jets, punted and ran Tuesday and convinced coach Weeb Ewbank he will be ready for full time duty when camp opens July 14. Namath underwent surgery on his right knee Jan. 25.

The Tracks

TORONTO (CP)—Stewards at the suburban Woodbine race track had a harrowing day Tuesday when three races on the eight-race card ended with foul claims—and all three were upheld.

"I can't remember another occasion when numbers have come down on three straight foul claims," said W. J. Rieswick, chief steward representing the Ontario Racing Commission.

The successful foul claims went up in the second, seventh and eighth races of the day.

Strong Willed, the favorite, finished first in the second race but was dropped to fifth, giving the victory to Silk'n Saphire which returned $10.90, $5.50 and $4.10 to its backers.

Lucky Draw and Easy Ella were each moved up a notch to the place and show positions as a result of the ruling.

In the featured seventh, Winkle was the winner but second-place finisher Safety Man, ridden by Eric Walsh, was dropped to third position when Jockey Hugo Dittfach aboard Mornins' Mornin claimed Safety Man interfered with his horse in the stretch run. Mornins' Mornin was moved to second. Alvelino Gomez's foul claim against Dittfach was disallowed.

Defeats Giants 9-3

Sandy Koufax Passes Ellis With Win 13

By MURRAY CHASS
Associated Press Sports Writer

Sandy Koufax finally has pulled ahead of Sammy Ellis. The Los Angeles Dodger ace recorded his 13th victory in the National League leaders' 9-3 triumph over San Francisco Giants Tuesday.

Ellis, on the other hand, spent 14 innings trying for his 13th victory but couldn't get it. Instead Cincinnati wound up losing to Pittsburgh Pirates 2-1 in 16 innings. The Reds came back and won the nightcap 7-5.

In winning his seventh straight game, Koufax completed a masterful month of pitching. During June he won six times, one more than he ever has won before in one month.

But it took Koufax the entire month to edge by Ellis, who has blossomed into a sterling starter after spending last season in the bullpen. Each won his 11th game June 20 and his 12th last Friday. Each has lost three times.

In other National League games Philadelphia Phillies whipped St. Louis Cardinals 7 - 2 and Milwaukee Braves trimmed New York Mets 8-6. Rain washed out Houston Astros and Chicago Cubs.

SUPPORTED KOUFAX

John Roseboro and Jim Gilliam supported Koufax with some lusty hitting. Roseboro drove in five runs while Gilliam knocked in three, each with a homer and a single. Maury Wills rapped four singles and stole his 46th base.

Ellis gave up just four hits in 14 innings but wasn't around when Roberto Clemente singled home Bob Bailey with the winning run in the 16th.

Pete Rose batted in three runs in the nightcap, the first with a third-inning triple and two more with a single in a first run fourth-inning outburst.

Bo Belinsky stopped St. Louis on six hits, winning his third game against four defeats. Philadelphia supported him with a bases-empty home run by Tony Gonzales, a two-run homer by Johnny Callison and Dick Stuart's three-run blow.

The Braves outlasted the Mets with the help of two errors by Johnny Lewis and one by Chuck Hiller. Lewis' first miscue led to the run that broke a 4-4 tie in the sixth, Mathews scoring on Denis Menke's sacrifice fly.

PITCHER SOLD

CHICAGO (AP) — Southpaw Billy Hoeft, veteran of 13 major - league seasons, was purchased by Chicago Cubs Tuesday from their Salt Lake City club in the Pacific Coast League. Salt Lake City had signed Hoeft as a free agent and he has a 3-5 record in 118 innings of relief work.

Man Admits Some Races Are 'Fixed'

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—A man who had betted at Western Fair horse races has been charged in court Tuesday there are fixed races at the track, and a London horse owner and trainer admitted this might be true.

The spectator, Charles Richard Harris of Bayfield, Ont., was complainant in an assault charge against James Francis McGuire of London who owns two horses. The charge was laid following an incident at the track June 4.

Evan McGugan, general manager of Western Fair, has applied for a transcript of the court record and said he will call upon McGuire to explain his statements.

McGuire said he had been angered by a statement made by Harris who had lost money on a race.

"You said, 'you fellows in the barn had that fixed up pretty well'," said McGuire. By this, Harris agreed, he had meant it was a crooked race.

Assistant Crown Attorney H. H. Bick asked McGuire if the races are fixed and was told: "There's an odd time there is a crooked race."

McGuire denied he hit Harris.

Magistrate G. G. Marshman dismissed the case on the condition that McGuire pay court costs amounting to about $24.

Lambert Hangs Up Grid Gear

MONTREAL (CP) — Willie Lambert, 165 - pound flanker who was an effective receiver for Montreal Alouettes last season, has decided to retire from football and devote his attention to his promising dentistry practice.

Lambert said there was no dispute over salary but he found he was unable to get the type of insurance he desired in case hand injuries incapacitated him from practising dentistry.

Lambert, a native of Welland-port, Ont., had six seasons with McGill Redmen before going to Alouettes last season. He injured his left hand in consecutive weeks in the early training schedule but eventually wound up with 16 receptions for 205 yards and one touchdown with the Als.

The club's top pass receiver last season was Jack Gotta, who has retired for a coaching position with Saskatchewan. George Dixon remains as the only one of the three top receivers.

Lambert will continue to help out, along with several veterans at the current training camp for Canadian players. He told the management of his decision Monday.

Lambert will also be the team dentist. He says he would also like to be a coach some time, possibly at McGill.

ARREST CASTROITES

CARACAS (Reuters)—Police arrested three alleged guerrilla leaders and seized "magnificent" files of the Castroite Armed Forces of National Liberation (FALN) in a raid Sunday on a guerrilla recruiting centre in this Venezuelan capital, the interior ministry announced Tuesday. Ministry Director-General Dr. Luis Vera Gomez said the files seized showed that the guerrillas' morale was "not good" and that FALN leaders were having difficulties in finding recruits.

New Water Repellent Great Safety Measure For Car Windshields

By JAMES NELSON

OTTAWA (CP)—With a new silicon water repellent developed by a National Research Council chemist, you may soon be able to drive full speed on a crowded highway in an otherwise blinding rainstorm with your windshield wipers turned off—and without any loss of visibility.

Dr. D. F. Stedman of NRC's division of applied chemistry originally developed the water repellent for use on aircraft windscreens as a safety measure. Now, after 24 years of research and development, the product is stirring real interest among airlines and can be produced commercially for the motorist.

Dr. Stedman demonstrated the repellent applied to his own car. It worked in both a light, misty rain and in a torrential downpour simulated by spraying water under pressure from jets mounted in front of the car's hood.

Without the repellent on the passenger's side of his wind-shield, visibility first became blurred in the rain and then completely obscured under a heavy build-up of water.

But on Dr. Stedman's treated side of the windshield, visibility remained clear. Drops of rain water hitting the windshield literally exploded on contact with the repellent and flew off in millions of tiny particles, leaving the glass clear and seemingly dry.

The windshield wipers were not operated during the demonstration.

FUSES WITH GLASS

The repellent is a complex chemical compound with an appearance similar to black shoe polish. Applied to glass and rubbed briskly, it fuses with the glass in a tough film 1-10,000-000th of an inch thick. It is barely visible.

It can be applied without special technical skill or equipment. And it outlasts washing to remove sand, mud, salt, or "other indignities to which windshields are subjected," the NRC said. Dr. Stedman put an application on his car last September and it remained effective through Ottawa's frigid and dirty winter. He restored it in mid-April.

He first became interested in the effects of water on glass windshields and means of repelling rain in the 1940s after reading reports of a number of aircraft crashes in which planes struck mountain tops in heavy rain storms.

Water on a slanted glass surface has a primitive effect on the line of vision through it, tending to deflect true sight about 45 degrees. But when he is clearing a mountain top when in fact the top only appears to him lower than it is.

In one test with an RCAF F-86 jet fighter, the nose of the aircraft was not visible to the pilot through an untreated part of his windscreen at a speed of 500 miles an hour, but through the treated area the pilot had two miles vision.

AVERTED DISASTER

"This flight would have ended in disaster except for the repellent which allowed safe flight and landing despite a torrent of rain," Dr. Stedman said in an NRC paper on use of the repellent for aircraft windshields.

After one major airline had a landing accident in a rain storm at a runway in Vienna recently, it asked for detailed information on the new NRC development.

Dr. Stedman calls the product SRP, for semi-permanent repellent. It is not just a new version of the many carlike repellents he worked with, but his final result of nearly a lifetime of research.

"All of the difficulties have been licked," said the Sussex-born chemist now nearing retirement. "I now am completely satisfied with it. It's easy to use and does all the things a rain repellent should do."

Patents have been applied for by Canadian Patents and Development Ltd., a subsidiary of NRC, which is looking for a commercial manufacturer. Royalties under any licence granted for the product will go to NRC, with a share to Dr. Stedman.

An early version of the repellent has been marketed by Dow Corning Corp., in the United States and by Dow Corning Silicones in Canada.

Sprayer's Use Outlined at F.U. Meeting

BONARLAW — The June meeting of Local 171, Ontario Farmers' Union, was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George Williams.

During the early part of the evening, Mr. Campbellford gave a complete spray demonstration. They discussed the care, maintenance and use of weed, seed and insect sprayers. Mr. Reidel, the weed and seed chemical spray fieldman from Lindsay gave a detailed outline of chemical weed sprays and their uses. A question and answer period followed, after which president Bob Cashey expressed the thanks of the Union.

The meeting proceeded with a lengthy discussion on the milk plan, including a brief talk by Murray Heath.

Jeanne Williams read a letter from the vice-president, Walter Miller, regarding the membership drive which will be held in June.

A pie social is planned for July. The next meeting will be held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harper Bateman on July 8.

By ROSEMARY SPEIERS

TORONTO (CP) Cedric Sowby sat in his bright, spacious office at Toronto's Upper Canada College and talked about his 16 years as principal of the exclusive boys' school.

"You know we have been accused of catering to the spoiled sons of an economic elite here.

"But the last thing I want is a rich man's school. We want only an elite not of money but of training and character.

"Our boys are taught a sense of responsibility and self-discipline. We don't teach them how to be successful businessmen but how to be of service to the community."

Mr. Sowby, who retired June 17, sees Upper Canada College as a Canadian version of famous English public schools such as Gordonstoun, attended by Prince Philip and Prince Charles and noted for its character-building institutions.

Founded in 1829, Upper Canada stands on 40 acres of garden lawn in Toronto's fashionable Forest Hill district. It lays stress on a full program of team sports and on leadership training through the perfect system by which boys govern much of their own affairs.

GRADS DO WELL

For 63-year-old Cedric Sowby, the red brick buildings of the senior and preparatory schools are the home of 800 potential leaders of Canadian society.

"If I may boast a little, my graduates have done very well," he said, smiling as he pushed back wisps of white hair. "In every walk of life you will find Upper Canada College boys."

The Anglican priest says his method has been to assume that all boys are naturally curious and to keep them constantly learning and striving to do better.

"It's a full-time job being a boy here. We don't take anyone unless he has a reasonable chance of getting senior matriculation although we look for all-round interest and not just intellectual excellence."

The phrase "doing things well" recurs in Mr. Sowby's conversation. And it's coupled with the belief that every activity at Upper Canada College must have a purpose.

Compulsory cadet drill is not a boyish war game but aims to teach "leadership and self-discipline," he says. And the 30 extra-curricular clubs are not frills but intended to develop special interests and skills.

Upper Canada's 12th principal, Cedric Sowby was born in Loth, Lincolnshire, and was ordained by the Church of England in 1925. After four years in a Cumberland parish he joined the staff of St. Edward's School, Oxford, to begin his long teaching career.

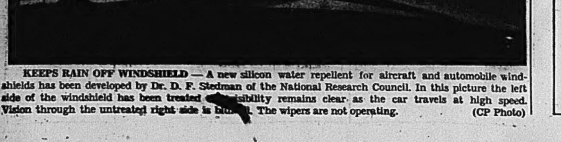
At 31 he became headmaster of an Irish Protestant school for the sons of English estate-owners. St. Columba's College near Dublin was having difficulties at the time. During Mr. Sowby's 16 years its enrolment tripled.

ADVOCATES RELIGION

He turned the grounds of the school into a 200-acre farm.

"We thought that if we had a farm, some of the boys, instead of becoming absentee landlords like their fathers, might stay and take part in the leadership of the country. It was a noted educational experiment at the time and quite successful."

Mr. Sowby is examining chaplain to the Anglican Bishop of Toronto and is a strong advocate of religious instruction in schools.



Grades 9, 10 and 11 are taught religion by Mary Sowby, the principal's wife and one of four women to graduate with first-class honors in theology from Cambridge.

Mrs. Sowby is the only woman teacher at Upper Canada and has become a school tradition but, she says with a shake of the head, she is not allowed to enter the common room of this "terribly man-ridden establishment."

The Sowbys plan to travel abroad until next spring, then would like to find "some kind of useful work in education."

The new principal is Patrick Johnson, 38, a native of Assam, India, who has been an English teacher at UCC.
